SOLES MYSTERY DEEPENS

Today

A Busy Year Ending.
Free Press Still Waves.
Good Years Predicted.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YOU ARE less than two weeks from the end of Franklin D. Roosevelt's first year as President of the United States. Did you, in all your life, ever know such a busy year?

THE KING of Belgium, who climbed mountains because kings in these days have little of the old kingly executive excitement left, took hold of a rock loosened by the frost and rain, far up, fell and was killed.

His sons sorrowfully walk behind their father's coffin, his widow murmurs, over and over, Tout est fini, "All is finished."

The older son takes his father's place and all IS finished.

IT MAY be true, as Mussolini, Hitler and Kemal agree, that human beings, in their republics and democracies, have shown inability to govern themselves.

But government by kings has failed also. Whether a king lives or dies makes little difference except that sometimes the change from one king to another may excite Communists and other "reds," causing unpleasant demonstrations.

France, needing Belgium as a buffer state, so useful in delaying the Germans in the big war, worries a little about Belgian Communists. Otherwise, the death of the good-natured, friendly Belgian king means nothing.

THE PRESIDENT, telling newspapers what he wants done about hours and days of work and wages, says liberty of the press is to go right ahead, but does not think there is any more reason to raise that question than there would have been to ask whether the Ten Commandments would continue to operate under NRA.

Some little editors, struggling to keep alive, might suggest that telling them what they must do in their own plants with their own machinery and money, might be considered the beginning of interfering with liberty of the press.

BUT GOVERNMENT newspaper regulation will not affect little editors so seriously.

In nine cities, with 750,000 population or more, newspapers with 75,000 circulation or more, will be expected to work their men only five days a week and not more than forty hours in the five days.

That can't always be done unless reporting is revised, for many "assignments" require more than eight hours, some as much as twenty-four hours.

THE NEW regulations would interest Benjamin Franklin, who was in the newspaper business, and Bennett, Pulitzer and Dana, also John Bogart and "Boss" Clark, of the ancient days.

Their idea was to send a reporter out and let him stay out until he got what he was sent to get. If he had returned expecting to quit at the end of eight hours, waving a blue eagle or an NRA sign, he would have been told to go to work for NRA.

But conditions have changed, with rapid transportation and telephones, since the days when it took as long to go from the City Hall to the Bronx as it does now to go from a New York airport to Miami.

MR. RICHARD H. GRANT, who understands business, having distributed many hundreds of millions of valuable merchandise, believes that:

"America is due for three or four years of prosperity, induced by the stimulus of government spending."

At the end of the three or four years of prosperity more or less artificially proved, Mr. Grant thinks:

"The natural world recovery will come itself, and I think be well under way when government spending stops."

NINE OUT of ten business men feel as Mr. Grant feels, but they all know that when you change a patient from strong medicines, stimulant, digitalis, to drive the heart, morphine to deaden pain, etc., you must do it carefully.

The change from Uncle Sam's money to money "that you earn yourself" will have its difficulties.

EDWARD LASKER, chess expert, defeats an able opponent, playing "blind," never seeing the board or his pieces on it. He is told about moves as they are made, and carrying all of the men and their position in his mind, directs his own moves and wins.

The average man who plays chess so wonderfully does nothing else of importance, but the late Joseph Pulitzer was an exception.

He could play several games without seeing the board, and once, crossing the ocean, after his sight was nearly gone, he walked up and down talking to another chess expert, and as he passed, directed his moves in a match with a fairly good player, to whom as a handicap Mr. Pulitzer had given his queen before the game began.

As he passed he would say to his secretary, Mr. Butes, afterward Lord Northcliffe's secretary, "Has he moved, Mr. Butes?"; then direct his own next move, and a little later say, "Checkmate in two moves," and so it always turned out.

What will the human brain be after it has continued its development for a million or ten million years more on the earth, having achieved such wonders only 12,000 years from the late stone age of sharp flints and damp caves?

CALIFORNIA evidently intends to make kidnaping dangerous within her borders. A Negro who kidnaped a butcher's employe and took 67 cents from him is sentenced to imprisonment for life. That will discourage others.

Prince to Wed Actress Despite Ban

SIGVARD DEAF TO ROYAL PLEADINGS

Estelle Manville's Mate Fails to Break 'Love Match'

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—A royal envoy failed today to convince Prince Sigvard, grandson of King Gustaf of Sweden, that he shouldn't marry a blonde German movie actress.

Prince Sigvard

The actress is Fraulein Erika Patzek. The prince's father, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, objects to the marriage on the grounds that she is a commoner.

So Count Folke Bernadotte, himself the husband of an American girl, the former Estelle R. Manville, boarded an airplane and plunged into the family argument. he spent a good deal of time trying to find the prince and his beautiful fiiancee, only to discover today that the royal young Swede has a very head-strong mind of his own.

SILENT ON MARRIAGE

The Count left town and headed back to Sweden, figuratively washing his hands as he went.

The young couple, after dodging parental envoys, diplomats, and interviewers several days, quietly went to lunch in a cozy West End restaurant.

Still the Prince refused to discuss plans for the ceremony-he-intends-to-be, saying only that he intends to marry in London if regulations can be complied with.

The count exhausted every effort today, aided by detectives from Scotland Yard, to discourage the marriage. He was reluctant to comment, but it was learned that Scotland Yard was called upon for help when he had been unable to find the couple himself.

Officials of the Swedish legation, admitting the presence in

Ponzi Starts Job Selling Groceries

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Charles Ponzi, the man who once sold a get-rich-quick idea to thousands, starts on a new selling job today.

He will be a wholesale provisions salesman, a job far removed from the financial scheme which led him to prison when thousands of investors lost the savings entrusted to him more than a decade ago. He was released a few days ago.

Benes Sees War Soon, Or Never

Editor's Note—Europe has only an even chance to escape another World War in the near future, Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, believes. In the ninth article of his series, "Will War Come," Knickerbocker interviews this co-founder of the republic that came into being at the end of the last World War.

PRAGUE, Feb. 21.—The shrewdest foreign minister in Central Europe believes this old continent has an even chance, but no better, to escape war in the near future. But if it does not come within five years, he believes it will not come at all.

Eduard Benes, co-founder of Czechoslovakia with President Masaryk, is 34 years younger than his venerable chief. The President says there will be no war because "there is no money," but Benes says the chances are 50-50.

That was his own expression. The little man who has made his foreign ministry more important in the councils of Europe than the ministries of much larger states, wagged an energetic thumb as he sat at his desk an hour before train time for one of his periodic dashes to an allied

HOUSE PASSES TAX REVISION

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The $258,000,000 income tax revision bill was passed by the House today after a Republican effort to repeal 3-cent letter postage was overwhelmingly defeated.

The tax bill, which is designed to plug up loopholes, now goes to the Senate.

Shortly before the bill passed, the House adopted amendments of the Ways and Means Committee designed to strengthen provisions of the bill aimed at tax evasion.

The amendments were directed particularly to the provisions providing for a 35 per cent tax on undistributed earnings of personal holding companies, alleged to be the favorite method of wealthy persons in avoiding taxes.

As passed, the bill revises income tax rates, provides credit for earned income, repeals the 2-cent bank check tax January 1, levies a 5-cent-a-pound tax on cocoanut oil and authorizes appointment of 10 new assistants by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

YOUTH KILLS FATHER IN RADIO ROW

Uses Hammer, Knife in Slaying; Beats Wife Of Brother

OIL CITY, Pa., Feb. 21.—In an explosion of temper because his father turned off the radio, a 17-year-old high school student today plunged a butcher knife into his father's breast five times killing him and then struck his sister-in-law, according to police.

Russell A. Graham stayed home from Oil City High School this morning because he wasn't feeling well and before noon had killed his father, Alonzo A. Graham, 64, while his mother was away working, Coroner J. Irwin Zerbe and police said.

ADMITS KILLING

A frail looking blond boy, popular with his classmates, Russell calmly came to the door of the Graham home in East Bissell avenue, Patrolman T. M. Eustace related, and told police:

"Yes, I did it. Come and take me."

Piecing together the tragedy from bits of Russell's reported confession and statements by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Marsh Graham, 20, police gave the following account:

The father was trying to doze in a chair near the radio and got up, turned it off and sat down again.

Russell went to the kitchen, picked up a hammer and struck his father over the head, sending him crashing to the floor.

His sister-in-law told police she rushed in to help the elder Graham, when Russell struck her, yelling:

"I want to kill."

Raving "like a maniac," according to Helen, the boy seized the knife from the kitchen table and stabbed his father five times. On the fifth time, the handle broke off. Then he dragged the body into the cellar.

HELD IN JAIL

At the Oil City Hospital, Mrs. Graham's condition was reported as not serious.

Helen's husband, Stanley, came home a few minutes after the police arrived. Seeing him, the boy became hysterical and sobbed.

Questioned by police, Russell is quoted by Patrolman Eustace as saying:

"I don't know why I did it. I was not feeling well this morning, so I stayed home from school."

Both the boy's mother, who was called home from her work, and Helen told police, they said, that Russell had been acting "melancholy and strangely off and on lately."

He was turned over to Coroner Zerbe and held in the County Jail at Franklin to await a charge of first degree murder, District Attorney Maurice Breene has announced will be placed against him.

Mellons Ask $25 Dues At Rolling Rock Club

You can now belong to exclusive Rolling Rock Club for $25 a year—if you happen to be approved for membership.

The board of governors has decided to assess members $25 a year for use of this unique play spot which was created by the late R. B. Mellon for his friends. Formerly there were no membership dues.

Reason for the board's action, according to a source close to Richard K. Mellon, was:

"We felt the members would feel more at home, more independent, if they were paying a nominal charge each year."

Rolling Rock, however, always has been an incorporated club although it was built by Mr. Mellon, it was explained. It has been supervised by a board of directors and a board of governors.

R. B. Mellon was not a member of these boards and his son, Richard K. Mellon, will now be "just a regular dues-paying member."

The rambling club house is the center of a vast sporting retreat in the Allegheny foothills, with its own golf course, swimming pool and riding paths. R. K. Mellon himself is master of the fox hounds.

Tells of La Roux Handling Gun on Fatal Night

MRS. CYNTHIA SNAITH MRS. EDITH STEWART

Mrs. Snaith, Bob Soles' sister, with Mrs. Stewart, smartly-clad witness who today in the Soles trial told of how the late Mrs. Soles in hers and Mr. Soles' presence fingered a gun in the Soles home a few hours before the shooting. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

NIGHT VISIT BY STRANGE MAN TOLD IN TRIAL

Wife Hinted Suicide, Handled Revolver, Her Friends Say

A mysterious stranger was in the smart Soles home in McKeesport with La Roux Soles a few minutes before or after she was shot, according to testimony brought out today in Criminal Court, where prosperous Bob Soles is being tried on a charge of murdering his wife.

The mystery man was revealed for the first time by a McKeesport policeman, Harvey Sharp, a neighbor of the Soles.

The stranger parked his unlighted car in a nearby street, entered the home about midnight, and a half hour later departed by a back door, got into his car and drove off, according to Sharp.

Sharp explained that he, playing solitaire by a window in his home, saw all this.

BLONDE TESTIFIES

He followed to the stand an attractive young blonde, Elizabeth Baird Bope, and Mrs. Edith Stewart, who has been described as a close friend of La Roux.

Mrs. Stewart, who clashed with Prosecutor John Haggerty on cross-examination, testified that a few hours before the shooting, in the Soles home. La Roux, in the presence of her husband and Mrs. Satwart, had fingered a revolver. Mrs. Stewart testified:

"She gently lifted the revolver from his (her husband's) hand, turned it over and returned it to his hand. She did not make any remark."

LA ROUX' WARNING

Mrs. Bope, smartly dressed in a cigaret hat and tailored winter sports outfit, told of receiving a letter in which her good friend La Roux had advised her not to be "surprised" at anything she did if she failed to get "a good doctor."

Mrs. Bope, who formerly lived in McKeesport, added that she had received a letter a few days before La Roux was found dying, a bullet wound just below the heart, in the fashionable Soles home in McKeesport. She was unable to produce the letter, explaining she had torn it up.

Listening to this testimony in his defense was Robert Soles, charged with murdering his wife, who yesterday finished a gruelling six-hour examination on the stand.

OTHER THREATS TOLD

This was not the only threat the comely La Roux made to end her life, according to the witness,

DODGERS OUST MAX CAREY

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Max Carey has been released as manager, and Casey Stengel has been asked to take up the reins as pilot, the Brooklyn Dodgers announced today.

Carey is to be paid the $12,000 which his one-year contract, covering the 1934 season, is said to demand. Stengel, who served as Brooklyn coach last season, is speeding east from Glendale, Cal., at the invitation of the club. It is expected that he will accept the offer.

Carey and Stengel both are former Pirate outfield stars.

Chicago Police Head Overcome by Fumes

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Supervising Capt. Mathew Zimmer, commander of Chicago police in the absence of Commissioner James P. Allman, was overcome by carbon monoxide gas in his garage today.

Bootlegging Stirs Ire of President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt and his aides are concerned over continued activity of bootleggers and are investigating the prices of legal liquor, it was made known today.

Joseph Choate, administrator of the Federal Alcohol Control Board, has reported that imports are far below expectations.

The administration is seeking to determine if there is a shortage of supplies necessitating the high price of liquors, against which considerable complaints are being made.

A suggestion has been made for lowering the tariff on liquor imports as one method of approaching the problem.

In connection with imports, the administration is fostering rum production in the Virgin Islands and it is believed by some government officials to be entirely possible that this experiment may be extended to the United States proper if successful.

DEATH TRAILS SOLES CASE

Death cast its shadow over the Soles trial for the third time today.

Fatigued by the trial, Mrs. Lydia Bolander, 62-year-old cloakroom attendant at the trial, died from heart failure late last night after telling a friend:

"This case has got me. It's too much."

Previously one woman juror had been withdrawn from the case because of the death of her brother, and another juror continued to serve despite the death of his sister-in-law.

Sickness today caused the removal of two more tipstaves assigned to jury duty.

Holiday to Close Postoffices Here

Virtually all departments of the Downtown and branch postoffices will be closed tomorrow in observance of Washington's birthday. A mandatory order from Washington calls for suspension of handling and sorting of mail as well as banning special delivery and window service. Persons with post-office boxes will be unable to obtain mail, it was said.

Cancel Wedding License Taken Out 'in Fun'

They got their license in fun, but finding it was no joke, Stephen Tinal, 22, of 127 Cherry way, Whitaker, and Vera Smith, 21, of 703 South Braddock evenue, had their marriage paper, which they took out last week, marked "unexecuted" in the official files of the Marriage License Bureau yesterday.

Students in a downtown business school, Miss Smith and Tinal during a class conceived the idea of getting a marriage license.

Although they had never been close friends, they hurried after school to the City County building for their certificate. When their names appeared in the newspaper lists the following day unexpected complications resulted. Their parents were surprised and their friends curious. The idea no longer seemed funny.

After talkng the matter over with their parnets, the two decided to undo their dare by cancelling the license.

JOHNSON OPPOSES FLAT 30-HOUR WEEK FOR INDUSTRY

FAVORS SLASH UNDER NRA GUIDANCE

Blue Eagle Chieftain Also Seeks Raise In Wages

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The opinion that such a flat work week limit as 30 hours cannot be applied to industry was expressed to the House labor committee today by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson of the NRA.

In his first Capitol appearance as Blue Eagle chief, he said the NRA was a "much more flexible and intelligent way" to reach the end sought—more employment.

He intends to carry hour reductions further under the NRA. He said:

"I think something has got to be done very promptly to shorten hours and raise wages."

Gerard Swope, of General Electric, likewise opposed the flat 30-hour week as provided in the Connery bill.

Swope favored old age, unemployment and life insurance for workers, with both employer and employe contributing, and the worker assured of keeping his benefits on changing jobs.

Asked if the NRA had not failed to employ as many as had been anticipated, Swope said:

"The NRA has accomplished a great deal more than I had expected of it. It has done a remarkable job."

Johnson Awaits Public's Criticism of NRA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The NRA awaited bales of mail today as a response to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's call for all citizens to speak up about the recovery program.

The NRA also rushed preparations for a public hearing February 27 at which citizens will be encouraged to offer criticism. Then will follow another conference March 5 at which representatives of 500 industries will gather to voice their ideas about NRA.

ROOT OUT ABUSES

The whole idea, Johnson told a nation-wide audience last night, is to "root out abuses wherever they appear." He said:

"Any fair-minded critic presenting facts rather than conjecture—any earnest complainant—any man with a constructive suggestion—should speak at this critical hour."

But he lashed at "professional criticism" which he said has often "degenerated into scurrilous and personal appraisements" of officials.

He acknowledged that in some codes "there are many discrepancies, mistakes and outright blunders to be corrected." He contended, however, that:

"The important thing is that 3,000,000 people have been put to work, that $3,000,000,000 has been added to their purchasing power."

CAFE OWNERS ACCEPT CODE

The Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night, adopted a resolution accepting the NRA code for restaurant owners and workers, and another objecting to the exemption of any operator from the wages and hours specified by the code.

Russell H. Jennings, president of the association, explained the code, asserting that employes could retain tips; that "split shifts" might be used in restaurants until a satisfactory agreement is reached in Washington, and that employers could not make deductions from workers' salaries except for lodging and uniforms.

Another resolution, introduced by Ros Gammon, former president of the association, objecting to the installation of a restaurant in the new postoffice building, was adopted. Senators and representatives in this district will be asked to vote against an appropriation for such a restaurant.

Johnson to Launch Newspaper Code

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(Universal)—Until an administrator is selected, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson himself will administer the newspaper code, it is announced.

In all other codes divisional or deputy administrators have acted until the permanent administrator was selected. The newspaper code becomes effective next Monday.

A triplicate return sheet which Mrs. Mary Wagner, as minority inspector of the election board, Third District, Fourth Ward, placed in a cupboard of her home, disappeared she testified, in the vote fraud trial in Federal Court today. The case was given to the jury by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker at 2:10 p. m.

Mrs. Wagner, mother of five, is one of five members of the board on trial charged with falsifying returns at the 1932 congressional election.

Besides Mrs. Wagner, the defendants are Joseph W. Muldowney, brother of Congressman Muldowney, as judge of election; William Maher, majority inspector; Edward Baurhem and Francis Gunshall, clerks.

VOTE RESTORES U. S. PAY CUTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The Senate today voted to restore one-third of the Federal pay cut as of February 1, and one-third on July 1, but amendments to the independent offices appropriation bill still were pending to restore the entire 15 per cent reduction.

Decisions on veterans' compensation liberalization remained to be made.

First action on the great money measure was rejection of a committee amendment cutting in half the $1,052,700 appropriation for valuation of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

150 Strikers Back On Pottery Jobs

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Feb. 21.—One hundred and fifty of the 500 striking mouldrunners, battersout and cupballers returned to their jobs, while 350 new men were employed to supplant the others in six large potteries here and in Chester, Newell and New Cumberland, W. Va., today. President James M. Duffy, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, said.

All men who return to work will be reinstated in the brotherhood, from which the subordinate union No. 131 withdrew Saturday, Duffy said. The new men also will be received as unionists, he added.

Thieves Dig Hole in Wall To Steal Cigars

Digging a hole three feet in diameter through the wall of a building at 1404 Fifth avenue, thieves stole $2,500 worth of cigars from the Godino Cigar Company. Recovery of most of the loot was reported today by police, with the arrests of five suspects.

Those under arrest police said were Burton Cotrill, 49; his two sons, Charles and Burdett Cotrill, Emelio Mancini, 26, and Joseph Fragman, 26, all of 1011 Gibbon street. All were held for further investigation at a hearing in Morals Court.

Police arrested Charles Cotrill, they said, when they found 41 boxes of cigars in the rear of his automobile. The arrests of the others followed when police said they found many other boxes in a sub cellar of the Gibbon street house.

On the lot in the rear of the cigar company building, police said they found 91 more boxes of cigars.

PRINCE DEFIES MARRIAGE BAN

London of the count, said they knew nothing "officially" of the purpose of his visit. They had no knowledge, they added, of the whereabouts of Prince Sigvard.

Two stories were current today, neither confirmable, due to the elusiveness of the prince and young actress he is expected to marry. One said the couple eloped here from Berlin, where the Prince, known as "Herr Holger," is an assistant director in moving pictures, and that they were quartered at different hotels. Another said Miss Patzek is here with her father.

GRETNA GREEN

The prince and his blonde love, an actress with the UFA motion picture company with which he is connected in Berlin, would have another haven—Scotland's Gretna Green—should efforts to halt the marriage prove too pressing.

Three weeks' residence is necessary under Scottish law for marriage in that country, but the trip to the picturesue Gretna Green might be made after they had hidden for the required length of time in the nearby countryside.

Word that Prince Sigvard had been disowned by the Swedish royal family came in the brief Stockholm statement last night which said that "Prince Sigvard ...arrived at London recently and there made preparations to marry a woman of German nationality. The prince took this step against the expressed will of the King and the crown prince."

The prince, under the present attitude of the royal family, must surrender his title and military rank and become plain "Mr. Bernadotte" or, if he prefers to adopt the name under which he is known in German film circles, "Herr Holger."

LaGuardia Opposes CWA Demobilization

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Declaring that every city in the country faces danger of discontinuance of the CWA program, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York, today appealed to Congress for continued federal aid for the needy and municipal loans through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The New York Mayor appeared before a House banking sub-committee, which is considering a bill authorizing the RFC to make direct loans to municipalities.

'Propaganda' Drive Laid to Exchange

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking Committee, in a statement today said the New York Stock Exchange was conducting a national propaganda campaign against federal regulation and challenged it to defend "unconscionable deeds."

The veteran Senator issued his challenge to the exchange as the stock market investigating committee which he heads continued its inquiry into recent Stock Exchange operations.

MAIL CROSSING ALLEGHENIES

Army mail planes crossed the Pennsylvania mountains last night and early today for the first time since the government took the mail flying from commercial lines.

The first scheduled trips over "Hell's Stretch" early yesterday were cancelled because of bad weather. A ship took off from the City-County Airport early today, however, to carry the mail to Newark, N. J., and another made the Newark-Cleveland and return flight.

The mail officials said the Army service was running almost on schedule. The Cleveland-Pittsburgh ship late yesterday was 17 minutes late and a Columbus-Pittsburgh plane landed at Cleveland, but came on to Pittsburgh later. A plane that left for Washington without landing lights or radio was reported to have arrived safely at its destination.

Maj. Hal Bazley, director of the City-County Airport, was taken to task by the County Commissioners yesterday for having sent a telegram to President Roosevelt demanding the airport be insured adequate passenger service. Commissioner C. C. McGovern said Bazley was "just carrying out the wishes of the tenants of the airport."

BROWN REVEALS MORE AIR MAIL SECRETS

Ex-Postal Chieftain's Letters Opened, He Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—More details of how the Hoover administration made air mail contracts were heard by Senate investigators today, with former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown on the stand for the third straight day.

Before the investigating committee turned to contract awards, however, Chairman Black (Dem.), of Alabama, assured Brown of the committee's co-operation in investigating Brown's charge that three letters addressed to him had been opened between the time they were sent from Washington and he received them.

SUSPICION CONFIRMED

Brown told newsmen yesterday the New York Postmaster had confirmed his suspicion that two of the letters had been tampered with. Today, however, Brown volunteered he wanted to correct any impression from his remarks yesterday that the investigating committee had any connection with the alleged mail tampering. He explained:

"I was a little tired or a little edgy.

"I haven't the slightest idea that you (Senator Black) or any other member of the committee had anything to do with it."

Brown again denied charges that the 1930 conferences of air mail operators developed a controversy over dividing up routes. He said the disagreement was merely over "pioneer equities" in existing routes.

Questioned closely by Black, he agreed the air mail law as finally passed eliminated authority for him to consider "pioneer equities" in awarding route extensions, but said language was substituted to carry out that event by placing limitations on the bidding.

ASKS FAIRNESS

After Black had charged the operators made "claims" to certain routes and could not agree, Brown said:

"Let's be fair about this."

The language finally put in the law, Brown said, limited awards of extensions to operators who had operated on fixed daily schedules for six months over routes of 250 miles or more and fixed the rates.

Black asked:

"Mr. Brown, you're a lawyer, aren't you?"

Brown replied:

"I have been for 40 years."

Black then asked Brown if the intent of Congress obviously had not been to preserve free competitive bidding in mail contracts.

Brown did not answer directly.

He denied that the "equities" clause not included specifically in the final law had been drawn by him, and said some of the "starving" passenger operators might have helped.

STATE CHARTER FOR NEW BANK

The State Banking Department has granted a charter to the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Sharpsburg to take the place of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Sharpsburg, which has been operating on a restricted basis, according to an International News Service dispatch today.

The new bank is incorporated at $100,000 by J. C. Holzheimer, E. A. Bitner and C. C. Chalfant.

R. W. Child Asks Why Roper Finds It Necessary to Defend U. S. Inroads Upon Business

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and U. S. Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations

SECRETARY ROPER has made a speech.

Evidently he felt that it was needed.

He said that certain facts were so,

He hoped that what he said was true.

And what he said was that this administration had no desire to kill private initiative or take over the functions of private initiative.

He was in an attitude of defense.

HE DID NOT say that the Public Works Administration which was purposed to give life blood to capital industries had been followed by a Civil Works Administration which has the effect of swamping all recovery of contractors who might be interested in the construction really needed.

He did not say that it was proposed to form and finance to the limit a government corporation which might take over all our export and import trade,

He did not say that the flow of loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are increasingly followed by control of banks and of business,

He did not say that more and more the government is taking, perhaps because necessary, the function of credit extension,

HE DID NOT say that NRA has reached out to force a partnership, no matter how benevolent, upon all industry,

He did not say that aeronautic and merchant marine policy now leans, perhaps by necessity, more and more toward government management and control,

He did not say that Uncle Sam is out to engage directly or give aid to smaller government units, in the making and distribution of power even when this kills private initiative and wipes out private capital,

He did not say that Washington had become the boss farmer.

He did not say that Uncle Sam had levied on capital and commanded the release of private property.

He did not say that, whatever the necessity, the government had done more in a year to take over the ownership and the mortgage on and the control over private property and individual action, than any one would have dreamed possible on the last national election day.

REGARDLESS of these omissions by Mr. Roper he, a conservative, exposed in one moment an attitude of defense and a spirit of hopefulness.

This spirit of hopefulness is common among those of the Democratic party who begin to feel misgivings as to where we are going,

They are conscious of the presence in Washington of the "economic planners" who are really self-confessed architects of a revolution by purchase,

They are aware of the logical conclusion of this departure of ideas. There is a distinction between recovery and revolution,

Whether the United States is to be a commune or the United States, whether the taxpayers are to buy the country from themselves and turn it over to a Washington bureaucracy are hot questions—even to Democrats.

VESTA STRIKERS CAST BALLOT

Nearly 1,200 striking miners of the Vesta Coal Company, captive mine subsidiary of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, were to vote today on continuing or ending the strike pending completion of negotiations for union contracts with the captive mine owners.

Announcement of the vote was made late yesterday by P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mines Workers of America, following a conference with committees from the local unions at Denbow, Vestaburg and California, Pa.

Fagan pointed out yesterday that even though the miners vote to end the strike they will not work until the rivers, now frozen, are open. The strike, he said, was not sanctioned by the union.

FRICK, MINERS MAKE PEACE

An agreement between union miners and the H. C. Frick Coke Company was signed late yesterday by Thomas Moses, of the company, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Moses characterized the settlement as "a fair one," and Murray as a "signal victory" for the men.

Moses and Murray have negotiated for some time on an agreement, under supervision of the National Labor Board.

Although not a regular union contract, the agreement grants the checkoff on union dues, long a bone of contention in the settlement of captive mine troubles, as well as other important concessions to the men. It contains the same wage rates as the Appalachian coal code and expires with the termination of the code, March 31.

In calling attention to the fact that union men are permitted to select their own checkweighmen, Murray said:

"We consider the contract outright recognition of the union. It is signed by officers of the United Mine Workers of America, designating their official titles."

Pits affected by the agreement include four Frick mines, two National Mining Company mines and three operations of the Sharon Coal and Limestone Company, the latter two being Frick subsidi[illegible]

CWA HEAD HERE BARES FRAUD CHARGES

Prosecutions Indicated In Wake of Probe Of Corruption

Charges of perjury, fraud and forgery in the CWA were made public today as James L. Stuart, county administrator, announced the dismissal of six CWA timekeepers for alleged dishonesty.

Investigations by the personnel department, he said, disclosed conditions which caused him to confer with the Federal District Attorney here relative to the prosecution of persons who have been using CWA jobs to their own unethical advantage and the deprivation of the needy.

CHARGES REVEALED

The charges revealed today include:

1—Sale and bartering jobs by timekeepers.

2—Payment of wages to men who have done no work.

3—Assignment of men to jobs before the date on which they were officially told to report.

4—Perjury by timekeepers and foremen in swearing to false returns in timebooks.

5—Violation of CWA rules through the transfer of men from assigned jobs to others.

W. N. McDermott, investigating official, said cases of men not assigned to work drawing CWA pay checks are common. It was also said that blocks of job assignments meant for men who failed to report at the project have been distributed by timekeepers to friends and persons willing to pay for employment.

CHECK FORGERY

Workers then forged the name on the assignment slip to the pay check and drew their wages.

Timekeepers on some occasions have credited employes with hours of work which they actually spent in their homes.

Stuart cited a McKees Rocks worker who sold his identification ticket to his uncle for a $5 weekly payment. When collections ceased, the youth reported his uncle to CWA authorities for forging his check, and he was discharged.

Such conditions are widespread, Stuart said, and 25 job officials are under suspicion. McDermott declared the investigation is proceeding rapidly and a number of timekeepers and foremen are booked for release this week.

THEFT INVESTIGATION

McDermott is also probing cases wherein CWA employes have been reported as stealing property of the CWA or the community promoting the work.

Stuart announced today that 500 men working on the Cathedral of Learning were laid off at midnight and that a similar number will be taken off the work next week. This move was made necessary by exhaustion of the original CWA funds for completion of the building. Less than $32,000 remains for wages, he said.

EX-NAVAL HEAD IN AIR STOCK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The House Naval Committee learned today that Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, from 1929 to 1932, owned 500 shares of stock in the Douglas Aircraft Company on November 30, 1933.

Navy representatives already had shown that the Douglas company did $4,288,341 worth of business for the Navy between 1930-32 and eight months of 1933, making 21 per cent profit.

J. H. Kindelberger, of Santa Monica, Cal., vice president of Douglas in charge of engineering, supplied the information about Adams' holdings.

He said neither David S. Ingalls nor Edward P. Warner, Adams' assistants for aeronautics, were shown to be holding Douglas stock on November 30, 1933.

Quiz of NRA Aides Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The Senate today adopted the Nye resolution calling on NRA for the names, compensations, and present and former industrial connections of recovery administration code officials.

The resolution was approved without debate after the finance committee modified it, limiting it to officials employed in the District of Columbia.

Postmistress Brandishes Gun in County Row

Mrs. E. M. Robinson, postmistress of Large and mother of five children, brandished a double-barreled shotgun today just to show she means business, if the county tries to invade her property in a state road project. She exclaimed:

"I told them (county investigators) they'll touch my property only over my dead body and that the first man that came on my place wouldn't leave alive."

Mrs. Robinson's little frame dwelling sits beside her one-story confectionery and postoffice. State Highway Route No. 51 is being relocated. The new road would take about two-thirds of her seven-eighths of an acre, she said, and would necessitate moving her house or cutting it in two. She added:

"Two men came out and offered me an amount that was sufficient only to move my house. They made no allowance for damages."

Mrs. Robinson supports her family. Her husband is blind.

Leo Riordan, chief county investigator, yesterday informed the county law department that Mrs Robinson had been offered the price she asked but she refused it

MYSTERY STRANGERS' VISIT TOLD IN SOLES MURDER TRIAL

TRAGEDY NIGHT 'PROWLING' BARED

McKeesport Officer Injects New Angle In Murder Trial

who testified that "every so often she threatened to do something to herself," apparently because she felt "miserable" over the death of her child.

Other defense witnesses were Soles' brother, Attorney T. Frank Soles, Attorney Earl Morton, Miss Anna Free, a nurse, and a sister of the defendant, Mrs. Cynthia Snaith.

Attorney Soles and Morton testified that Park, shortly after the defendant had been arrested, had described him as a mental case.

Miss Free testigfied that as far back as 1932 Mrs. Soles had complained of her condition.

Mrs. Snaith quoted La Roux as confiding that she had lost 25 pounds on her Florida trip.

Following this testimony the defense began calling character witnesses. After this rebuttal testimony—which takes several hours —begins.

MANSFIELD CALLED

The defense continued to call character witnesses after the noon recess. Among those called were Senator W. D. Mansfield, City Controller W. B. Campbell, of McKeesport, Alderman Robert C. Calhoun, the Rev. Father Thomas R. Rea, pastor of St. Mary's of the Mount Church, Mt. Washington; B. F. Delaney, W. B. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Baird, B. Volk, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. G. P. Gamble, R. W. Junker, Harry Thompson, J. Denny O'Neil, Albert G. Brown, Mrs. Laura Learned, Daniel Marsh, R. F. Graham, Frank R. S. Kaplan, Mrs. George Beauregard, Lucas Finney and Mrs. Ellis Johnston, all of McKeesport.

When Mrs. Bope tripped from the stand, Prosecutor Haggerty and Defense Counsel W. H. Coleman clashed.

Haggerty announced to all defense witnesses that they should stay at hand for the remainder of the trial. Coleman objected.

Haggerty retorted:

"I want Martin."

(William Sibley Martin, of Teaneck, N. J., who testified of his relationship with La Roux six months before she was shot.)

Coleman shot back:

"If you wanted Martin, you should have requested him to stay . . . You have been unfair in this whole trial."

WARNED BY JUDGE

Judge Frank P. Patterson interrupted with:

"Gentlemen, gentlemen, please remember you're gentlemen!"

Judge Patterson interrupted with the suggestion that all witnesses remain until the end of the trial.

However, Martin is reported to have departed the city the day after he testified for the defense.

First witnesses today were employes of the Seaside Hotel in Atlantic City, where the Soles spent the four weeks preceding the shooting. They testified that La Roux did not appear in good health, that her husband was especially attentive to her.

Attorneys for Soles were moving swiftly today to bring to a close their defense of the McKeesport ex-Army captain who repeatedly denied from the witness stand yesterday that he shot his wife, La Roux.

The trim-looking, gray-haired real estate agent occupied the witness stand practically the entire day, maintaining an unruffled composure throughout a gruelling four-hour cross-examination at the hands of Assistant District Attorney Haggerty. Time after time, he denied the shooting, climaxing his testimony with a refutation of the alleged confession made to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

He said he was brow-beaten by Park and County Detective Peter Connors and testified that the statement bearing his signature at the end and initials on each page was "all garbled up."

He believes the suicide story now. He testified to this yesterday in answer to a question by Haggerty. Soles said:

"Yes, I've practically made up my mind after hearing things here in court."

CONFRONTED WITH GUN

It was the climax of a series of tense moments when the prosecutor jumped to his feet and grabbed Soles' .38-caliber Army pistol. Shoving it at the defendant, butt end first, Haggerty held his hand over the cylinder and commanded:

"Pull the trigger. Go on and pull it."

Soles tried and failed. He complained:

"Take your hand off it."

Haggerty shouted back:

"No, I won't take my hand off it. This is the way your wife is supposed to have pulled it. You pull it."

Soles said:

"I can't."

It was a hectic day in Criminal Court. Hundreds of men and women shoved and wheedled the tipstaves for admission. Hundreds of others jammed the corridors outside, waiting until Soles finally, at 5 o'clock, was released from the stand.

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

Quietly and with apparent confidence, the former Army captain told his story of finding his wife shot when he returned home from a tryst with blonde Rose Hardy on a Saturday night last June. He answered questions put to him by Attorney O. K. Eaton, chief of his counsel, in a rather subdued voice—told his story in straightforward manner and without a moment's hesitation.

ROBERT S. SOLES, UNDER GUARD, LEAVING MURDER TRIAL COURTROOM BETWEEN SESSIONS

He slouched a bit in the witness chair as Prosecutor Haggerty launched into a barrage of cross-questions. Only once did he appear to have difficulty in making himself clearly understood. It was a rather involved explanation of financial matters.

La Roux, in Florida, sent him a check for $600. He cashed it and wired the money to her. Three months later he gave her his own check for $500. He said it was a birthday gift and not payment on a loan from his wife.

GRILLED ABOUT BLONDE

Rose Hardy's name came up several times. Haggerty asked:

"Why were you in Rose Hardy's apartment that Saturday?"

Soles replied:

"Just to say hello."

"Were you drinking?"

"Yes, I had a couple."

"How much money did you give Rose Hardy?"

"About $150."

Further questioning revealed he did not tell his wife about it, nor did he tell her that he had not collected rent from Mrs. Hardy (whose apartment is in his McKeesport building) for more than a year.

Soles had an explanation for the statement attributed to him in the hospital when he is supposed o have said:

"Go ahead, Spike. Tell them I did it."

MISQUOTED, HE SAYS

He testified he was misquoted. What he said, he testified, was:

"Go ahead. Tell them IF I did it."

Defense counsel indicated it would take practically all of today to present the remainder of its case. Calling of a handwriting expert during the closing minutes of yesterday's session, indicated the trend of Soles' defense from this point. Several other experts were to be called, presumably to testify in support of the suicide theory.

A score or more character witnesses also will be called. Defense Counsel W. H. Coleman said he thought some of them would be called today.

Prosecutor Haggerty indicated he would require at least half a day for rebuttal testimony. One of the rebuttal witnesses will be a handwriting expert to refute testimony given yesterday by Elbridge Stein, of New York, who declared that in his opinion the suicide note was written by La Roux before she was shot.

It was not considered likely that the case would go to the jury before Saturday or late Friday at the earliest.

Author to Bare Life Of Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN,
Author of "Chickie."

("Chickie's Daughter" begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Friday.)

What has become of Chickie? Was her triumph real, and did her new love endure? Or were the shadows of her tragic past too great a menace; her marriage couldn't survive?

Does a girl ever successfully live down shame and disgrace like Chickie's?

Daily, in the fifteen years since I first met Chickie Bryce and wrote her story for the Hearst newspapers, these questions have been asked.

Where is Chickie now? Did David stand by her? What kind of mother did she make? Did her devastating experience equip her better for the great adventure of marriage?

CHICKIE THE SECOND

And where is that golden-haired daughter, Chickie the Second who must, by now, be standing on the radiant threshold where long ago we met her mother, laughing and with a high dream in her heart?

Do I know what has become of Chickie?

Chickie Bryce and her husband were never fiction characters to me. They are real people.

Often I've opened the door of Chickie's home, heard the laughing of her sons, saw the tears rush to her eyes when her girl, impudent and gay, stooped down with pert remarks and kissed her.

I knew always there was a story in Chickie's daughter—a warm, moving drama. So I've written the story of Chickie's Daughter. The girl is like Chickie when the first dream of love was in her heart. Stronger than her mother's—open-eyed and trembling self-aware—yet appealing—more than a little pathetic as these ultra-modern youngsters are. A product of this latest generation as Chickie was a product of hers.

PRECIOUS CHILD

When Chickie relives her own girlhood what torments gnaw at her heart? In the dark hours of the night how often does she drop to her knees and pray to guide past anguish and temptation this so precious child?

What must be the terror of a mother whose own life was turned into a waste and by such a little, needless chance! In that fearful tragedy, did she learn truths other women do not see? Can she bring her daughter to rich, satisfying maturity?

In this intimate life with her husband; in the secrets written on her heart as she became a mother and found vindication in her children; but above all in the crucial drama when she sees her daughter's life unfold, I found a story which gripped me as the tragedy of Chickie's girlhood. I have set it down in "Chickie's Daughter," which begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Friday.

FACTOR PICKS KIDNAPERS

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 .— John (Jake the Barber) Factor today identified Roger Touhy, Gus Schaefer and Albert Kator as three of his kidnapers. He also identified a photograph of the dead Willie Sharkey.

Factor told the same story he told during the first trial of the Touhys for the kidnaping which occurred last July and cost the stock promoter $70,000 in ransom money.

His narrative corroborated the confessions of Isaac Costner, a Touhy henchman, and W. A. Henrichsen, a former Touhy beer truck driver.

Walker Gift Statue Moved by LaGuardia

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—A statue of a wolf has been removed from its position just inside the door of City Hall to another position. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia said there was no significance in the fact—he just thought it out of place.

The bronze statue is a copy of the one in Rome portraying Romulus and Remus being suckled by the wolf. It was given to former Mayor James J. Walker by the Governor of Rome.

KINGS, PRINCES ASSEMBLE FOR ALBERT RITES

Wales Flies Own Plane To Funeral; Guard Against Violence

BRUSSELS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—A great assemblage of titled and elected leaders of nations, closely guarded against possible attempts at violence, was gathering here today for the funeral of a king.

Prince Humbert, of Italy, said some already had arrived secretly, among the first here for tomorrow's ceremonies over the body of King Albert of the Belgians.

The Kings of Denmark, Bulgaria and far-distant Siam were expected momentarily. So, too, was President Lebrun, of neighboring France.

WALES TO FLY

The Prince of Wales, representing George V of Great Britain, took off from London for Brussels in his private plane, with a squadron of bombing planes as his escort.

The exact time and place of arrival of the titled mourners and other dignitaries were not divulged.

Extra precautionary measures taken by the police are ascribed to general unrest throughout Europe. Rumor said today that a demonstration by radicals who favor establishment of a republic may be attempted Friday at the time Prince Leopold is made King Leopold III.

Such a demonstration was whispered as planned for last Monday, but it did not materialize.

The radicals form a small minority in Belgium, and police anticipate no trouble in handling any demonstration they may attempt.

SOMBER PILGRIMAGE

The somber pilgrimage to pay homage to the dead king continued through this morning when additional thousands filed slowly and reverently past the coffin in the royal palace. Scores of thousands visited the room Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Shortly after noon, the death chamber was closed to the public. Workmen began draping the interior of the lofty old Cathedral of St. Gudule with black and silver hangings and fixing a huge black velvet canopy above the steps to the choir. It is there that the coffin will rest during the funeral services.

The bells in churches throughout Belgium sounded a 15-minute funeral toll today. School teachers were ordered to give lectures on the virtues of the monarch, who died Saturday in a fall while mountain climbing.

PLANS ARRANGED

Various government groups worked simultaneously on plans for the funeral and arrangements for the enthroning of Leopold and Princess Astrid.

The Crown Prince will become the King in ceremonies Friday, beginning with the taking of the oath before both houses of parliament.

Starting at 8 o'clock in the morning, the funeral services will last four hours. Before the religious rites, 20,000 war veterans will move by the body in front of the palace. Burial will be in the crypt at suburban Laeken, site of the royal castle.

WITNESS SLAIN IN STAVISKY FRAUD CASE

Swindler Suicide Held Head of Spy Ring Linking Actresses

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The mysterious murder of one of the principal witnesses in the investigation of the $40,000,000 Stavinsky financial scandal, which rocked the French republic, was disclosed today on the heels of the charge that the swindler Stavisky was also an international spy.

The body of Albert Prince, 47-year-old counsellor of the Court of Appeals, one of the highest judicial posts in France, was discovered this morning on railroad tracks between Paris and Dijon.

The head was severed. A bloody butcher-knife and a woman's powder puff were found nearby.

DUE TO TESTIFY

Prince was to have testified today before one of the numerous commissions appointed by a parliamentary committee to take testimony in the Stavisky affair which overthrew the government of Edouard Daladier a fortnight ago and caused bloody riots in the streets of Paris.

The slaying followed by a few hours the charges in Paris afternoon papers that Stavisky, who committed suicide as police closed in on him, headed a spy ring which planned to use beautiful actresses to lure from unwary diplomats secrets which would have had a market value in certain European chancelleries.

The French secret service reports hinted broadly that Stavisky might have been a spy both for France and for the Nazis of Germany.

ACTRESSES FACE QUIZ

Two well-known European actresses, according to the Paris Midi, are to be questioned by the police. A German cabaret performer and a German pianist also are to be quizzed, the Midi stated.

One of the actresses is Rita Georg, a beautiful Austrian, who starred in a play, "Under the Rose," which Stavisky financed.

Another actress named by Paris papers is Marianne Kupfer, a Hungarian cabaret dancer, who has recently gone to London where she is booked as a dancing partner of Harry Pilcer, former Chicagoan, who gained fame as the dancing partner of the late Gaby Deslys.

Karl Bosch-Bauer, a German cabaret actor now in London, and Egen Neuman, a German pianist, are the men the police desire to question, according to the Midi.

Mercury Soars, New Cold Wave To Hit Region

Milder weather had broken the severe cold today, but only temporarily, Observer W. S. Brotzman announced.

Today and tomorrow will see winter's grip relaxed, but another frigid wave from the Northwest is due to arrive tomorrow night. The low mark last night was 13 above zero at 1 a. m. The mercury soared into the 40's this afternoon.

Storm Kills 25, Wins Slayers Stay

Associated Press.

Cold that knifed to the marrow staggered the East today as it strove to shake off paralysis caused by the "worst blizzard since '88."

At least 25 persons lay dead, struck down by the storm.

The storm gave three doomed slayers in Boston a few more hours of life. The executioner, Robert Elliott, was snowbound somewhere between New York and Boston, and so Herman Snyder, John A. Donnellon and Harry C. Bull could not be electrocuted at the appointed hour early today.

Many towns were still practically isolated, transportation systems crawled at a snail's pace in numerous spots, and whistling winds imperiled shipping. The mercury plunged toward zero, and the cold glazed the land with ice, hardening snowdrifts that impeded traffic.

No immediate relief was in sight. The frigid wave extended as far south as Florida.

New England, hardest hit by the slashing 60-mile gale, was still buried in many places under snowdrifts six to twelve feet deep. There were at least nine dead there, 10 in New York City, and six in Pennsylvania.

The storm having subsided, the steam collier Northern Sword, whilh went aground yesterday off Winthrip Head, Mass., rested easily today and contact was established with the shore. Two of her crew came ashore in one of her boats and representatitves of her New York owners and a salvage company went out to inspect the vessel.

Throughout yesterday's storm coast guardsmen stood by ready to shoot a line aboard and take off her crew of 30 in a breeches buoy if the collier began to break up.

IOWA PUBLISHER FOILS KIDNAP ATTEMPT

Suspect's Trunk Has Pittsburgh Label

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—E. P. Adler, publisher of the Davenport (Ia.) Times and head of the Lee syndicate of newspapers, was attacked by two men in a hotel corridor today in an apparent attempt at kidnaping.

Slugged twice, Adler dodged the full effect of the blows and ran down the corridor from his room, eluding his assailants.

One suspect was arrested a short time later while police were investigating when Adler saw him in the hotel and yelled:

"Get that man!"

The suspect raced away but was caught by a house detective. He told the police he and his companion had driven here from New York in a coupe. The trunk bore the initials "B. M. K., Pittsburgh."

The man captured identified himself as Charles Clyde Phillips, 29, New York, but refused to reveal the identity of his companion.

Adler recalled that he had been warned before leaving Davenport Sunday that two men were following him.

In the room next to Adler's detectives found a large trunk in which air holes had been poked. They said it was apparent the two men intended to lock Adler in the trunk and have him carried out.

'LOST' GINGER ON DUDE RANCH

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 21.—Ginger Rogers, film actress, who has been "missing" since Saturday when she avowedly left home to "go away and hide somewhere," today wired her mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers, that she was staying at a dude ranch near Kingman, Ariz., and would return immediately to resume her film work.

Miss Rogers, before she left, explained that she had been working so strenuously that a rest was imperative.

Her secrecy was so perfect, however, that when it was necessary for her studio to get in touch with her she could not be found, and at her mother's request a widespread search was begun by deputies.

A radio broadcast elicited her telegram.

FOUR FAMILIES FLEE BLAZE

Four families were forced to flee in near-zero weather and estimated loss of $9,000 was caused when a two-alarm fire damaged a two-story brick building at 2110 Broadway, Beechview, early today.

The blaze, of unknown origin, started in the cellar of the Coleman Pharmacy, spread to the adjoining Paris Beauty Shop and Lee Tailoring Shop and threatened the entire building before firemen got it under control.

The building housed five shops on the first floor and four apartments on the second floor. The alarm was sounded by F. M. Drum, one of the tenants, who noticed smoke issuing from the cellar. Others fleeing from their apartments were D. E. Wiggins, J. A. Neuhart and F. J. Fusca families.

Mrs. Neuhart and Police Lieut. James McDonough were affected by smoke when they went into the house to recover Mrs. Neuhart's diamonds, according to a report.

Youth Tries to Gag Girl, 21, On Street

North Side police today sought a youth who seized and attempted to gag Miss Anna McDonald, 21, of 3366 Perrysville avenue, last night.

The assailant, about 18 years old, fled when Miss McDonald pushed him and screamed, police said. Miss McDonald was on her way home from a drug store and had been followed by the man for two blocks. Near her home, he seized her and placed a handkerchief over her mouth. The young woman pushed the assailant and screamed. Frightened, he fled. Miss McDonald is employed as a maid at the Perrysville avenue address.

Social Work Meet Speakers Appointed

Two of the principal speakers at the Pennsylvania conference on social work, to be held in Lancaster Thursday, will be Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein, executive director of the Federation of Jewish Philanthrophies, and Prof. I. A. Abrams, superintendent of the Hebrew Institute of Pittsburgh. State Secretary of Welfare Mrs. Alice Liveright is chairman of the conference.

Downtown 'Y' Club Plans Spelling Bee

Members of the Dormitory Dinner Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., will hold an old-fashioned spelling bee tomorrow night. Each of the 10 floors has chosen a representative to take part in the match.

MRS. SOLES STRANGELY ILL AT SHORE, JURY TOLD

TRIP WITH BOB RELATED IN TESTIMONY

Following is the question and answer story of the latest chapter of the Soles murder trial.

Today's first witness was F. A. McNellis, clerk of Atlantic City's Seaside Hotel, where La Roux and Bob Soles spent several weeks just before the shooting. Eaton examined him.

Q.—Did you meet La Roux Soles last summer?

A.—I did.

Q.—How long were they in Atlantic City?

A.—From May 14 to June 16.

Q.—Did you see and talk with La Roux and Bob Soles?

A.—Quite frequently.

Q.—Do you know of any occasion when Soles was absent for two or three days?

A.—I do.

Q.—What was Mrs. Soles' condition, in your opinion?

A.—Very poor.

Q.—How did this manifest itself?

A.—She appeared run down. Two or three times I spoke to her and she'd sit there in the lobby and wouldn't recognize me.

Q.—What was the appearance of her face?

A.—Drawn out.

Q.—What was Mr. Soles' conduct towards her?

A.—They were inseparable.

CROSS-EXAMINED

Haggerty cross-examined.

Q.—How many other guests were there at the hotel?

A.—Between 50 and 100.

Q.—And could you tell us as much about the other guests?

A.—No, sir, but I had conversations with Mrs. Soles.

A.—Yes, sir.

The room clerk was then followed by other hotel employes who gave virtually the same testimony. They were Harry Welsh, head waiter, and Laura Dougherty, housekeeper.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Bope, of Detroit, called by Eaton, said she was raised in McKeesport and Versailles and was a friend of La Roux Soles. Mrs. Bope said they were the closest friends until she was married and moved to Detroit.

Q.—How often did you hear from Mrs. Soles?

A.—During the last few years I was rather busy and corresponded about every 3 or 4 months.

Q.—Now, Mrs. Bope, where did you last see Mrs. Soles?

A.—I saw her when Kenneth was born and after the child had died.

Q.—How was she?

A.—She was very broken hearted.

Q.—Did you receive a letter from Mrs. Soles while she was in Atlantic City?

A.—Yes. She mentioned not to be surprised at anything she did.

SIDE-BAR CONFERENCE

Haggerty asked for a side-bar offer, during which Judge Patterson questioned Mrs. Bope.

Eaton resumed the questioning.

Q.—When was the letter written?

A.—A week or 10 days before I came to McKeesport. It was in answer to one of mine in which I told her I would like to have her visit me in Detroit.

Q.—Do you have that letter now?

A.—I am terribly sorry that I don't.

Q.—Why?

A.—Because I destroyed a lot of letters.

Q.—Are you able to repeat direct portions dealing with Mrs. Soles? What did she say?

A.—She said "I am going to McKeesport. (Mrs. Soles was in Atlantic City.) Do not be surprised at anything I might do."

Q.—What is the rest?

A.—She said she did not want me to be surprised at what she did if she could not find a doctor who would give her relief.

Q.—Do you recall what else was said in the letter?

A.—She told me I was fortunate to have my little daughter. She told of buying some baby clothes for John Lynch, whose wife was going to become a mother.

Q.—When you came to McKeesport, did you mention the letter to members of the family?

A.—Yes.

REPLIED TO LA ROUX

Haggerty cross-examined the witness. She testified that while she lived in Detroit, her husband resided at Gary, Ind., and visited here every two or three weeks.

Q.—Mrs. Soles wrote to you from Atlantic City?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you reply to that letter?

A.—To McKeesport.

Q.—Did you know she had been in Florida all that winter?

A.—Yes.

Q.—When was the last time prior to receiving the letter from Atlantic City that you had heard from Mrs. Soles?

A.—Around Christmas time in 1932.

Q.—From McKeesport?

A.—No, from Florida.

Q.—Have you got that letter?

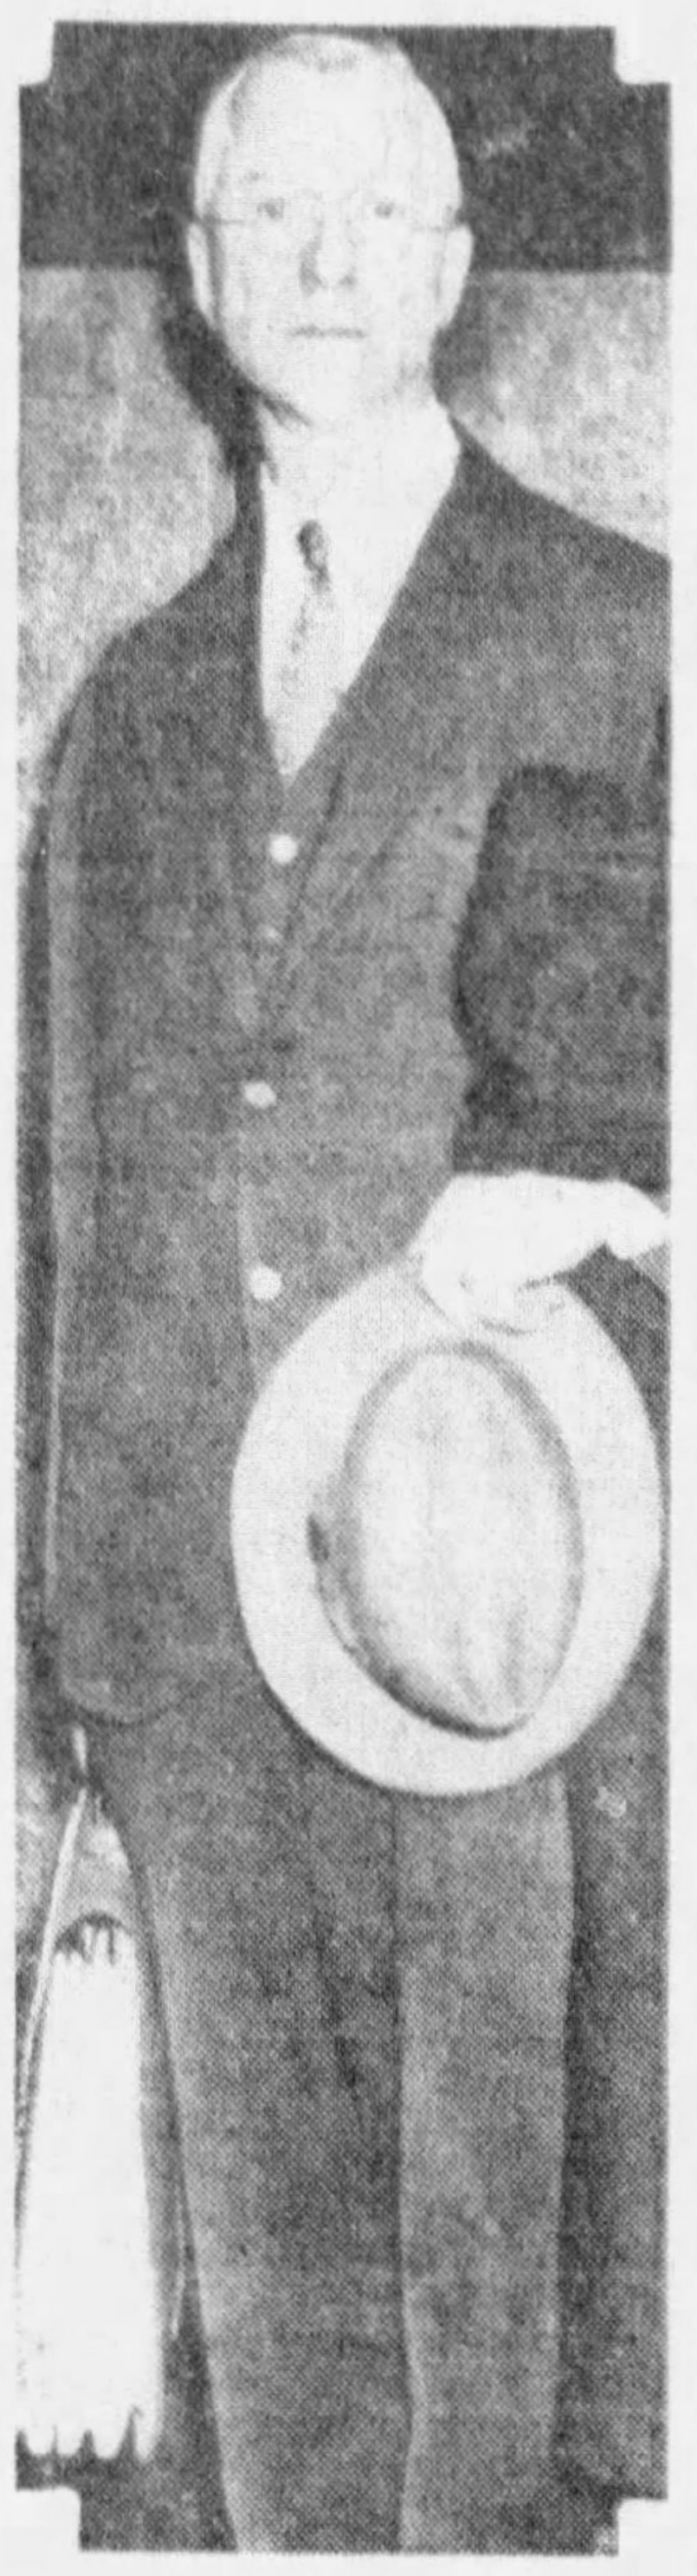
A.—No.

Q.—You've lost all letters?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you do with that particular letter from Atlantic City?

Pen Expert



ELBRIDGE W. STEIN

Mr. Stein, the noted handwriting expert, pictured after he had testified that in his opinion Mrs. Soles could not have written the "suicide note" after she had been shot. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

A.—I expect it was destroyed with other letters I had in my desk.

Q.—Did you write to Mr. Lynch and tell him about what his daughter had written?

A.—No, I didn't.

Q.—Was that the first time she made such references?

A.—No, one time in June, 1932, she spoke that way in McKeesport. She said some days she felt well and other days very miserable.

Q.—What would you be talking about when she made the remarks?

A.—Well, about the baby.

Q.—What does your brother do in McKeesport?

A.—He is cashier at the bank.

Coleman objected to questioning the witness regarding her brother.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Bope's testimony, Haggerty arose with a request to the court that all out-of-town witnesses brought in by the defense be held over until they could be served with subpenas.

W. H. Coleman, of defense counsel, objected. He said:

"I think it very unfair for Mr. Haggerty to assume this attitude . . ."

Haggerty shouted:

"No, it's not unfair. We can't subpena them out of the state and when they're here, we want them to stay."

Coleman voiced another objection and Haggerty snorted:

"Unfair—where's Martin. We want Martin, where is he?"

Judge Patterson intervened:

"Gentlemen, gentlemen, please remember you're gentlemen. The court feels that they should remain until the conclusion of the trial if one side or the other wishes them to remain. There is no compulsion, however, that they remain unless subpenaed by the side wishing them to remain."

Col. Harrison Cook, manager of the Seaside Hotel, was the next witness called. Eaton questioned:

Q.—You came here at my request, did you, Mr. Cook?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You expect me to pay your expenses?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What was Mrs. Soles' condition as apparent to you . . . as to her physical and mental condition?

OBJECTION UPHELD

Haggerty objected that the witness was not qualified to express an opinion. Judge Patterson sustained him.

Q.—Did she ever talk to you about her health?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever observe any lack of attention of Mr. Soles towards his wife?

A.—He was always very attentive.

Haggerty did not cross-examine. Judge Patterson then ruled that a lay witness was not competent to express an opinion as to a person's health and to relieve the record, suggested that such witnesses not be called for that purpose.

Harvey Sharp, McKeesport policeman, was the next witness called. Eaton questioned:

Q.—Where is your house in reference to the Soles' house in Jenny Lind street?

A.—Forty feet directly in back.

Q.—Do you remember the Sunday night preceding the death of Mrs. Soles?

A.—I do.

Q.—Where were you?

A.—At home.

Q.—How late were you up?

The witness testified that he was up late—until about 1:30 a. m., playing solitaire near a dining room window which looked directly out upon the Soles home.

Q.—Was there anything that attracted your attention that night?

A.—Yes, I saw a car going down Walnut street. What drew my attention to it was that it had no lights. I saw a man getting out and walking up towards Jenny Lind street.

Q.—What time was that?

A.—Around 12 o'clock.

TELLS OF AUTO

He explained that it was a strange car and a strange man. He testified it was not Soles.

Q.—Did you subsequently see that man?

A.—I saw him about half an hour later coming out of the Soles home through the back door. My attention was drawn by the sound of the door shutting and I say him as he went across the back porch and got back into the car.

Q.—Where did that car go?

A.—Down Pope alley, away from the Soles house.

Haggerty cross-examined.

Q.—You're a policeman in the city of McKeesport, Mr. Sharp?

A.—I am.

Q.—How long have you been a policeman?

A.—Five years.

Q.—And you saw a mysterious car and a man coming out of the back door of the Soles house. What did you do about it?

A.—Nothing. I wouldn't have any business doing anything.

Q.—You're a policeman and you wouldn't have any business. Did you report what you had seen to anybody?

A.—No.

Q.—Do you know the county detectives (Haggerty enumerated those from the McKeesport district).

The witness knew one.

Q.—Did you say anything about it to him?

A.—No.

Q.—And you're a policeman?

A.—Yes.

MAID TESTIFIES

Iva Johnson, colored maid, subpenaed by the state, was the next witness called by Eaton.

Q.—When did you go to work in the Soles home?

A.—About April 28 or 29.

Q.—Were you there when a call came to the Soles home from Florida?

A.—Yes, I was in the kitchen, and as I came from the hall door I noticed Mr. Soles talking in a loud voice. I heard him say, 'If you ever molest Mrs. Soles or Mr. Lynch I'll put you so far in jail you'll never get out.' Then I went on back to the bathroom, where I could still hear him talking in a loud voice, but I couldn't hear what he said.

Then I went back to the bathroom when I could still hear him say "Maid, I don't want to be called to the telephone again today."

Q.—Was there another call?

A.—Yes, the phone rang and the operator said, "Florida calling, will you accept the call?" and I told her "No." After a while the phone rang again and the operator said Florida was calling again.

Q.—Did you accept this call?

A.—Yes, but I remembered what Mr. Soles had told me and I didn't call him.

Q.—Do you know anything about a letter being received by Mrs. Soles in which she was informed of the death of that child (her brother's)?

A.—Yes.

DRESS FOR BABY

She testified that Mrs. Soles had bought a little dress for her brother's baby, and when she heard of the death she was "all upset."

The jury was instructed to disregard the testimony about Mrs. Soles being "upset" on objection of Haggerty.

Q.—Did Mrs. Soles say anything to you about the death of the child?

A.—Yes, she said, "It seemed like all children born into our family die."

Q.—Did she ever talk to you about your child (the maid's child died, too)?

A.—Yes, that Sunday after I had finished the dishes she talked to me. She said, "Iva, he's better off dead. If he had been sick all his life and suffering, he's better off dead."

Haggerty cross-examined:

Q.—That second call from Florida came from John Lynch, didn't it?

A.—I don't know. He said it was John Lynch.

Q.—Well, you don't know who was calling then?

A.—No, I don't.

Q.—Why didn't you tell me about this before?

A.—It just came to my knowledge about the call. I remembered answering it after I heard about the telephone company record telling about the call.

RETURNS TO STAND

Mrs. Johnson continued on the stand after a short recess.

Q.—What was Mrs. Soles doing when you went in that Sunday afternoon?

A.—Writing at a desk.

Q.—What did she do as you entered?

A.—She slipped a piece of paper under a blotter and then sat in an armchair.

Q.—Did you talk to her?

A.—No.

Haggerty took the witness for cross-examination.

Q.—You are still employed as a maid in the Soles home?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What is the second job you have?

A.—Taking property inventory.

Q.—Who got you that job?

A.—I got it by taking an examination in Pittsburgh.

Q.—Who got you that job?

A.—I applied for it at a relief office.

Attorney Earl Morton was called by Eaton. He testified knowing the Soles family for 30 years.

Q.—Were you at the District

FRIEND TESTIFIES TO MYSTERY WARNING OF LA ROUX

SURPRISE ACT HINTED IN LETTER

Attorney's office on the afternoon Soles was first questioned?

A.—I was.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Park?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Mr. Park say anything about the defendant being a mental case?

A.—Yes. He said Bob was making it hard for himself. He seemed to be a mental case, was what he said.

EXAMINATION FOR SOLES?

Haggerty started the cross-examination.

Q.—Didn't Mr. Park suggest you should have an examination for Soles as to his mental condition?

A.—He did.

T. Frank Soles, a brother of the defendant, then was called by Mr. Eaton.

Q.—Were you in the District Attorney's office when the defendant was questioned the first day?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Mr. Park say to you that your brother was plainly a mental case?

A.—He did.

Q.—Did you talk to Mr. Connors?

A.—In 10 or 15 minutes later. I asked him how he found my brother and he said it seemed as if he was a mental case.

Q.—Didn't he suggest that you have Soles examined?

A.—No, not to my knowledge.

Q.—Then you never bothered about his mentality?

A.—A doctor, not a specialist, visited him at the jail.

Q.—Don't you recall that Mr. Park suggested an examination?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—You don't recall about Park relating how Soles spoke of "water over the dam" and similar remarks?

A.—I do not recall.

NURSE CALLED

Eaton called Miss Anna Free, a registered nurse, who testified she had been employed by the Soles family. She testified that the last time she saw Mrs. Sales was in December, 1932.

Q.—How long did you talk with her?

A.—About one hour. She called me for a confidential talk.

Q.—Did she discuss her condition?

A.—She did. She said it seemed as if she could not get better. She said she planned to go to Florida and I suggested if she stayed home that I would arrange to stay with her.

Haggerty sought to have the witness identify the nature of Mrs. Soles' ailment. Miss Free said they had not mentioned it by name in the conversation because it was understood between them. She did not examine Mrs. Soles then, she said.

Q.—You were employed by the Soles for years?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you ever employed at the home of Rose Hardy?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever visit there?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How long at a time?

A.—Two or three days at a time.

Mrs. Cynthia Snaith, of Mt. Lebanon, a sister of the defendant, was questioned by Eaton regarding the Florida trip. She testified briefly as to Mrs. Soles telling her of losing 25 to 30 pounds in weight.

Mrs. Edith Stewart, of Mt. Lebanon, then was called. She testified to being a close friend of La Roux Soles for six years. Eaton questioned:

Q.—Did you talk to La Roux this particular Sunday afternoon?

A.—I talked to her over the phone.

Q.—As a result of that conversation, you visited the Soles home?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What time did you reach there?

A.—It was close to a quarter of six. I stayed there until about a quarter of nine.

DISCUSSED SHORE TRIP

Testifying to how she was met at the door by Mrs. Soles and of going to the living room, Mrs. Stewart said the Atlantic City trip was discussed.

Q.—What did she tell you?

A.—She said she wanted me to know it was the happiest time of her life. She said Bob did everything to make her happy.

Q.—Did she make any reference to eating something at York that did not agree with her?

A.—Yes.

Testifying that Soles came into the house about 15 or 20 minutes after her arrival, Mrs. Stewart's testimony continued:

Q.—What happened when Mr. Soles came in?

A.—He greeted me and Mrs. Soles asked him if he had a little whisky that might relieve her pains. We went into the front bedroom.

Q.—What was discussed while in the bedroom?

A.—The conversation brought about a discussion on various robberies because my home had been robbed in Miami. I remarked I only carried only $1 or $2. Mr. Soles said he didn't feel that way. I told him he was foolish. He said no—that he had a permit to carry a gun. He went to the dresser and got a revolver from the lower drawer. Then he got a second one, encased in a sock, from the second drawer from the bottom.

Q.—I show you a man's sock. Does it bring anything back to your mind?

A.—It looks like the one that was on the revolver.

Q.—What did he do with that one?

DISPLAYS REVOLVER

A.—He took it out of the sock. Then he showed me a box of cartridges.

Q.—Did he do anything to show you it was not loaded?

A.—I remarked that I was afraid. He said there was nothing to fear and opened the gun to show there was nothing in it.

Q.—Where was Mrs. Soles?

A.—Mrs. Soles was sitting on the side of the bed next to the dresser.

Q.—What did she do?

A.—She got up and stood near him. She gently lifted the revolver off his hand, turned it over and returned it to his hand. She did not make any remark.

Q.—What followed?

A.—Mr. Soles got out some old photographs and we laughed and chatted about them.

Q.—Did Mrs. Soles take part?

A.—She did not pay much attention.

Questioned about whether H. B. Lynch had spoken to her when he entered the house, Mrs. Stuart said he had stopped at the door a few minutes. When she was leaving the house, Mr. Lynch and Dr. Richey were on the front porch. She greeted them and then drove home.

CLOSEST FRIEND

Haggerty took up the cross examination.

Q.—You were Mrs. Soles closest friend?

A.—I beileve so.

Q.—Did she ever remark to you of any intention to take her life?

A.—Not in those words. She had said that life wasn't worth living.

Q.—When you were questioned by Mr. Connors and the detectives, why didn't you mention about Mrs. Soles handling the revolver?

A.—I answered all the questions they asked.

Haggerty read the detectives' report, citing that she told them that she had a good time at the Soles home. The report further stated that Mrs. Stewart declined to answer further questions unless an attorney was present. Returning to the testimony that Mrs. Soles handled the gun, Haggerty asked:

Q.—Why didn't you tell that?

A.—Mr. Connors asked me if I thought it was a suicide case and I said yes.

'SCOLDS' HAGGERTY

Mrs. Stewart flared up several times under cross examination. At one point she shook her finger at her questioner, Haggerty. She said:

"He (Park) asked me if I believed Mrs. Soles was a suicide case and I told him I believed it with all my heart."

Q.—You went up to see Mrs. Soles on Sunday afternoon?

A.—I did.

Q.—And she complained that something she ate at Atlantic City made her feel uncomfortable?

A.—Yes, she did.

Q.—Did you know, Mrs. Stewart, that she had left Atlantic City three or four days before?

A.—I only knew she just returned the night before.

Q.—When you left that evening, she was feeling well, wasn't she?

A.—I wouldn't say she was feeling well.

THE UNENDING CROWD SEEKING ADMITTANCE TO THE SCENE OF THE SOLES DRAMA

"Come Back, Dear Customer, All is Forgiven"

Out in Milwaukee, where they make pretty good beer, some thirty-five merchants have just sent their old customers notice that, regardless of the state of their accounts, all is forgiven and won't they please come back.—(Press, Feb. 8).

Without boasting, we may recall that in the early months of last year we did that very thing—refinanced and rebudgeted charge accounts that were in arrears—and gave to those who were returning to work an immediate opportunity to acquire the new clothing they so much needed. Hundreds who were called back to work for the first time in years, eagerly accepted our invitation to come in and replenish—even though they hadn't a copper to lay out at the time.

We did this for two reasons: first, because we wanted to do more than our share to aid recovery; second, because it was good business to do so. (Made staunchest of friends). Then we went a step further and said,

"IF YOU HAVE A JOB, USE IT INSTEAD OF MONEY"

Money in those days was a scarce article—and jobs were just beginning to return. Instead of waiting for those men and women to save up enough for the new clothes they needed, we simply opened the gate and said: "Come and get it. Your job is your endorsement—we'll take a chance on your honesty—we'll open a charge for you immediately, and you can pay us back in dribs and drabs.

Well, did the public go for that!

And now, for the same reason as before, Harris' repeat that offer to those going back to work on the CWA and other jobs. Just tell us where you are working—and we'll see that your wardrobe is replenished right now.

Each year Turkey and Greece ship us thousands of bales of fine tobaccos—

But why send 4,000 miles for tobacco?

. . . because spicy, aromatic Turkish is the best seasoning there is for a cigarette.

Chesterfield uses Turkish tobacco—from Samsoun, Smyrna, Cavalla and Xanthi.

Then it blends and cross-blends them with various kinds of choice home-grown tobaccos in the right balance to give you a cigarette that's milder, a cigarette that tastes better.

A leaf of Turkish tobacco—smaller than the palm of your hand—800 or more to the pound. There are many thousands of these leaves in each of these bales below, ready for shipment to America.

MRS. SOLES' STRANGE ILLNESS, WARNING TOLD IN TESTIMONY

A.—She had a pain in her stomach.

Q.—Didn't you tell Mr. Connors (county detective) you spent a delightful day there?

A.—Yes, and I'll tell you something else I told him. I told him I had known Mrs. Soles as a sick woman for six years.

Q.—Go ahead, Mrs. Stewart, and remember some more.

The witness recalled a conversation she had had with Mrs. Soles relative to a visit she had made to a doctor in Miami. Haggerty asked:

Q.—Was it that doctor from Miami who has testified here?

A.—No it wasn't.

Q.—Did she tell you what was wrong?

A.—No, she didn't.

Q.—And so Mrs. Stewart, you figured that Mrs. Soles turning a gun over in her hands was not important enough to tell the county detectives.

A.—Yes and I wanted an attorney with me before I answered any more of their questions.

CHARACTER WITNESSES

Attorney W. H. Coleman arose and announced to the court he would examine the witnesses henceforth. He began calling character witnesses. Twelve men, including two women, were called up until the noon recess. Among them was Mayor George H. Lysle of McKeesport, and two ministers. Mayor Lysle testified he had known Soles all his life and that his reputation was "good." The ministers, Dr. T. R. Spaugy, former pastor, and Dr. T. R. Courtice, present pastor of the First M. E. Church of McKeesport, were cross-examined by Haggerty, He asked:

"Do you consider a man who lays around the house drunk to have a good reputation?"

Both answered they had never heard of that except as just "talk" and "rumors."

Other character witnesses called included Earl Morton, John Malone, John McClane, W. S. Kearney, Paul W. Mack, Mrs. D. H. Reed and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wardwell, of McKeesport, and V. E. Griffin, of Glassport.

SOLES' OWN TESTIMONY

Soles, on the stand during most of yesterday, denied that he had ever said to Miss Brown, a nurse in the hospital, "Let her die," as testified by Miss Brown.

In answer to a question by Attorney Eaton, concerning his arrest, Soles answered:

"I told them (District Attorney Park and County Detective Connors) substantially what I have said here . . . Park called me a damn liar and shook his fist at me and he didn't believe a word I said and said that he wanted a statement."

After a five-hour grilling and a night in jail he was again grilled.

Q.—What did you tell them?

A.—I was getting confused somewhat. They were firing a lot of questions at me. They asked how she was shot and how she was put in bed and how she wrote the note. Connors held a .45 caliber gun and said, "This is the gun you shot your wife with," and I kept telling him then, "I swear to God I have not shot my wife." Mr. Connors had a nice story arranged for me, how I went in and found my wife smoking and had a bad argument with her about another woman and I said I never had had an argument with my wife over another woman in my life. Park said, "You'll make a statement we want or we will send you to jail for murder," and I said, "All right, that's all I can do."

TOLD OF AFFAIR

He identified his signature to the confession, which he said Park had dictated.

Under cross-examination by Prosecutor Haggerty, Soles told of his wife confessing her indiscretion with Martin, resulting in both going to a doctor. It was the day Martin's letter, asking a loan, arrived.

After Soles had told of being in Rose Hardy's apartment the night of the shooting, Haggerty had hi madmit that had not collected rent from Mrs. Hardy for over a year.

Soles gave a version of his statement to his wife in the hospital.

Witnesses had testified he had said, "go ahead and tell them I did it." He insisted he had said, "tell them if I did it."

Picking up Mrs. Soles' jewel box, Haggerty asked why it had been given to Mrs. Hardy, and Soles insisted he had only placed it with her for sofe keeping, until he could decide what to do with it.

SUICIDE TALK RECALLED

Haggerty continued the cross-examination.

Q.—In a statement you gave the Coroner did you tell him you thought it was suicide?.

A.—I told him it looked peculiar to me, but apparently it was suicide.

Q.—Why did you wait so long to take out letters of administration for her will?

A.—We were waiting to see if there was another will.

Q.—In the statement you gave the Coroner you were trying to make your wife out a suicide, weren't you?

A.—No. I was simply answering questions.

Q.—At that time you thought she had committed suicide?

A.—I was fairly convinced that it was suicide but I thought somebody might have been in that room and had knowledge of it.

Q.—In Park's office (before he signed a confession) didn't you call Park over to a corner and want to whisper and didn't he tell you to say it openly?

A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you tell Park about this blackmail and this Martin?

A.—I told Park about Martin and asked him as a gentleman not to bring that out.

GRILLED ON CONFESSION

Haggerty then took up detail for detail the notes made by Park and the signed confession itself. Soles admitted the comparatively harmless facts, denied the murder theory.

To repeated questions about the alleged confession and Park's notes in his own handwriting, Soles replied several times:

"I didn't admit shooting my wife at any time."

Haggerty questioned him:

Q.—You mean to tell this court and jury that Mr. Park, the District Attorney of Allegheny County, got confused about the fact that you killed your wife?

A.—He certainly did get confused.

Haggerty jumped to his feet. Eaton, remaining seated across the table, interposed an objection. To Haggerty he said:

"That's enough."

Judge Patterson interrupted and sustained Eaton's objection.

Haggerty resumed:

Q.—Are you satisfied today that your wife committed suicide, Mr. Soles?

A.—Yes, I've practically made up my mind after hearing things here in court.

FAILS TO PULL TRIGGER

Haggerty was on his feet again. He grabbed up Soles' Army pistol and shoved it at Soles, butt end first, his hand over the cylinder.

He commanded:

"Pull that trigger yourself. Go ahead and pull it."

Soles grasped the handle. He said:

"Take your hand off it."

Haggerty shot back:

"No, I won't take my hand off it. This is the way your wife is supposed to have pulled it. You pull it."

Soles said:

"I can't."

DISPUTES DEATH NOTE

Elbridge Stein, handwriting expert of New York, was the next witness called by the defense. He testified that in his opinion, La-Roux could not have written the suicide note after she had been shot. He said he based his opinion on reports of the doctors' examinations.

Told that Dr. Harvey (friend of the Soles) had testified she could have written the note, Stein declared he "didn't think much of Dr. Harvey's testimony."

He testified:

"There is no evidence of uncertainty or hesitancy in the writing. It was written continuously. There is no appreciable stop between words. When finished, it was carefully blotted."

Haggerty asked:

Q.—Could you tell whether it (the note) was written by a neurotic?

A.—No.

Q.—But you could tell whether the writer was suffering from a gunshot wound?

A.—Yes.

Sharp Grilling Fails to Shake Soles on Stand

Through six hours of rugged, rapid-fire questioning, Robert S. Soles remained comparatively unperturbed yesterday—the seventh day of his trial for the death of La Roux Soles.

Rarely, and only during cross-examination by Prosecutor John Haggerty, he leaned forward in the witness chair to snap back a reply. During the greater part of the grilling he sat at ease, answering without hesitation. Frequently a flash of amusement crossed the McKeesporter's face.

In stressing a reply in the negative, Soles jerked his head down while his questioner was still speaking and up sharply with his answer. He wore a bluish gray suit with a matching tie, and the habitual white breast-pocket handkerchief.

Following the 3 p. m. recess yesterday, Prosecutor Haggerty resumed his cross-examination of Soles before the court stenographer returned. He stopped and several moments elapsed before taking of testimony continued.

Court did not adjourn until 5:35 p. m., setting a new record for the trial to date. The latest adjournment previously had been at 4:30 p. m.

All available seats in the courtroom were occupied and a crowd of approximately 300 persons, seeking entrance, had gathered in the adjoining corridor by the time the call to order was sounded at 9:30 a .m.

Spectators continued to swarm the courthouse throughout the day, dispersing only when hope of admittance waned. The crowd, the greatest during the trial, surged forward a number of times, storming the door, while more than 100 persons packed into the small entrance corner of the court room — a space of about 10 by 20 feet. The rear entrance of the room, locked until yesterday, was opened to permit witnesses and newspapermen to leave during the proceedings.

Conflict — Prosecutor Haggerty approaching witness stand during a lull in Soles' testimony and turning the blood-stained portion of La Roux' silk slip toward the jury; Defense Attorney Eaton darting forward and turning it away again.

Bets are now being offered on the verdict among the corridor gang, most often heard wager being "a five-dollar hat."

Larynx Injuries Gets Singer $5,300

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—A circuit court jury values a potential operatic career at $5,300.

That amount was awarded yesterday to Max Tieger, 24, of Philadelphia, against Samuel Lundy, also of Philadelphia. Tieger claimed that as a result of an auto accident his larynx was badly injured which cut short his career as a basso singer in the Philadelphia Civic Opera Company.

VETS TO HEAR APPEALS FOR DEFENSE

Seven radio broadcasts today and a preparedness banquet tomorrow night for the United American Veterans' Association will close observances here of National Defense Week.

Mrs. P. J. Logue

Mrs. P. J. Logue, commander of Kathryn Mae Joyce Post No. 509, American Legion Nurses' Corps, will represent her organization at the veterans' banquet to be held in the Elks Club.

Maj. Harold F. Bucher, past president of the Second Division Association, will be a guest of honor.

Entertainment, in addition to several speakers, will include the McCloskey sisters, Joseph La Roche and other radio and stage stars.

Radio speakers today include Capt. James O. Corbett, KQV, 1:30 p. m.; Capt. William W. Hague, WCAE, 4 p. m.; Lieut. Col. Walter H. Kelly, WWSW, 4 p. m.; Capt. Charles H. Fleming, WJAS, 5:15 p. m., and Capt. Corbett, KDKA, 6:02 p. m.

Capt. Corbett will be interviewed by the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter over stations WCAE and WJAS at 2:15 p. m.

PEER TO SPEAK AGAINST NAZIS

Nazi atrocities will be attacked in two addresses to be given here Friday by Lord Marley, vice chairman of the British House of Lords and chairman of the International Committee for the Relief of Victims of German Fascism.

Lord Marley will be guest of honor at a luncheon in Kaufmann's at noon and will speak in the evening at a mass meeting in Taylor Allderdice High School.

Money raised by Lord Marley on his tour of America will be spent by the American Committee Against Fascist Oppression in Germany.

The Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, is chairman of the Pittsburgh committee arranging the Marley visit here. Lord Marley has asserted:

"The atrocities committed against innocent civilians are being continued and, in many cases, are getting worse. But it has been found possible to prevent the news of these atrocities from spreading."

'JAY-WALKERS' HERE WARNED

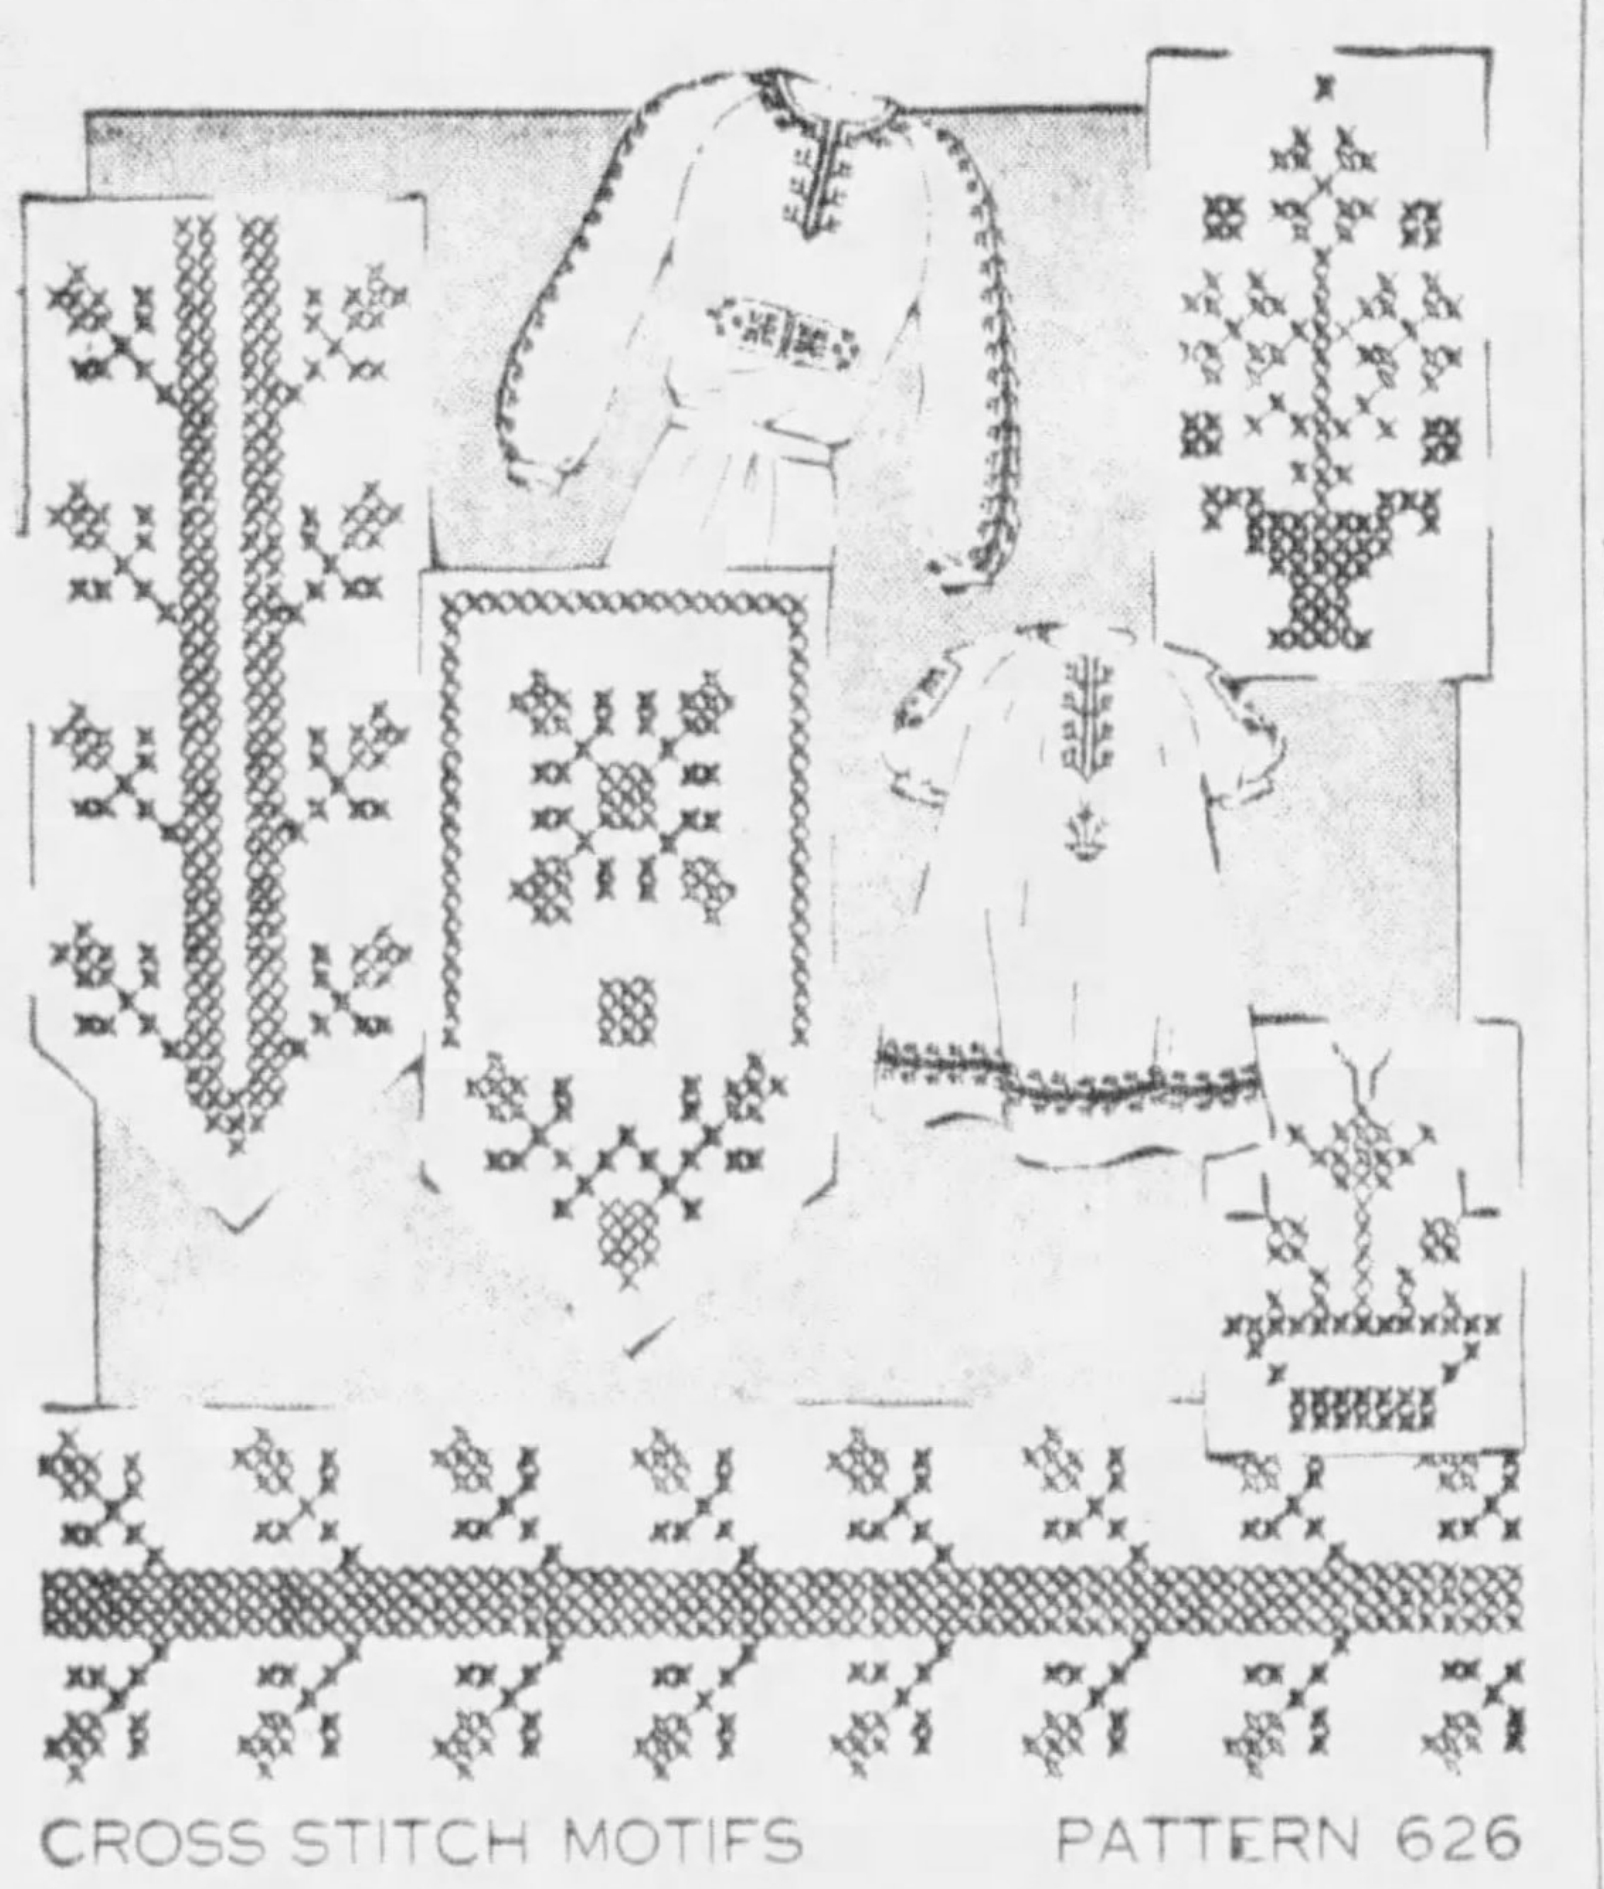
A vigorous drive against "jay-walkers" was threatened today by Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre as a result of 14 auto fatalities in January. Thirteen of the victims were pedestrians.

Last month's deaths totaled more than twice the number of fatalities of the same month last year.

McIntyre said:

"A reduction in traffic accidents this year depends on the development of proper pedestrian walking habits. The city traffic law prohibits "jay-walking" and unless pedestrians voluntarily co-operate in saving their own lives, an intensive enforcement drive must be made."

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



Peasant Embroidery is Colorful

Peasant designs are always a favorite whether the article to be decorated is a dress of child or grown-up or household linens. The simplicity of the embroidery and the opportunity for bright color are two of its outstanding features. The border and motifs in this pattern lend themselves to the peasant type of blouse or dress as well as to other styles.

Pattern 626 contains a transfer of 1¾ yards of the wider banding, ⅝ yard of the narrower banding, one neck motif and two each of the sleeve motifs and each of the baskets; detailed directions for doing the embroidery and a number of color schemes.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Flush Poisons and Acid From Kidneys

Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent. The right and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic right from Haarlem in Holland.

Night Club Owner's Divorce Case Delayed

The divorce case of Mary Falco Lazaro, 26, of 332 Hale street, against John N. Lazaro, 49, night club owner, has been postponed by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Judge Marshall refused to hear Mrs. Lazaro's charges of cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities yesterday because her husband's attorney, W. H. Colvin, did not receive permission from the court to withdraw his appearance in the case.

Moyer, Aide View New Incinerator

Director of Public Health Ray P. Moyer and his superintendent-engineer of sanitation, George W. Schusler, were in Carney, N. J., today, inspecting a new type of incinerator.

The incinerator, developed by the Seaboard Coal and Coke Company, a subsidiary of the Koppers Company, is of steel, water-jacketed, and in burning rubbish produces a gas which may be used for heating, according to Moyer.

Hiking Brothers, 12 and 10, Found

Two young brothers were safe today at their home, 406 California avenue, Avalon, after a brief jaunt into the outside world. They are Murray and Paul Peeden, 12 and 10.

The boys disappeared Sunday and hitch-hiked to their grandparents' farm in Cooperstown, Pa., where they were found yesterday by their father, M. E. Peeden. He headed for Cooperstown on a "hunch" after asking State Police to be on the lookout for the boys.

Expert Explains Care of Flowers

Although cooling methods are generally thought of in connection with keeping flowers fresh, heat is also important, according to Miss Anne Wertsner, professor in floriculture, who spoke before the western division of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania yesterday.

Miss Wertsner in her talk on "The Care and Arrangement of Cut Flowers" in Kaufmann's Auditorium, said that if the stem of a cut flower is seared, either over a flame or by holding it horibontally in hot water, and the flower is then submerged in cold water for a few hours, it will remain fresh for some time.

WOMEN FIGHT WARD HOME ON FORBES ST.

A group of 100 women, advocates of the purchase of the Eudes Institute Building on Lincoln avenue for a juvenile detention home and court, yesterday faced the County Commissioners with a protest against the proposal to build a Juvenile Court home on the present Forbes street site.

Mrs. Mary T. Horan, president of the Western Pennsylvania Catholic Council of Women, spokesman for the women, said they represented 10,000 taxpayers.

PROTESTS PWA LOAN

Pointing out that the women believed that the children should have suitable quarters, with comforts and necessities of life, she protested the $350,000 Public Works Administration loan which the Commissioners are to apply for in behalf of the Juvenile Court board of managers, declaring:

"The interest alone, with the price of the property added to the upkeep, would place such an institution in the million dollar class before 10 years.

"It is a dangerous move at this time, with many taxpayers struggling to pay their taxes. It is not necessary to have a detention home for the Juvenile Court children in such a congested area, with limited recreation features. The court now has a judge of its own, and not many will be detained, so why is it necessary to spend such a huge sum?

CITE DELAY

"Your commissioners have in view another suitable site, 11 acres, enough room to raise the vegetables for the children; with what I believe is a fireproof building of brick and cement. It could be purchased for $125,000, with $40,000 more for additional necessary improvements. And it would be ready to use in 60 d[illegible] whereas such a home as the board of managers propose would take two years."

Commissioner C. M. Barr asked how many women were present and how many they represented, and Mrs. Horan told him.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared the commissioners would try to do the best thing for the detention wards and the taxpayers.

Plan for Memorial For Slain Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The annual Don Mellett Memorial Lecture for 1934, so named in honor of Don Mellett, militant editor of the Canton, O., News, who was shot by gangsters July 16, 1926, will be given sometime in April by Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star at the University of Kansas.

Announcement of the forthcoming lecture was made by New York University. Roberts was Washington correspondent for the Star for 13 years. He was president of the Gridiron Club in 1928

Finger - Printing Of Pupils Urged By Judge

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—President Judge B. C. Atlee, of Lancaster County, suggests finger-printing and mental examinations of school children as means by which educators can aid in the war against crime.

Addressing the State Association on Probation and Parole last night, the jurist said that some unnecessary expenses could be curtailed and the money used for psychiatric examinations and finger-print files.

The meeting was preliminary to the four-day Pennsylvania conference in social welfare.

$900,000 DRILL HALL PLANNED

A $900,000 drill shed for the Albert J. Logan Armory, Bellefield, is planned by the State Armory Board in event Pennsylvania succeeds in borrowing $10,000,000 from the Public Works Administration.

Word from Harrisburg was that the board contemplated spending $2,000,000 in armory construction, the largest sum to be spent in Pittsburgh.

The Logan Armory houses the 176th Field Artillery, Col. William R. Dunlap, commander. He said:

"The administration building of the Logan Armory was erected in 1910. Since then we have been waiting for a drill hall. We have ample ground. Plans call for a brick and steel building approximately 200 by 300 feet.

"Our grounds are suited for outdoor drilling in good weather but we are badly in need of drill quarters for rough weather. We now use the room intended for a gymnasium for indoor maneuvers."

A Permanent New Home for Pittsburgh's Most Popular Year 'Round Coats . . . On Frank & Seder's Second Floor

Kragshire Coats aren't new to Pittsburgh women! For three consecutive years we've sponsored them . . . and their popularity has grown with each succeeding season. NOW . . . to do fullest justice to these splendid Coats, we've built a permanent new home for them on our second floor . . . an exciting, modern shop . . . where Kragshires will be found EXCLUSIVELY IN PITTSBURGH. Tomorrow we open this interesting new Shop . . . displaying the season's newest creations in Kragshire Coats . . . and you are cordially invited to attend.

¶ If you like clean lines, dependable tailoring and sports fabrics, Kragshires are the coats for you! Their exclusive feature—double-woven fabrics that present a solid color outside and a plaid inside—increases the length of their wear tremendously! (As a matter of fact, one of our prized Kragshire criticisms is from a woman who says, "The only trouble with my Kragshire coat is that it has worn too long!")

¶ Kragshires Stay in Style! We've stressed the classics with a permanent fashion-appeal . . . the polo type, the mannish reefer, the California wrap-around—a classic in the making. And we've included less severe styles . . . the belled sleeve, the butterfly collar, the perfectly-proportioned box swagger. There's a Kragshire to suit every woman . . . and sizes from 12 to 42.

Miss Parsons Will Present Film Stars

Bringing glamorous screen personages into the homes of radio listeners throughout the land, Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of Universal Service, whose feature stories and column appear in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and many other newspapers, is scheduled to begin a series of broadcasts over a national network February 28.

The first guest star to appear with Miss Parsons on a national hookup of the Columbia Broadcasting System, it was announced, is to be Constance Bennett.

The popular actress has promised to sing at least one of the songs from her latest picture, "Moulin Rouge," it was stated. In addition, Miss Bennett will be interviewed by Miss Parsons.

The unusual series of broadcasts, 13 in all, will go on the air every Wednesday at 11:15 p. m. on and after February 28.

BUTLER STORES HEAD DIES

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Death today had claimed James Butler, millionaire owner of the Butler grocery chain and one of the leading figures in racing.

Butler, who was 79 on February 4, died last night in his home here after an illness of six months.

Funeral services will be held Friday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Philip MacGuire and from St. Patrick's Cathedral. Burial will be at the Butler Memorial Chapel at Marymount in Tarrytown, N. Y.

The grocery magnate was the descendant of 15 generations of farmers and was born on a little farm in Kilkenny, Ireland. His boyhood years were spent on the farm and in caring for his father's horses.

Just before he was 20 his parents migrated to America, settling in Massachusetts. James followed them a short time later and obtained employment as a hired man with a farmer named Dresser in the vicinity of Goshen Mountain, Mass. His salary was $1.50 a day.

At the time of his death there were about 1,100 Butler stores in the metropolitan area. At one time the merchant's personal fortune was estimated at $33,000,000.

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This "signs of spring department" is taking on a terrifying aspect.

If things keep on I'll be afraid to open letters. It was all right to send in a butterfly. The grasshopper that was mailed could have been worse, but today I received a wasp. That wasn't so good.

The sender is anonymous. He probably didn't want me to send it back; says that it beats the grasshopper story from McKees Rocks. Incidentally, the wasp is from Dormont.

Clara B. Seifert, in Toronto, O., is troubled with interference from amateur radio stations. She is not alone in that complaint. Amateurs have licenses and their experimental work is productive many times of a lot of good ideas. But what a nuisance it is to hear the dots and dashes interrupt pleasing radio entertainment.

To adjust such difficulties between broadcast listeners and amateur operators write to the Federal Radio Commission, Washington.

Thanks to D. W. Biehrer. He was located at Bunola, 11 miles east of McKeesport, Pa.

It's not such a great event to sight a red bird after all. It certainly is no sign of spring.

Edward Klingman says that at his home he feeds them all winter. Besides that, at his winter hotel for birds he entertains yellow-bellied sap suckers, downy woodpeckers and wild doves.

Ellis Van Newkirk also fed red birds all winter. He reported that a robin came at intervals to feed with the other birds.

Globe Trotters need not be alarmed over the new voting regulations. Jacob Frank, one of the registration commissioners, has promised to come over at an early date and explain the new rules that will govern voters.

One of the new features that ought to be welcome to housewives is that the polls will remain open all day.

Quin Hall's Patrol On Air Today

The Sun-Telegraph Junior Patrol program is heard over WCAE this afternoon at 4:45.

The Globe Trotter broadcasts over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.

George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, aircasts over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings another all-request program during his Songs at Eventide at 6:45.

A medley of mountain tunes is the promised feature of the Barnyard Frolics at 8.

Try these—Jimmy DePalma at 6:15; Boake Carter's Sports Slants at 10:30 and Eddie Peyton's band at 11:30.

King Albert's Obsequies On Radio

The funeral services of Albert, beloved King of the Belgians, whose death Saturday night shocked the world, will be broadcast from Brussels over NBC and CBS networks early tomorrow morning.

The Columbia-WJAS system carries the services to Pittsburgh listeners at 6 a. m.

WCAE joins in the broadcast at 8 a. m.

* * *

Donald Novis is heard on the air tonight at 9 o'clock, over WCAE, as guest of Lennie Hayton's Troubadors..

* * *

The 10 best plays of the season will be named by Burns Mantle, drama critic, in a special broadcast over KDKA at 4:30 this afternoon.

* * *

SPRIGHTLY

Albert Spalding plays a group of light hearted and sprightly melodies—"Andante Cantabile," "Rondo" and "Rondino"—during his concert with Conrad Thibault and Don Vorhees' Orchestra, tonight at 8:30 over WJAS.

* * *

Old Irish airs mingle with light classics and favorite ballads on the program sung by John McCormick at 9:30, over KDKA.

* * *

Jack Pearl may or may not know, when he broadcasts over WCAE tonight at 8, that today is the original Baron Munchhausen's birthday.

* * *

DRAMATIC

"Peace Time Spies," a story based on secret service operations before the World War, are recalled by K-7 during his dramatization over WCAE at 10:30 p. m.

* * *

Another thrilling drama, "Futility of Revenge," is heard over KDKA at 9 p. m. on the weekly Warden Lawes-Sing Sing program.

* * *

Dick Powell and Ted Fiorito's Orchestra entertain the WJAS listeners tonight at 10. Dick sings "Lonely Lane" and "Toot Toot Tootsie."

* * *

A program of semi-classic songs by the Orpheus Trio is heard over WWSW at 9:30 p. m.

* * *

Charles Donley, railroad expert, discussess "The Code of the Motor Truck Operator," over WWSW tonight at 8.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

A MUTUAL COMPANY FOUNDED IN 1845

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

89TH ANNUAL STATEMENT, DECEMBER 31, 1933

To the Policy-holders and the Public:—

The service of a life insurance company is measured, largely, by its returns to policy-holders and beneficiaries. By this standard the New York Life accomplished more in 1933 than in any other year since it began business in 1845.

In this year of stress, in addition to making many policy loans, the Company paid the enormous sum of $255,977,483 to policy-holders, beneficiaries, and annuitants.

It closed the year with Assets amounting to $2,010,943,112, the largest in its history, valued as prescribed by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners. The Company's total Liabilities were $1,896,651,321.

Its surplus funds reserved for general contingencies amounted to $114,291,791.

In the interest of conservatism, the Company voluntarily set up in its liabilities two special contingency reserves as follows: $21,014,507, which is the difference between December 31, 1933 market quotations and the values carried in Assets of stocks, and of bonds in default, bonds of companies in receivership, and bonds which for any reason are not carried in Assets at amortized value; and $7,500,000 for deferred mortgage interest collections, which are larger than normal due to the general economic situation.

The Company also set aside a reserve of $48,038,244 for apportionment of dividends during 1934, a sum sufficient to provide the same regular annual dividend on each individual policy as was paid in 1933, except on term insurance policies.

Of special interest was the increased demand for annuities. Many men and women, desiring to secure a fixed income for life and relief from investment worries, placed their capital in annuities providing a guaranteed life income. The total so invested was $20,662,386, a larger amount than in any other single year.

The total insurance in force represented by 2,672,876 policies was $6,869,268,269. The total new paid for insurance was $378,669,800.

The following table shows the diversification of the Company's Assets as reported to the Insurance Department of the State of New York and valued as stated above:

		Per Cent
Cash on Hand or in Bank	$30,943,412.43	1.54
United States Gov't. Bonds . . .	98,164,386.21	4.88

"We all can't be satisfied"

It isn't human nature!

This reminds us of the fact that lots of folks are not satisfied with their present living quarters. Some want to move into new houses, some want to move into a different apartment, and still others want to eat somebody else's cooking for awhile. While these folks are thinking about moving, others are thinking of buying or selling something, trading this or that and lots of other wants too numerous to mention.

How can you reach these people? There is only one answer. Through the classified columns of The Sun-Telegraph, which takes your message into more homes than any other daily paper published in Pittsburgh.

Call Grant 5400 and ask for an ad taker. These young ladies, trained in the art of writing result-producing copy, will assist you in the preparation of your ad.

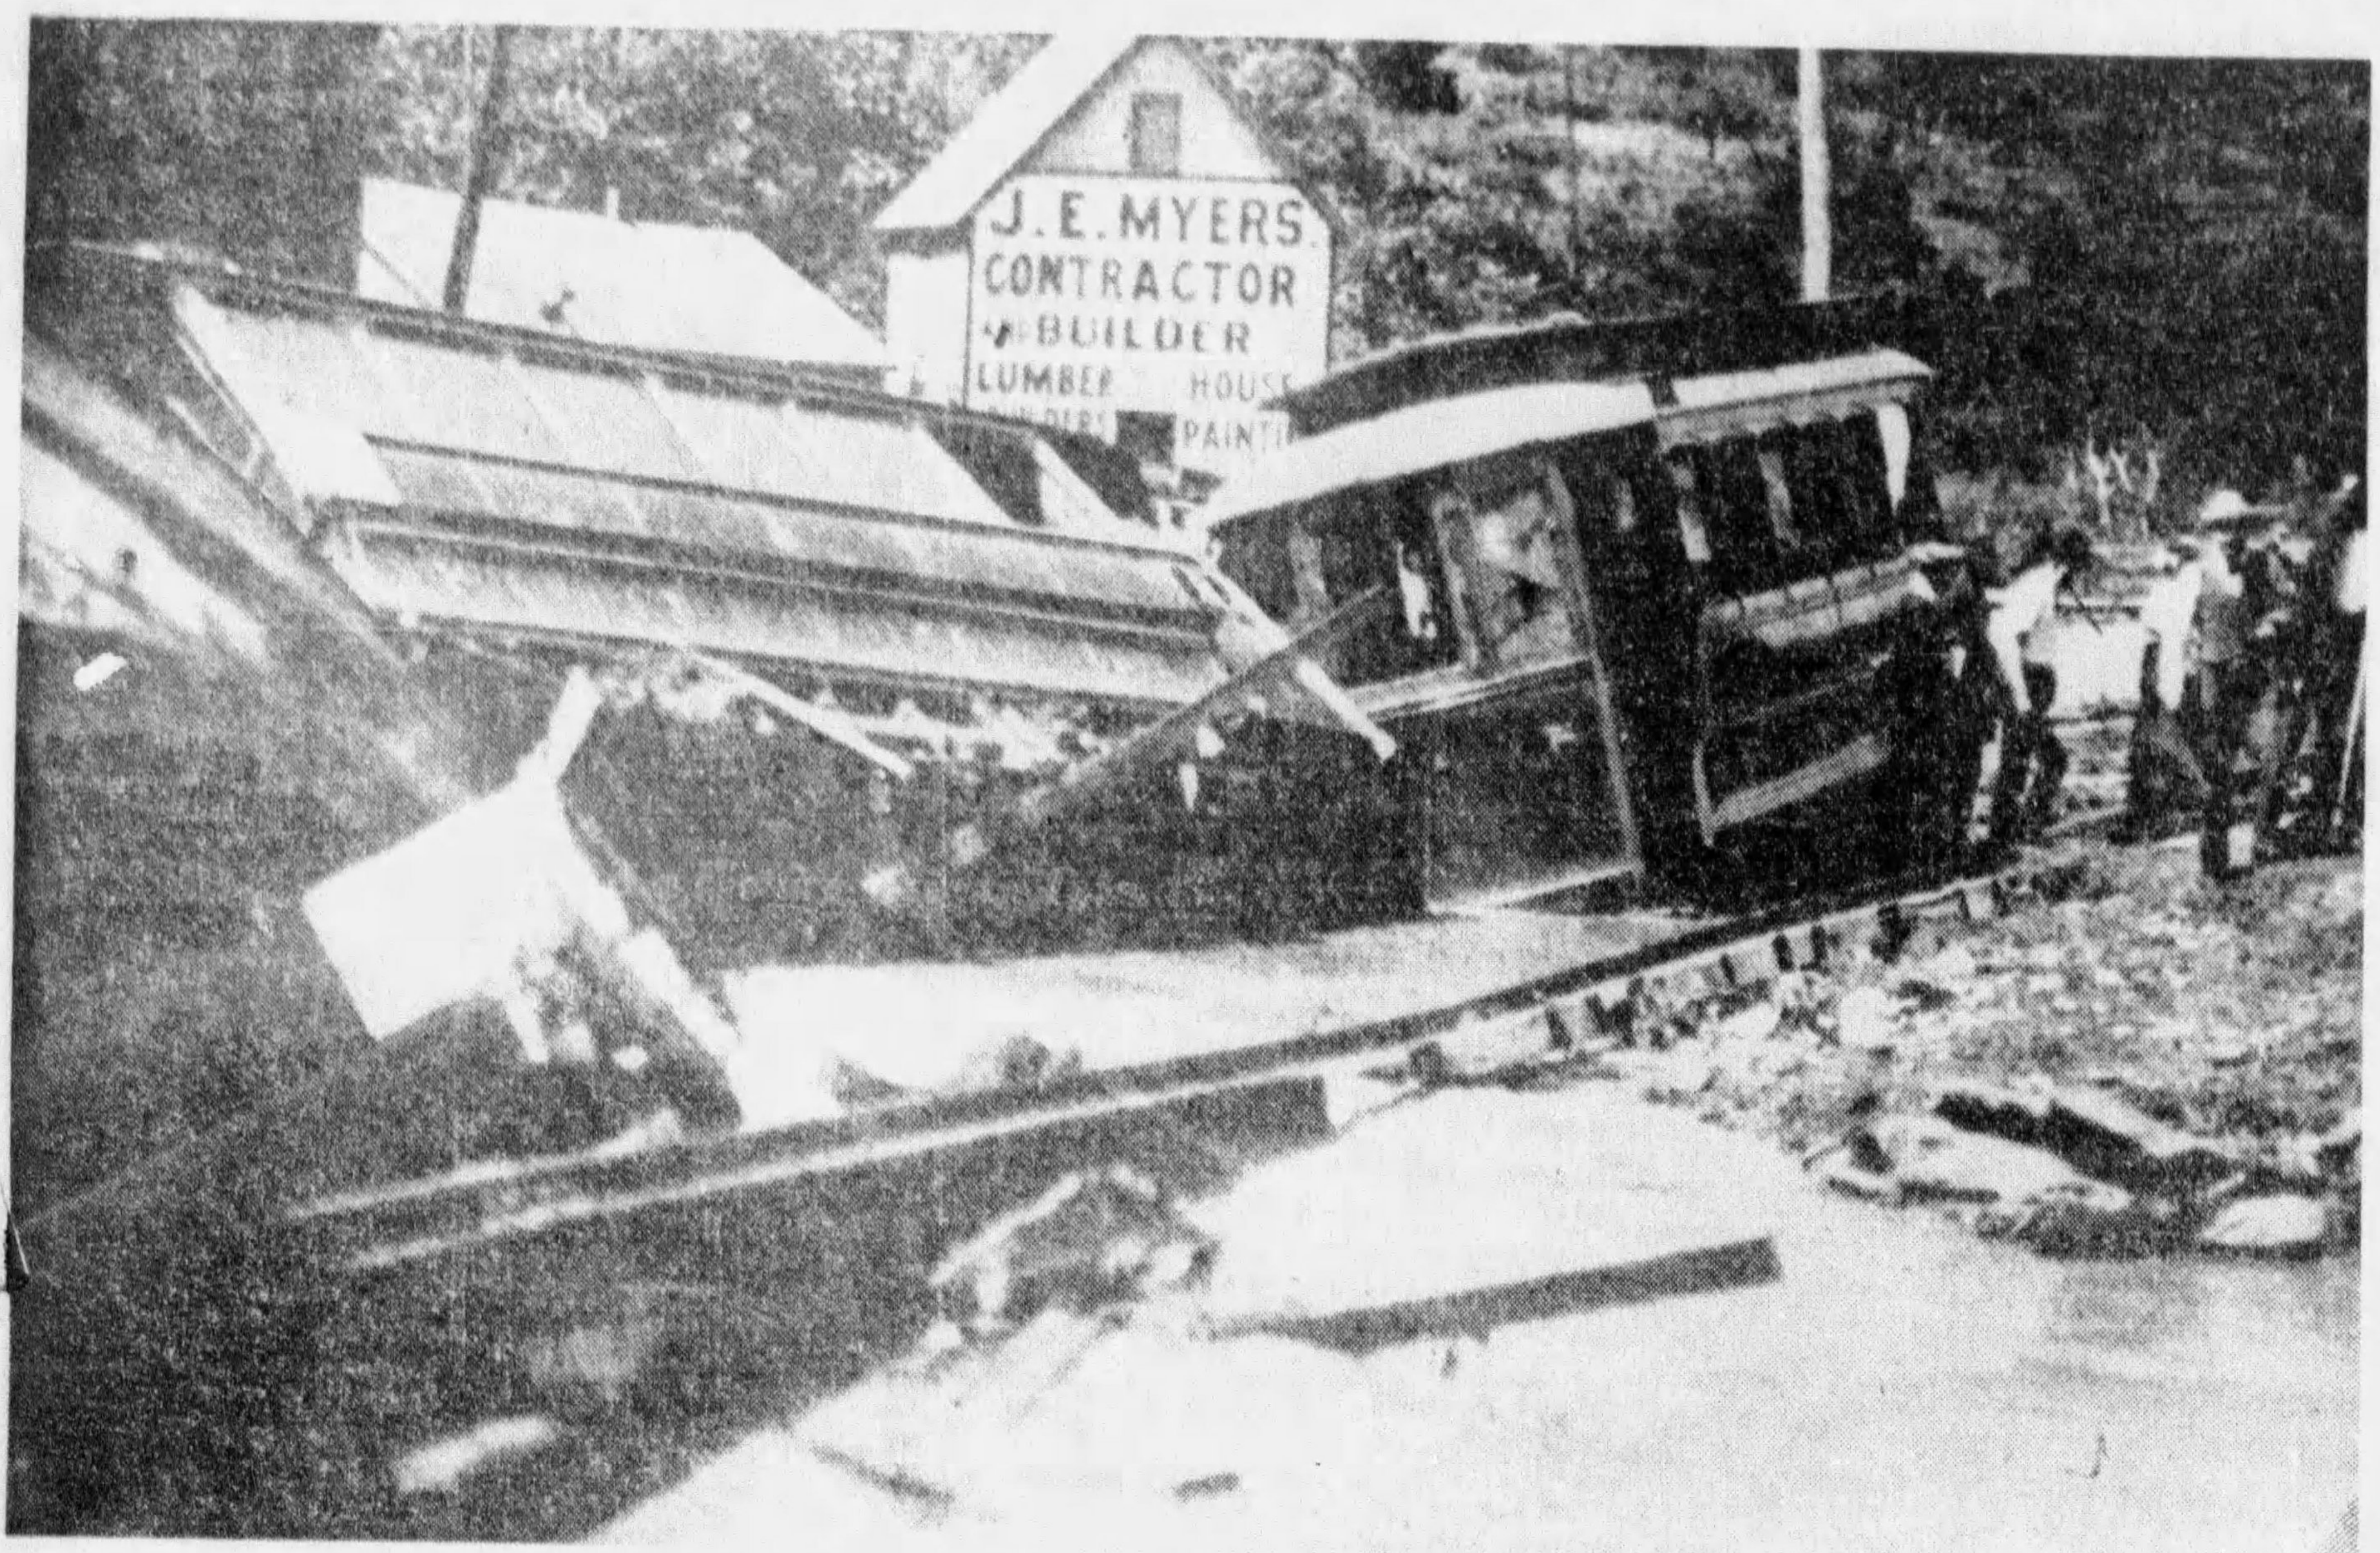
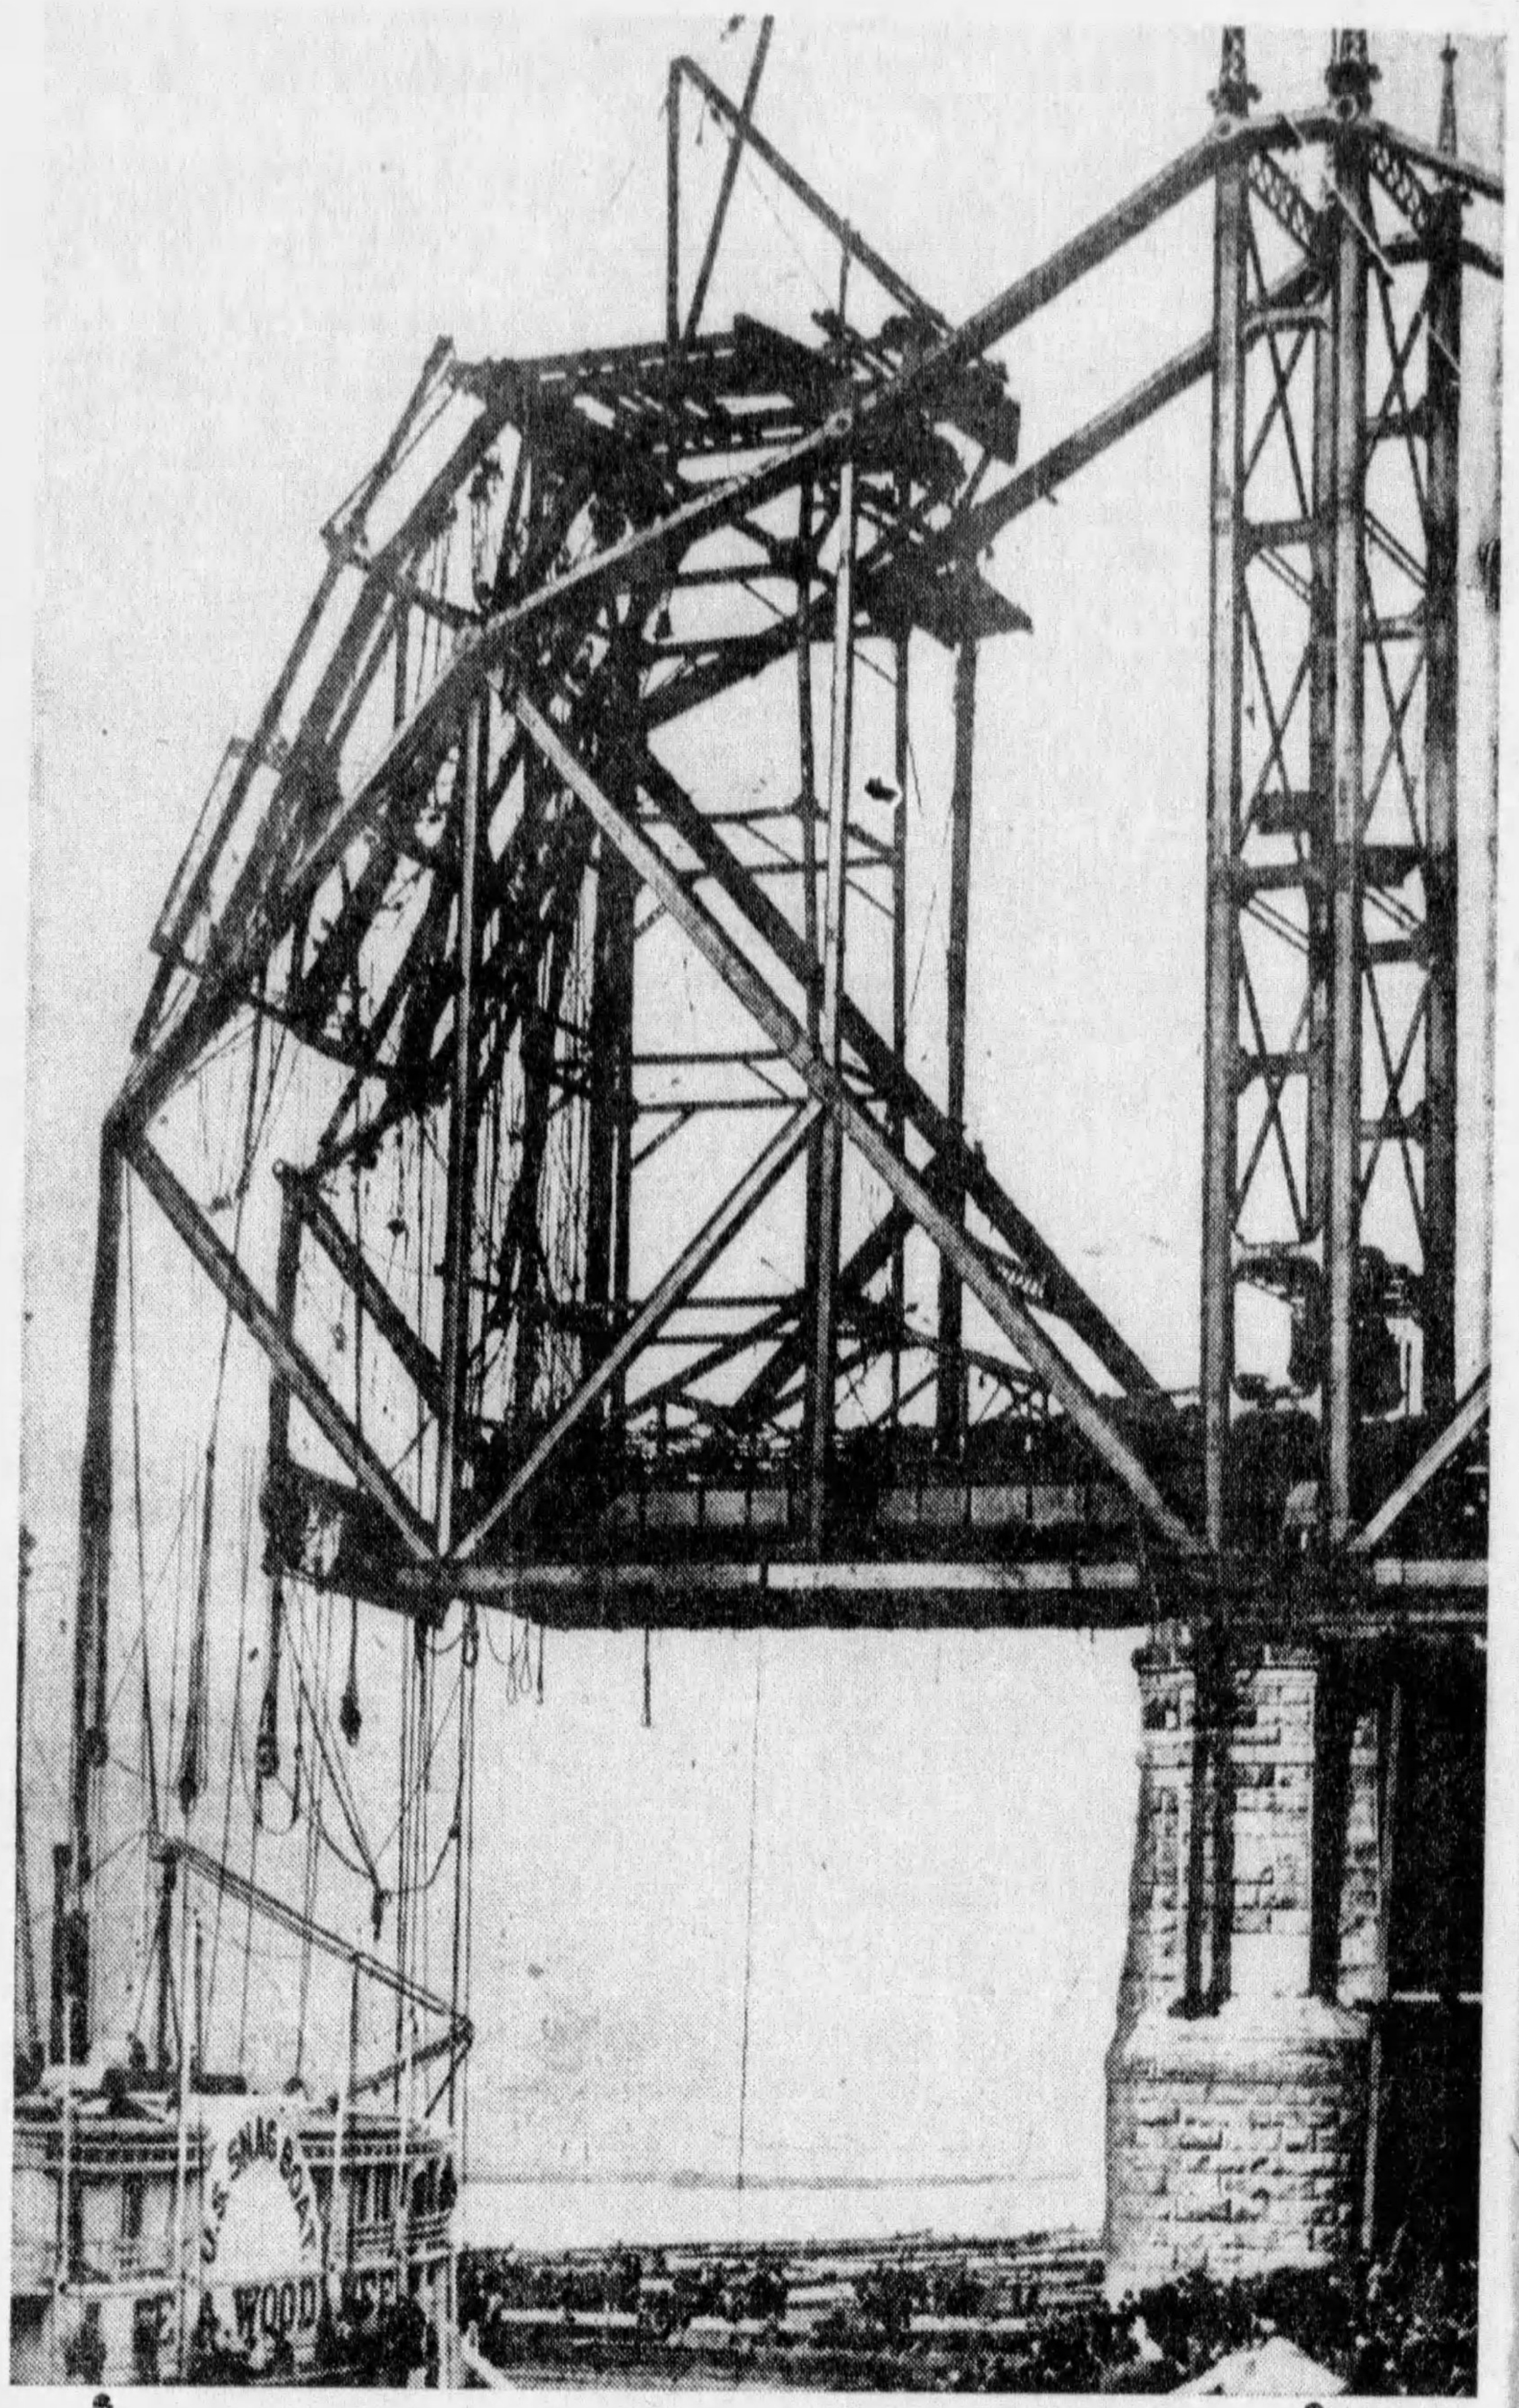
REMEMBER WHEN THE FLOOD WATERS SWEPT JEANNETTE?

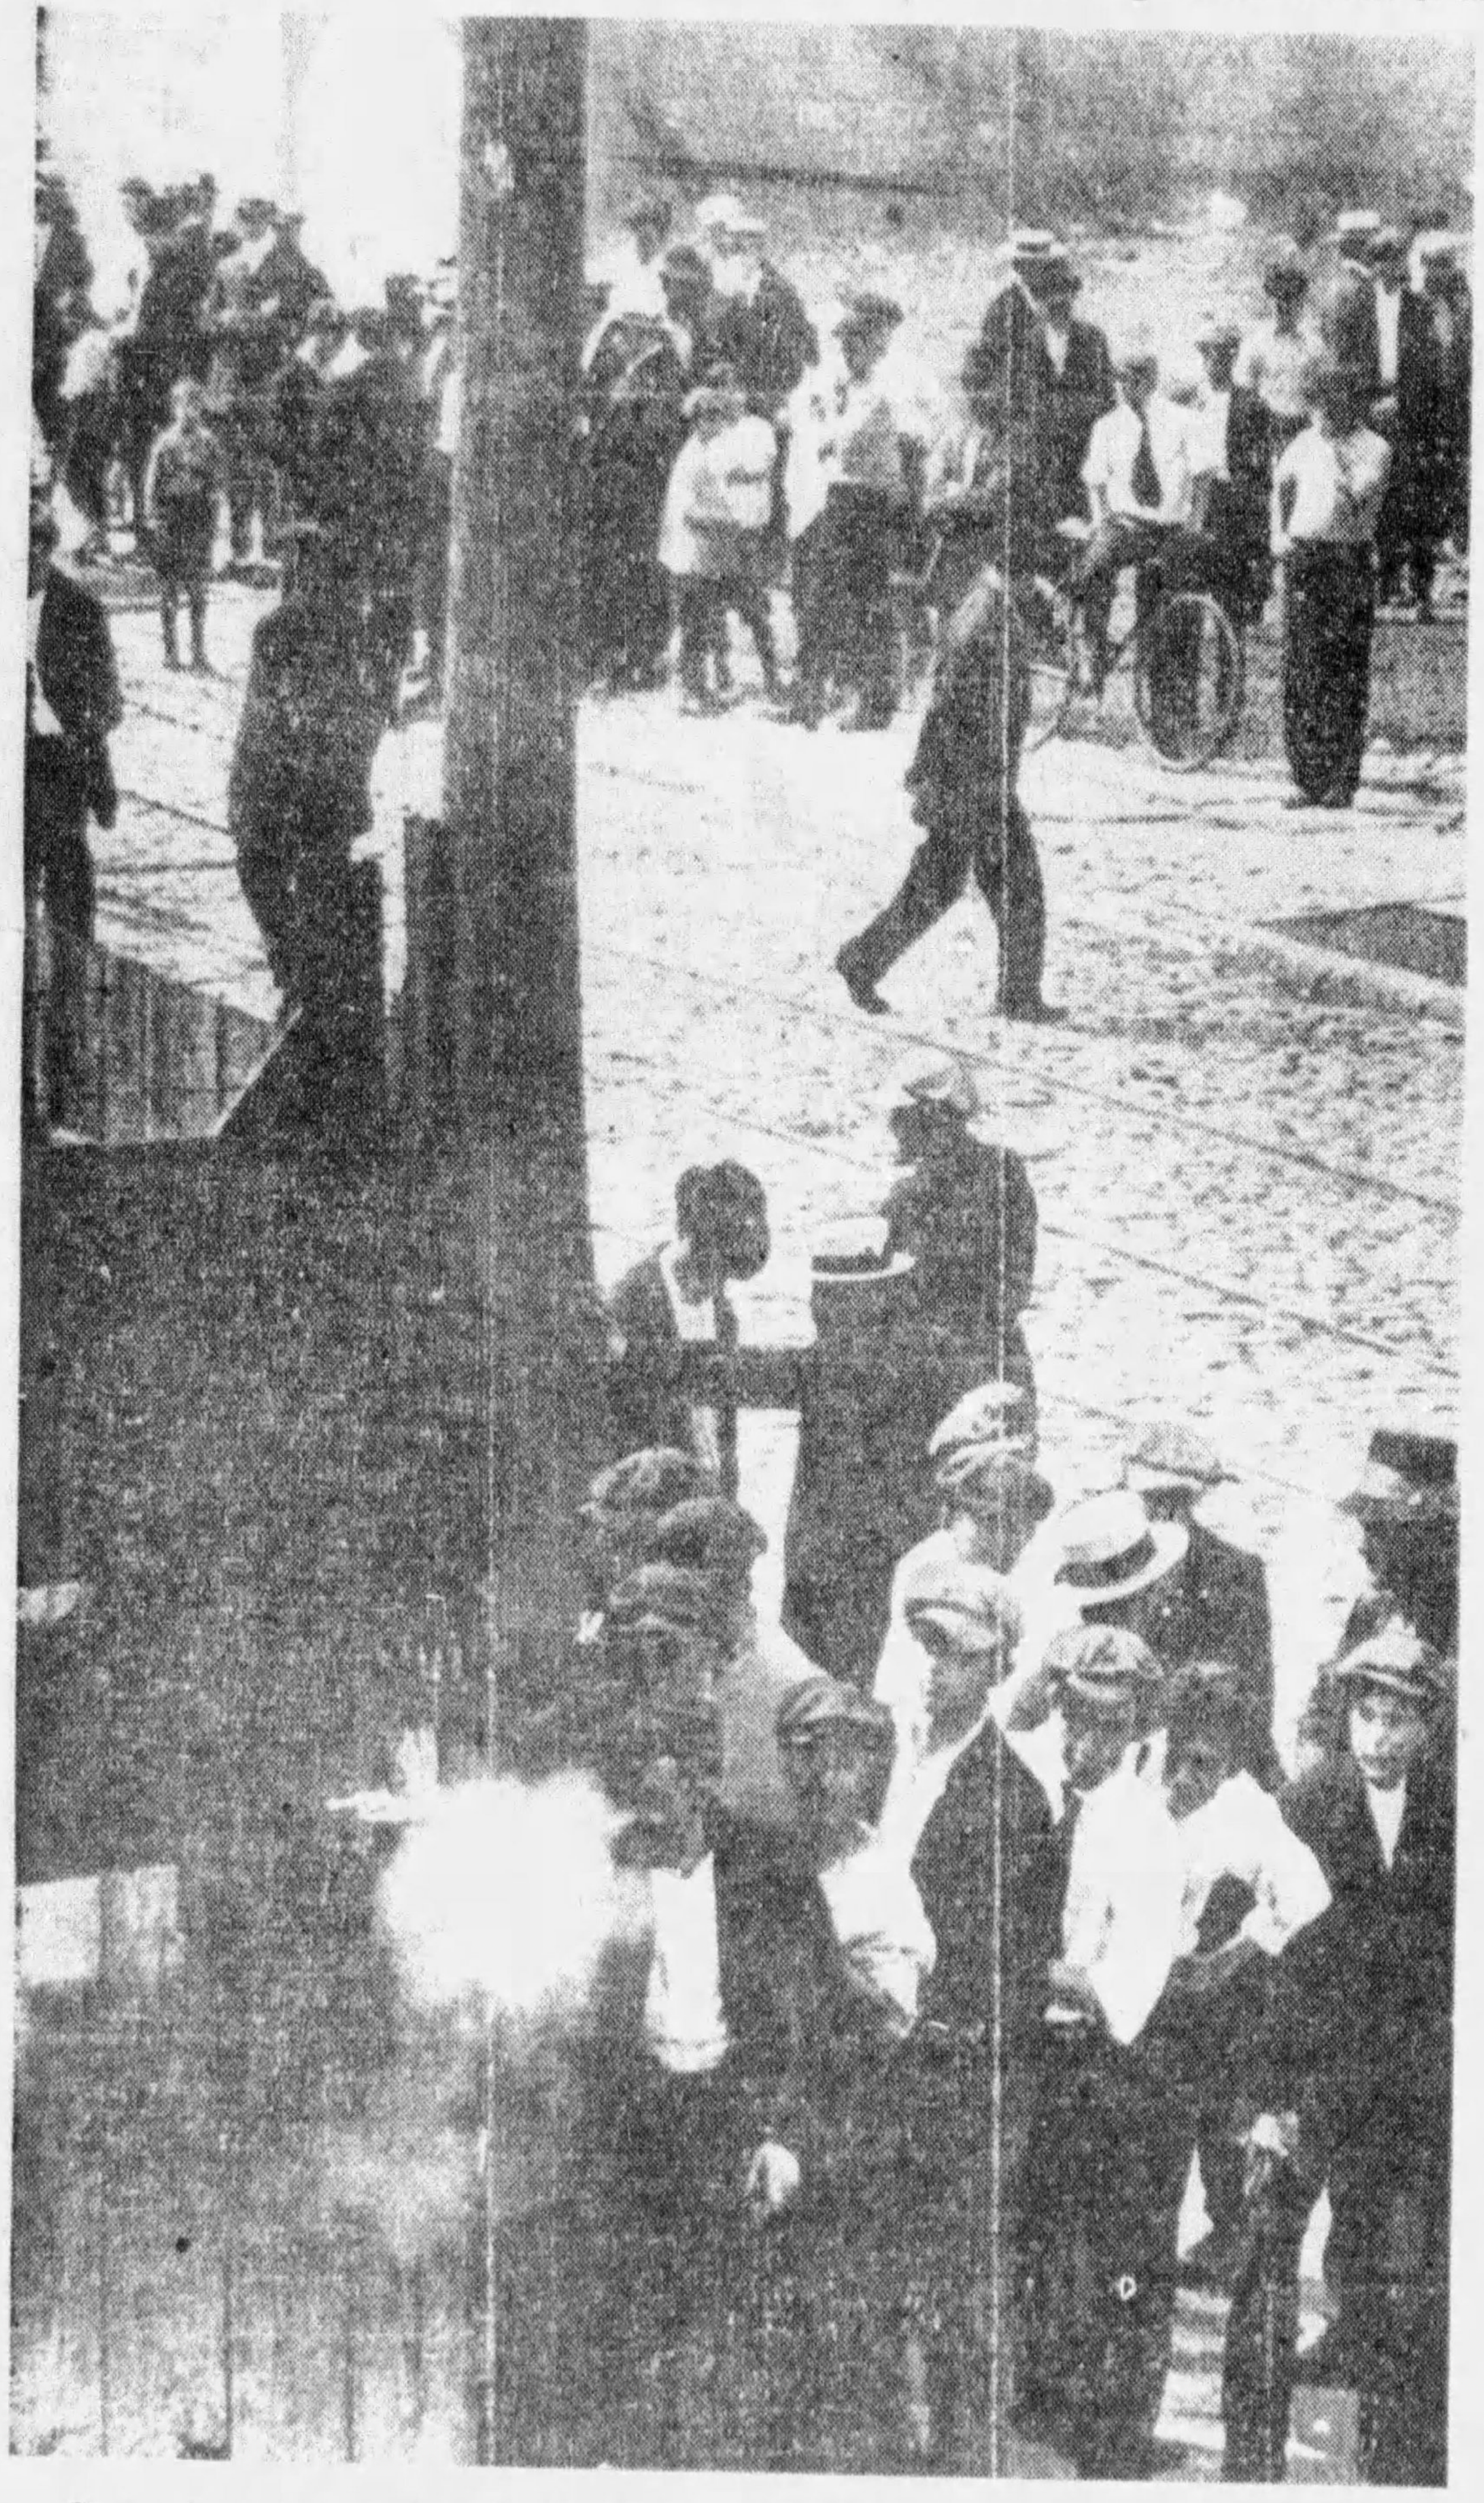
This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans



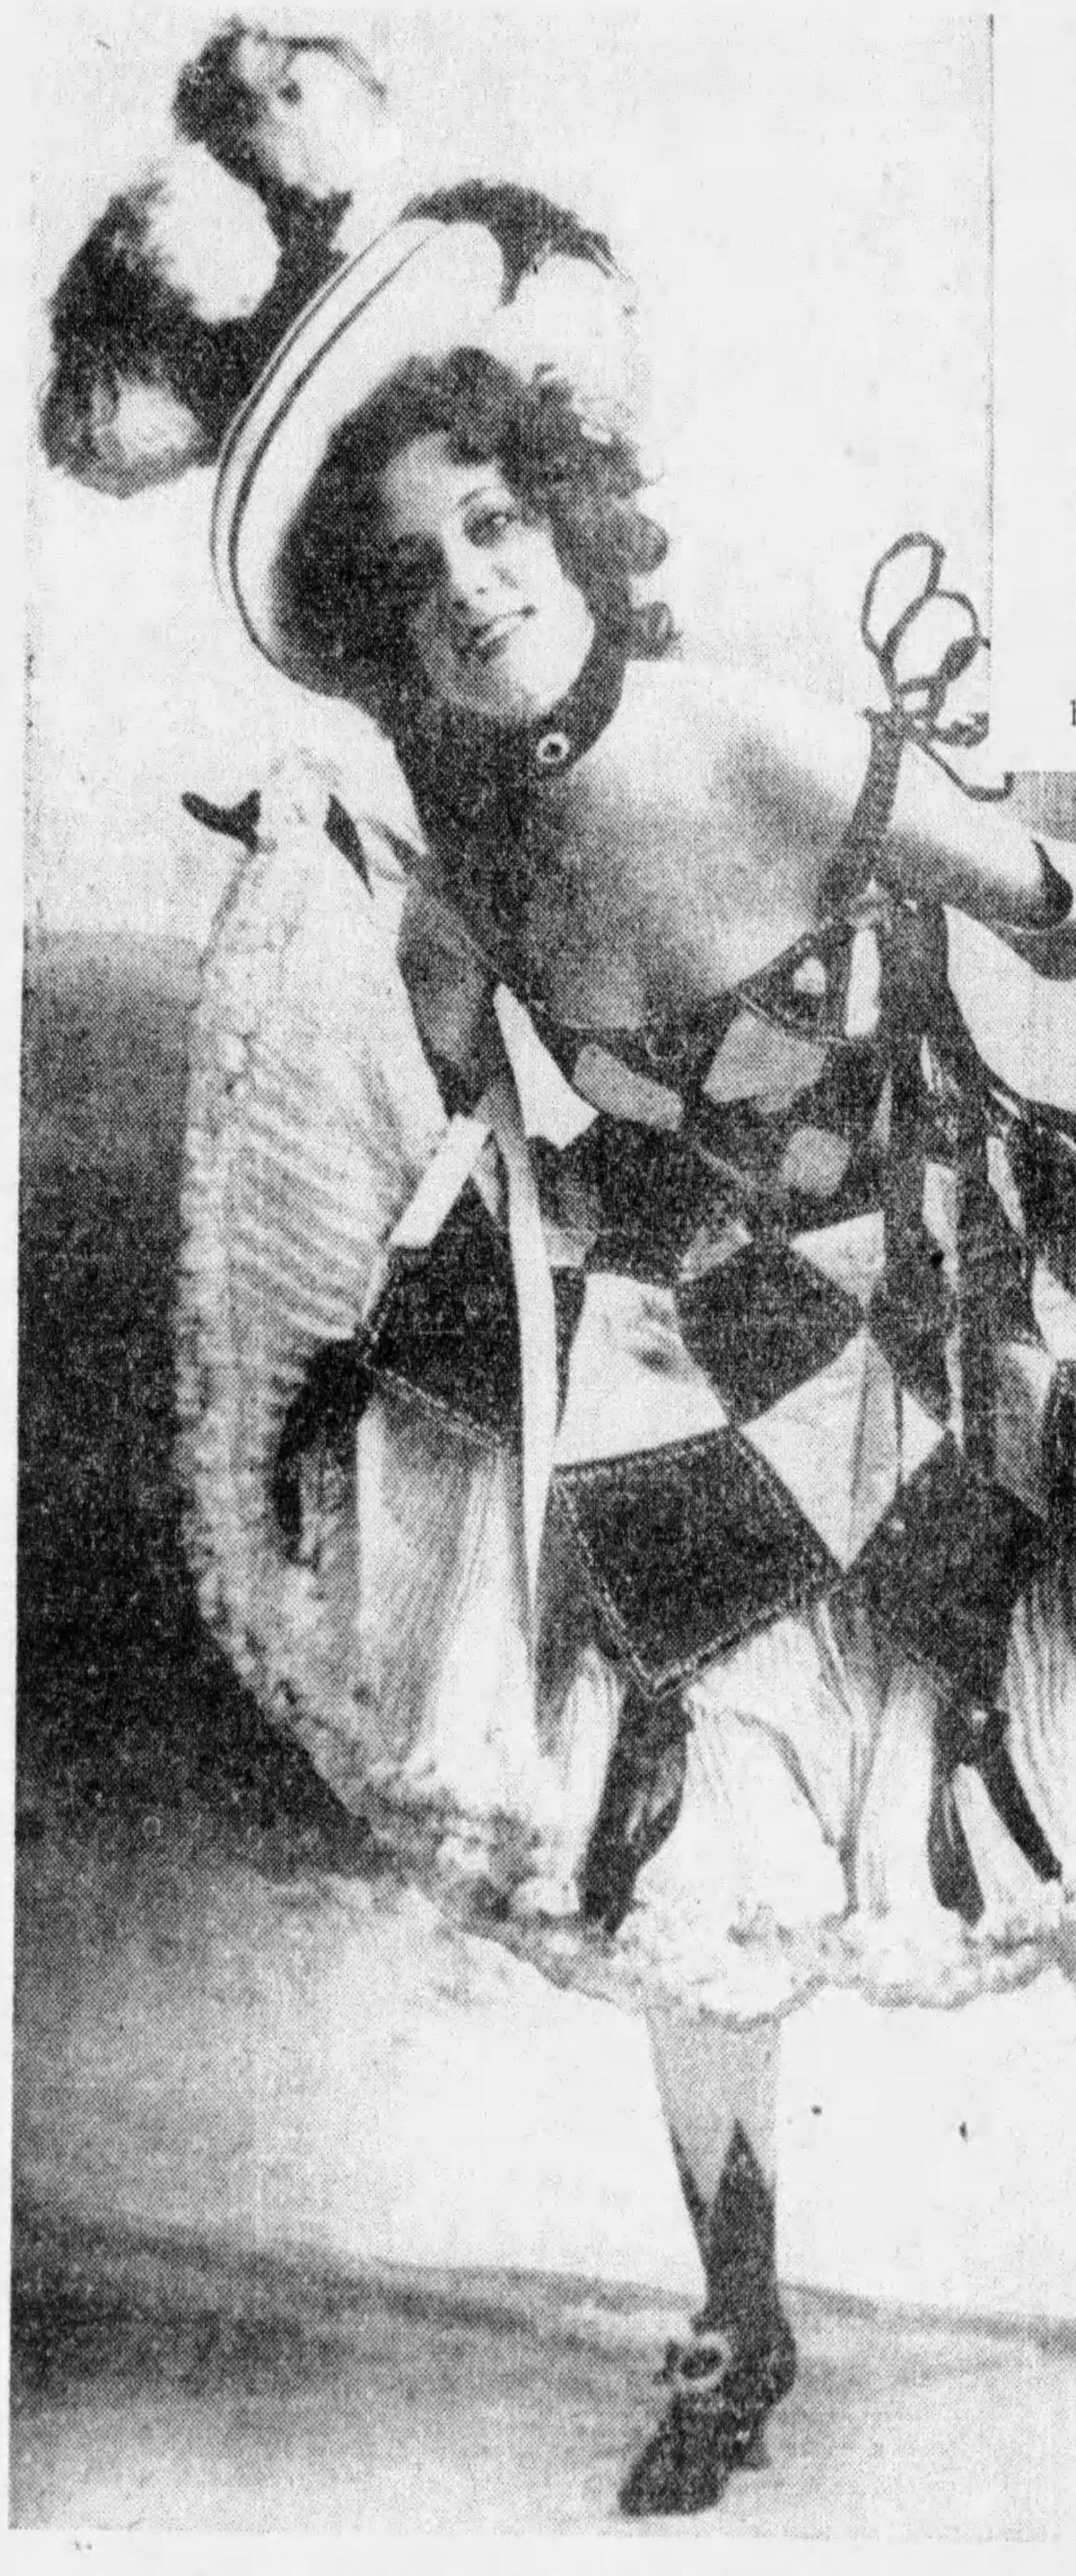
Remember when flood waters swept Jeannette, Pa., after roaring down the Little Creek Valley from Oakford Park? There backed up storm waters had broken a dam that had provided a small lake for pleasure boating. Here is some of the wreckage some 30 years ago after the flood had subsided.



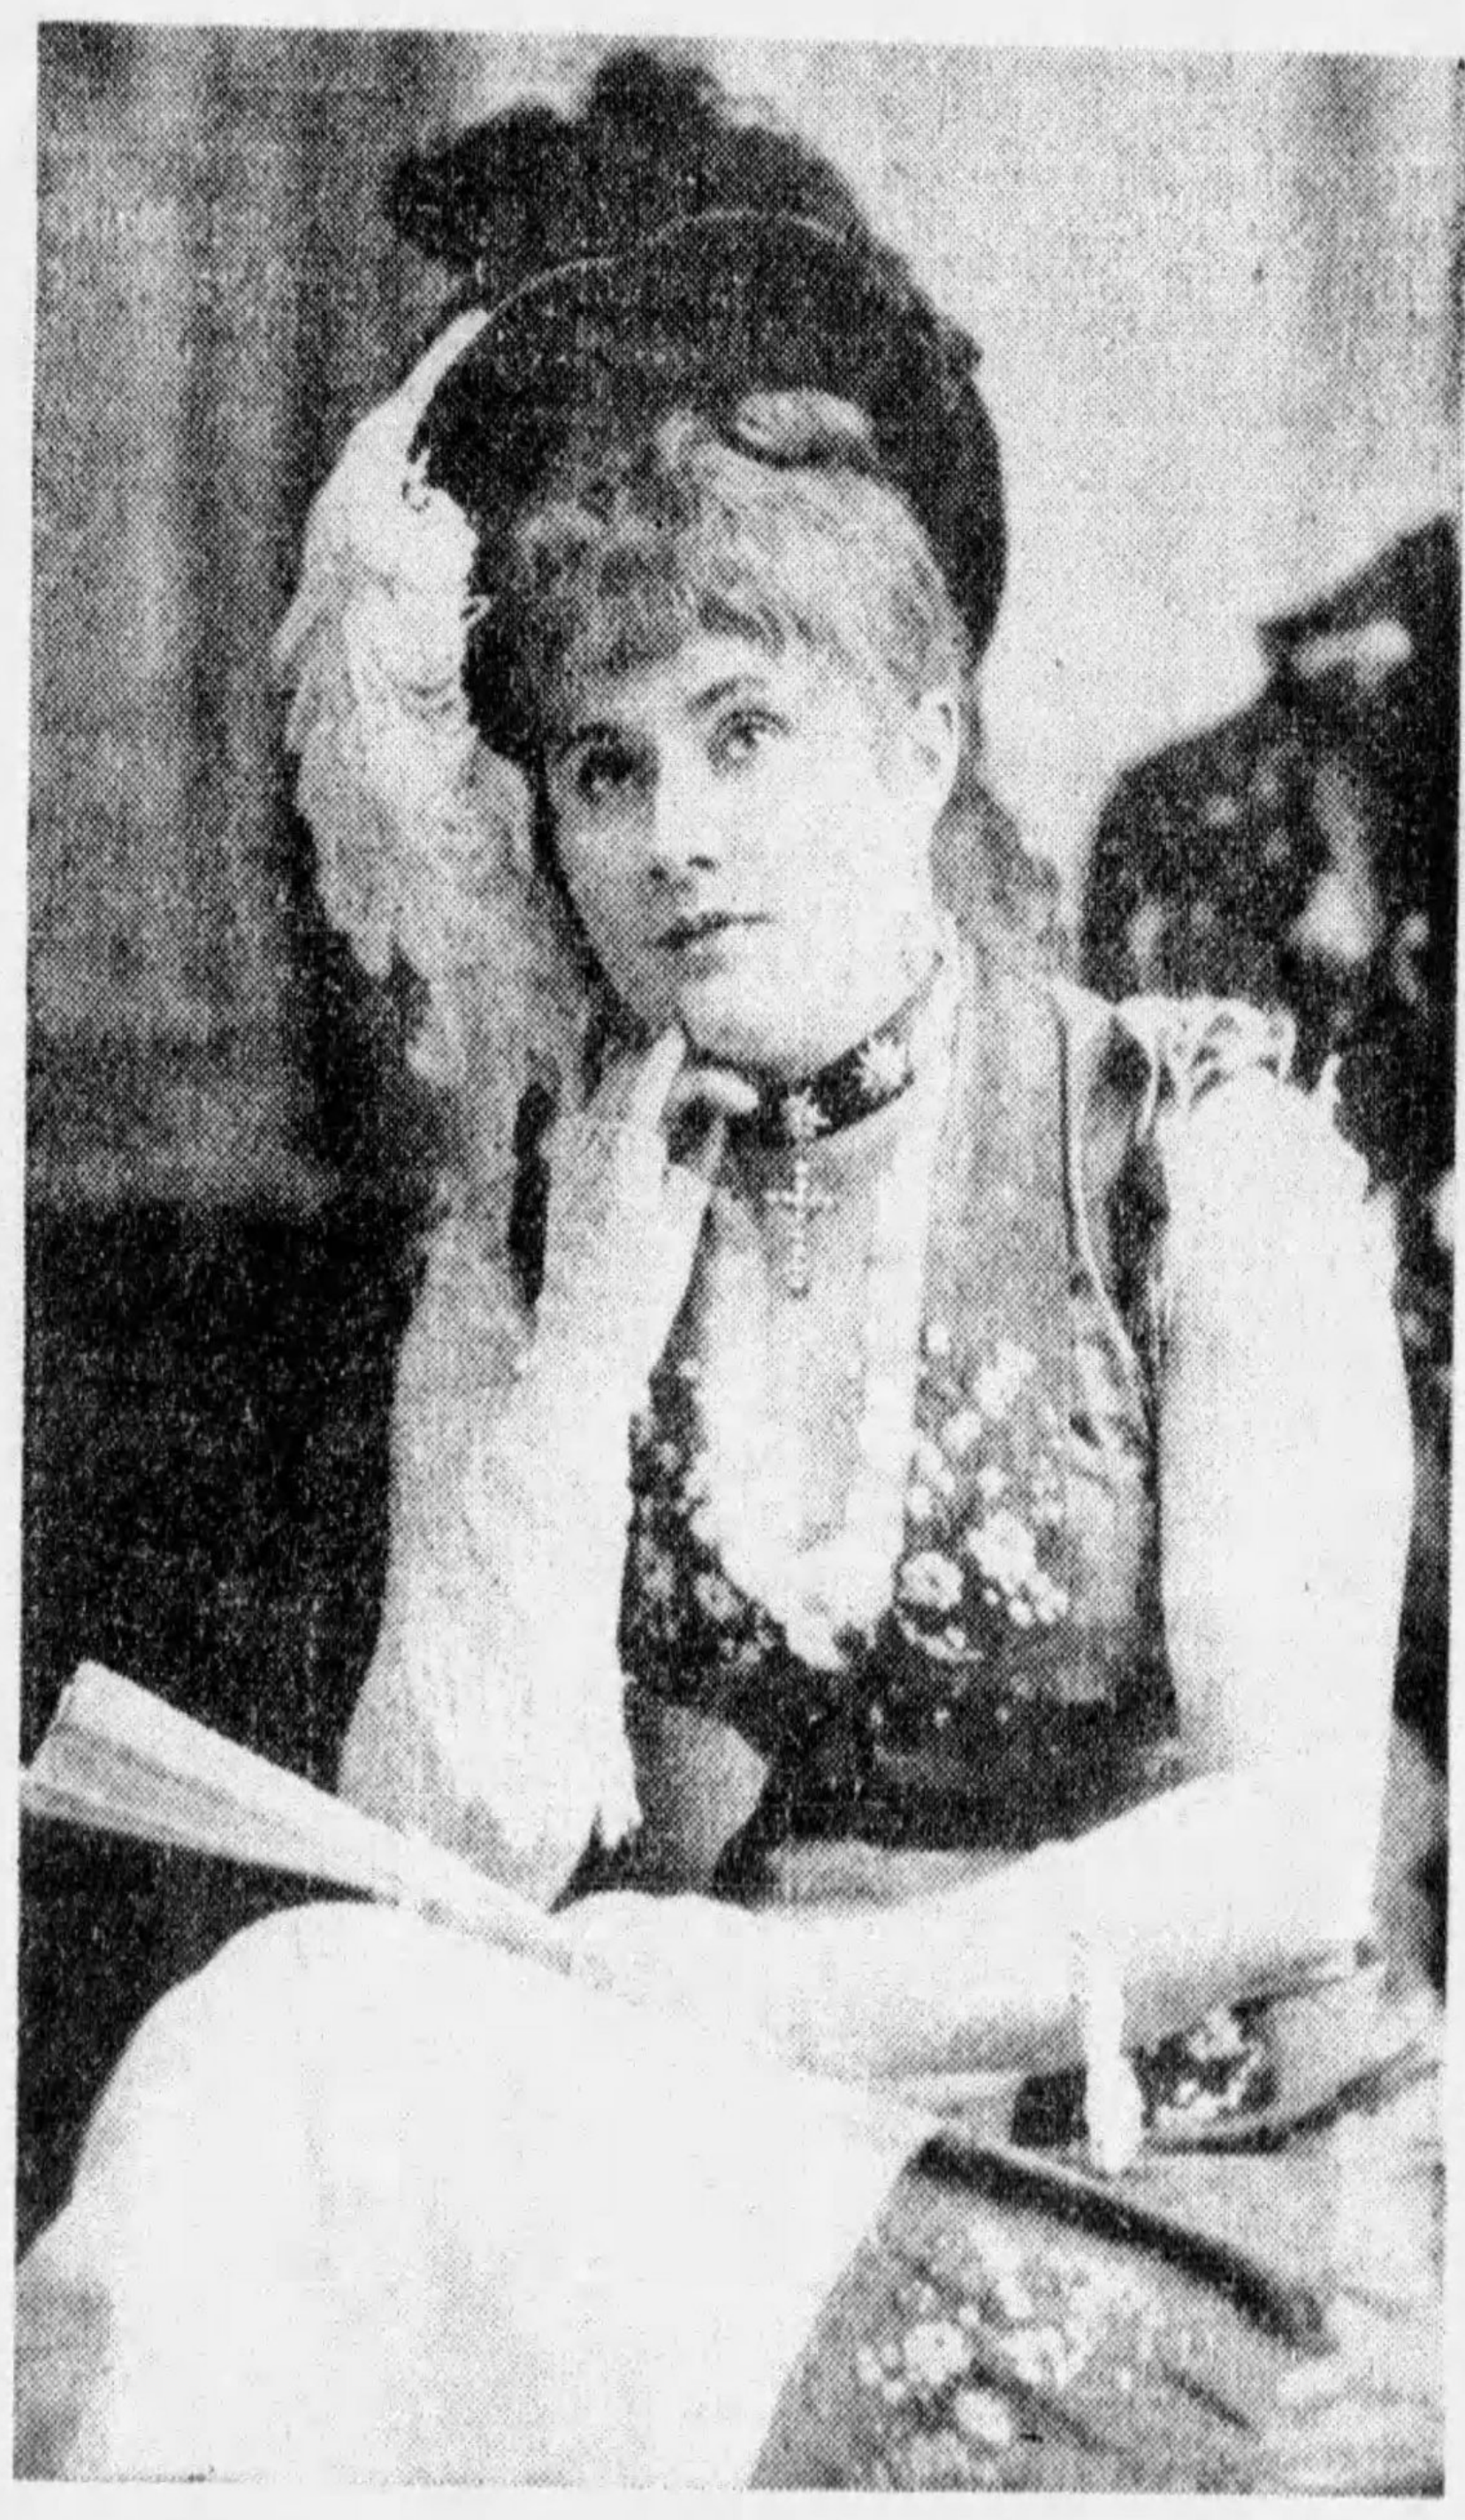
Remember when the falsework on the Wabash Bridge construction over the Monongahela River in downtown Pittsburgh collapsed in 1903? Fourteen were fatally injured.



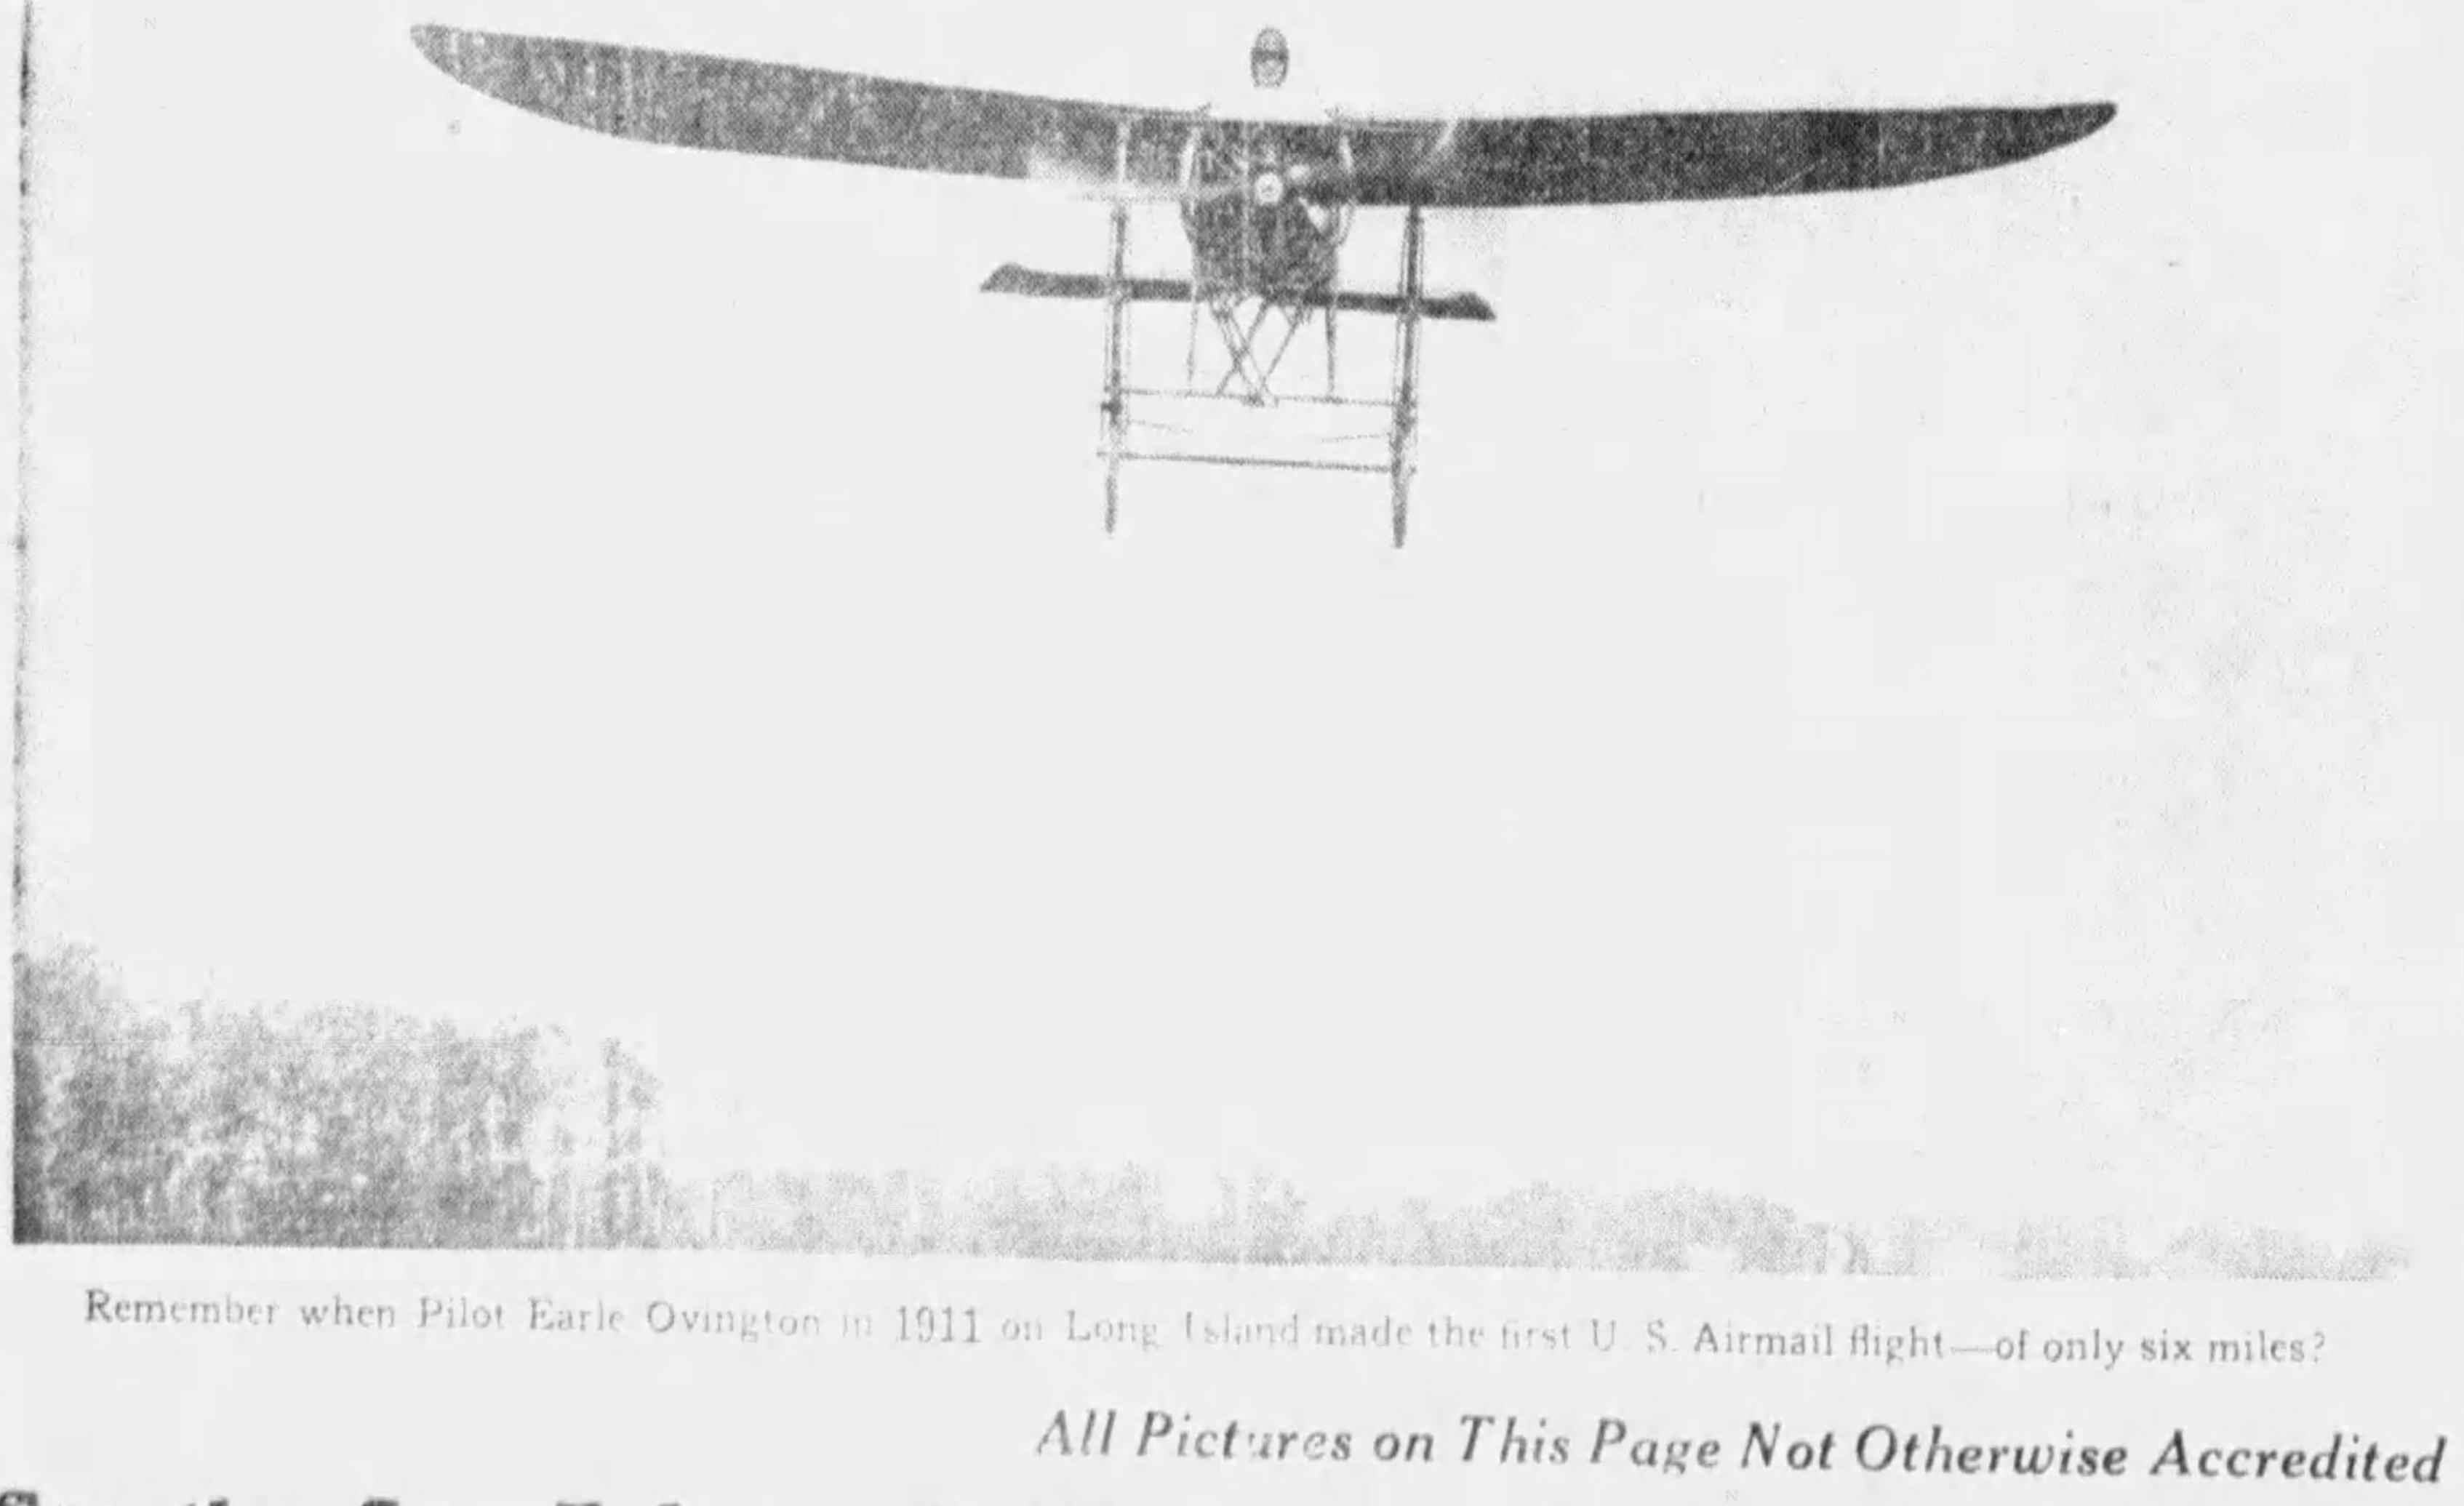
Remember when workers in the Standard Oil Refineries at Bayonne, N. J., went on strike? Here is a striker, unaware of the watchful news camera, boldly shooting it out.



Remember when Mabelle Gilman Corey, chorus girl, reigned? And how by 1905 William B. Corey, who divorced his wife and married her, had quit U. S. Steel Corporation?



Remember when Alice Dunning Lingard thrilled U. S. audiences in the 70's? She was William H. Lingard's wife.



Remember when Pilot Earle Ovington in 1911 on Long Island made the first U. S. Airmail flight—of only six miles?

BENES SEES 50-50 CHANCE FOR WAR IN EUROPE

DELAY FAVORS HOPES FOR PEACE

capital. He wore a brown sweater-vest, and he had a million things to do, and generals waited in the ante-room, but he smiled, said he had plenty of time, and in 30 minutes summarized his view of Europe's future. One felt it was his real view. He said:

"I say it is fifty-fifty. I am speaking in terms of five years. I mean by that if the present state of national tension that can be observed now in Germany were to continue for five years, then the chances of war would be more than 50 per cent.

"But political history and the history of dictatorships show that this sort of national tension is not likely to exist for so long. Furthermore, as we have seen, dictatorships evolve. I am not so sure that the Germany of five years from now will be the same Germany it is today."

LENIN'S THEORIES

I asked the minister:

"Is it not true, however, that experience has shown that this sort of political organization, invented by Lenin, and taken over by Mussolini and Hitler, is the most durable form of government that has been invented in modern times?"

The minister asked:

"How so?"

"Well, in Russia it has survived more severe blows than have befallen any other government: two major famines, a civil war, a war of intervention and a lost national war."

M. Benes agreed. He said:

"Yes, but the important aspect of the Russian government is the evolution it has gone through. Today there is no more talk of Communism abroad; no more agitation, no more of all those things which frightened the outside world most about the Soviet regime. And that is precisely the point I am making about dictatorships. They do evolve. And just because they do, I say there is a chance that if the war does not come within five years, Germany may have changed to such an extent in her national ambitions and in her spirit that war may ultimately be avoided."

ARMS PROGRAMS

"Will Germany be completely rearmed within five years?"

M. Benes was cautious on this point. But he does not believe in the possiblity of a "preventive war." He declared:

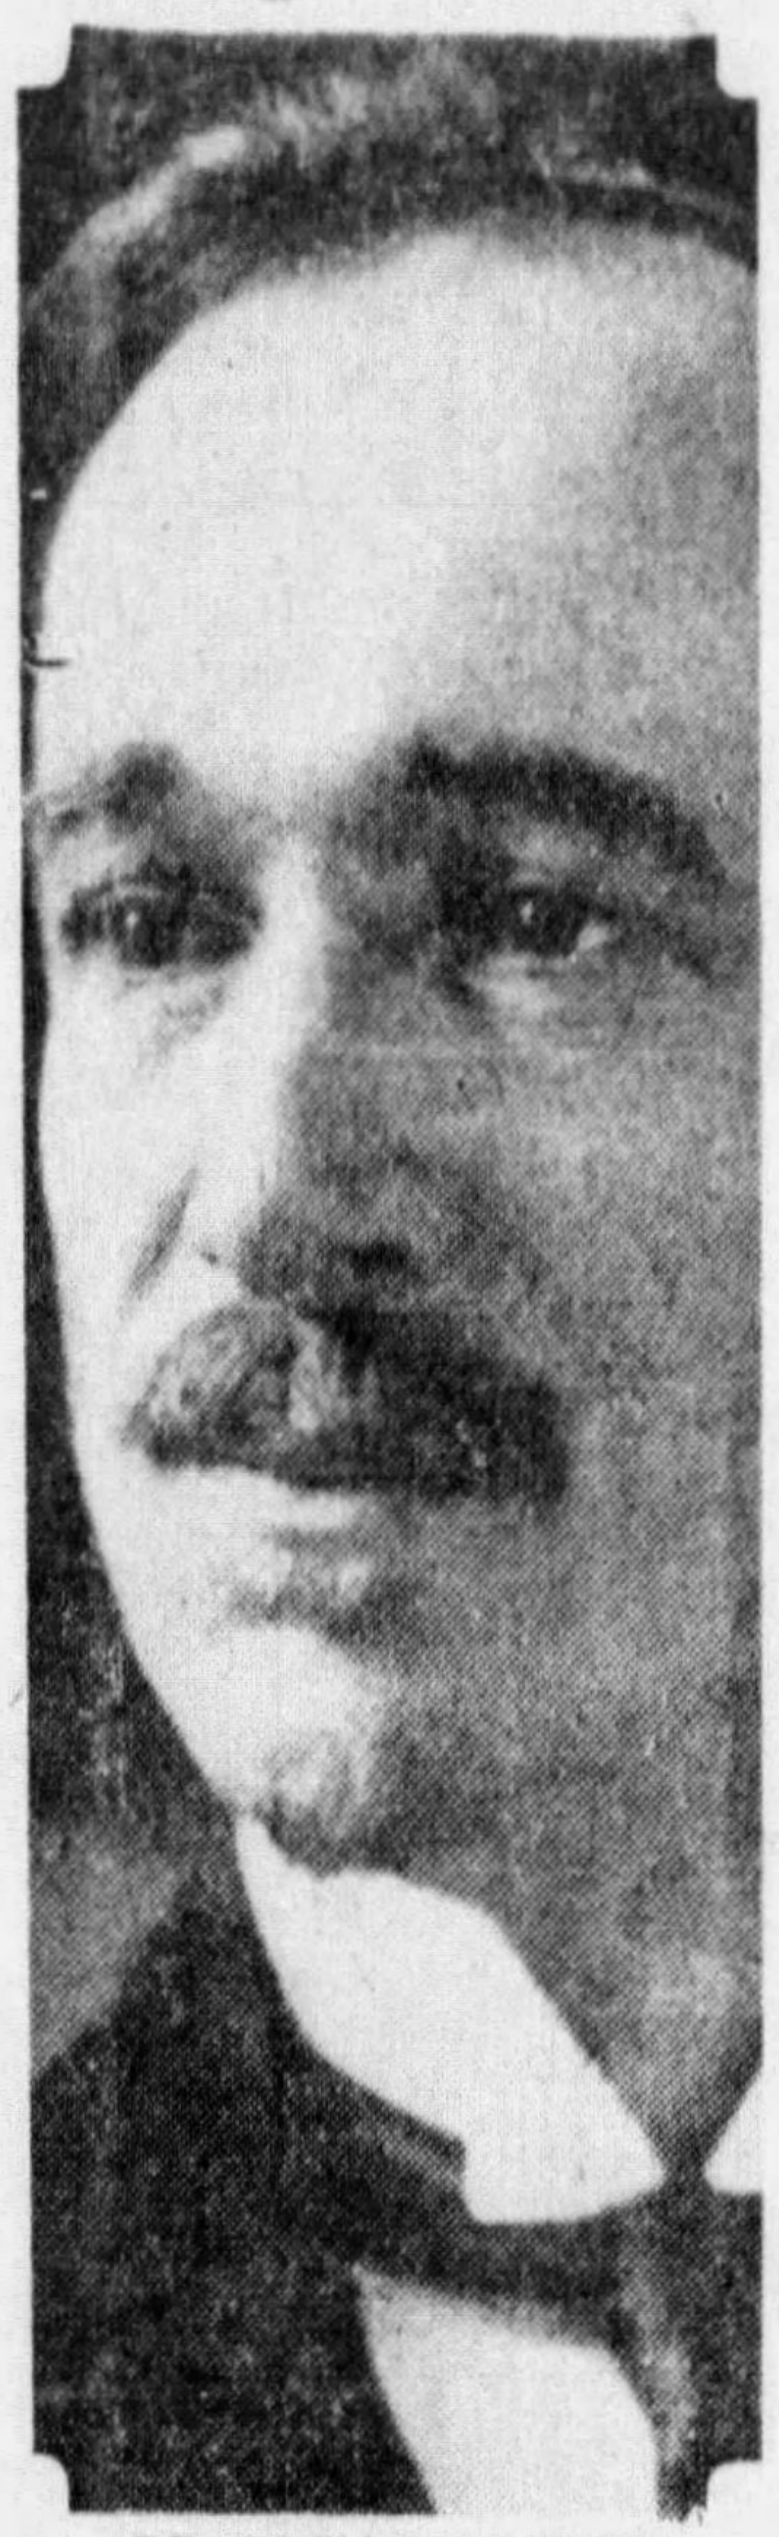
"The Allied countries were unprepared for a preventive war. They were morally unprepared. Only a few men in the Allied countries were thus prepared. The people were not prepared. So a preventive war is out of the question. The only alternative is a more effective united front on the part of all the peace-loving peoples of Europe."

I asked if the Polish-German negotiations disturbed him. He replied:

"I do not think that any breach will be made in the front permanently."

But there is Austria, what would happen to Czechoslovakia if Austria went Nazi,

Foreign Minister



DR. EDUARD BENES

became de facto part of Germany?

"Are you worried about Austria?"

He responded confidently:

"Not at all. You see, all the time people have been saying that Austria is chiefly a Czechoslovakian question. They say, 'You will be surrounded,' 'You will be choked to death.' Not at all.

EUROPEAN PROBLEM

"The fact is it took people a long time to realize what the correct proportions of the Austrian question were. It took them a long time to realize that Austria is first a European question; second, an Italian question; third, a Central European question; fourth, a French question; and fifth, a Czechoslovakian question."

"But everybody says that if Austria goes Nazi or goes Hapsburg, you will march."

"No, we will do what Italy and France do. Or let me put it this way. We will leave the question to the great Powers, and especially to Italy and Germany. I am ready to follow the lead of Mr. Mussolini, and we shall be glad to have him settle the problem with Germany."

The minister grinned a downright gleeful grin. Czech democrats are no lovers of dictatorships, and it gave him acute pleasure to think of the embarrassment it would cause to the black shirts if the brown shirts came too close.

But Foreign Minister Benes sees one good result for his country from Hitler's rise to power. He believes it has strengthened the defensive will of the country and has unified the nation. He declared:

"The Hitler revolution has had an initially unifying effect on Czechoslovakia. England became united after centuries of struggles; France after the French revolution; Italy after the Risorgimento and Mussolini's march on Rome, and Germany after the rise of Prussia under Frederick the Great, the war with Austria, the Franco-Prussian war or 1871, and finally after Hitler.

DICTATORSHIPS RISE

"The Czechoslovakian nation, always united in spirit, only became formally so after the great war, but it took the development of European policy during the last few years, ending with the rise to power of the two dictatorships in Italy and in Germany to bring to us the full consciousness of unification.

"Time is working for Czechoslovakia. That is true of all the new countries. The longer they exist in peace, the more chance they have of continuing to exist. The world must become accustomed to them and take them for granted.

"But after all it is my feeling that the forms of government in Europe are more important than people think for the problem of war or peace. Dictatorships are always very susceptible to the questions of prestige, of honor, and of success. Dictatorships are very unstable. They rock back and forth in the wind. We are democrats. Democratic statesmen are right down to the ground, with the people. They know what is going on. The ground under them is stable, without surprises.

"In dictatorships you cannot tell what the people think, you cannot tell what is really going on until the dictatorship has passed. That is why dictatorships are always strong until the last five minutes."

BENES SMILES

The thumb waved and the grin returned.

"I believe that democracy will once more be dominant. Dictatorships as neighbors always strengthen democracies in those countries where economic and political conditions are healthy. We in Czechoslovakia have been strengthened. In spite of the present condition of Europe I am confident of the ultimate victory of democracy.

"You see, I am an optimist. It is my business to take account of every eventuality. We must be prepared for war; we must be prepared for peace. We are prepared for both."

Czechoslovakia has the worst military geographical situation of any allied state. Today it has sixty-five million Nazi neighbors. Tomorrow it may have seventy-two million, if Austria goes Nazi. It has three million militant Germans within its own borders, many of them clamoring to join the Reich. It has for a neighbor Hungary, now waging a ferocious new propaganda assault to regain Slovakia.

But Czechoslovakia has its treaties for mutual defense with France, Rumania and Jugoslavia. It has the smallest but best equipped army of the Little Entente. It has Skoda, the biggest munition plant in Central Europe. Finally it has Benes. He is worth more for keeping the peace than the army. But he gives the real odds at 50-50.

Chicago School Head Lauds Knickerbocker

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—The series of articles entitled, "Will War Come?" by H. R. Knickerbocker, of the International News Service, was called "a guide to history in the making" today by William J. Bogan, Chicago superintendent of schools. Bogan said:

"The reports of the International News Service correspondent, H. R. Knickerbocker, present in a striking way the war-like conditions developing in Europe as a result of problems which were the heritage of the great World War. Teachers and students will find his articles authoritative and instructive."

KNICKERBOCKER SERIES LAUDED

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—The series of articles written by H. R. Knickerbocker, the brilliant International News Service foreign correspondent, on the topic, "Will War Come?" today drew praise from Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Rule said:

"The Knickerbocker articles are interesting and instructive. They should be particularly attractive to school and college students who are interested now more than ever in world affairs.

"The author of the articles shows himself to be a well-informed interpreter of European conditions today."

Oxygen Tank Failure Denied by Firemen

Woods Run police denied today their oxygen tanks failed to function while they were attempting to save the life of Fire Capt. John P. Joyce, of Engine Company No. 45, a pneumonia victim.

The officers explained they asked for assistance from the Duquesne Light Company only after they had used all the oxygen in their tanks. The fight to save Capt. Joyce's life was unsuccessful.

Bride Amazes Mother-in-law with Washday Secret

A young bride astonished her mother-in-law by the speed with which she did her washing and with the lovely bright "new" look her wash always had.

"I use my regular laundry soap, my regular washing method," said the bride, "but I add two tablespoons or so of Lux. You've no idea how much richer a little Lux makes the suds.

"These richer suds work so much faster! They're so safe, too—white things come out whiter, colors come out fresh and bright. Lux is wonderful for my hands, too."

Try this inexpensive, work-saving new trick on next washday. Costs almost nothing, saves time and saves clothes.

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

COLDS
Go Thru 3 Stages
—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

MAGEE MAY GO TO P. S. C. IN 5-CENT FARE ROW

POLITICS

Rodgers May Seek Seat Brandt Now Holds

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Capt. W. B. Rodgers, of Bellevue, Pittsburgh businessman, may become the choice of regular Democrats for the Senatorial nomination in the Fortieth district, now represented by Senator Herman P. Brandt, Republican.

Capt. Rodgers preceded Eric Biddle as director of the State Emergency Relief Board, resigning to return to his private business enterprises.

It was his task as director to build an organization which could not grow as fast as the problem with which it was expected to cope. He also was caught in some of the play of petty politics which surrounded the beginning of state relief, especially the battle over whether food and commodity distribution should be through state commissaries or orders on established retailers.

Capt. Rodgers is a recognized Democrat, though he supported Gifford Pinchot rather than Capt. John Hemphill, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, in 1930.

Capt. Rodgers was a dramatic speaker at a big meeting held for Pinchot here during that campaign.

Many Republicans, conservative business men, were bolting their party because of dislike for Mr. Pinchot. Capt. Rodgers was introduced as an old-line Democrat who was crossing party lines in an opposite direction.

He took the position that Mr. Pinchot had been an exponent of progressive legislation, and that prohibition, which the Democrats in that campaign emphasized as an issue, had no place in the contest for the governorship.

When he retired from state service the Pittsburgher interested himself in the spread of progressive principles, and has a considerable circle of friends in the district in which he lives. He has been well liked by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, through whose influence he was named director of relief.

* * *

'Barney' McGinnis Array Try to Oust Einstein

In the Forty-second District, now represented by Senator Morris Einstein, Attorney B. B. McGinnis may become the preferred Democratic senatorial primary candidate.

Mr. McGinnis recently resigned as chairman of the Civil Service Commission after differences with Mayor William N. McNair, but this is about the last thing which would turn the Democratic organization against him.

Should Attorney McGinnis enter the senatorial race, in which he would have substantial support, it is assumed that Clair E. McGinnis, his brother, who is a member of the House from the Seventh District, would not be a candidate for re-election.

Edward J. O'Brien, president of the Allegheny Valley Bank, is being urged by many persons in the Thirty-second Congressional District to become a candidate for Congress. Their plan is that he should enter both primaries, his friends asserting that support for him would be non-partisan.

Recently Mr. O'Brien was visited by a group of ministers of all denominations, who pleaded with him to make the race. It is not determined that he has come to any settled decision on the question.

This is the district in which the seat of Congressman M. J. Muldowney, Republican, is being contested by Mrs. Anne Felix, Democrat, before a Congressional committee, it being alleged that Muldowney obtained his seat through fraud. The district has been a hot spot for years, the victor usually being the candidate upon whom the favor of the professional Republican organization smiled.

Some residents out that way think the results have not always been happy, and for that reason seek some one like Mr. O'Brien.

Kelly Has Hard Row To Hoe in Primaries

Congressman Clyde Kelly, in the Thirty-first District, is to be confronted with a real fight this time when he attempts to dip up both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

A Republican, Mr. Kelly has usually managed to line up the Democrats also, the nomination in the past being looked upon as valueless. In the 1932 election he had not only the Republican and Democratic, but the Prohibition nomination as well, in the last national campaign, a strange medley in view of the national attitudes of the three parties on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Representative James L. Quinn, of Braddock, would like to have the Democratic nomination, his one term in the Legislature having given him a taste for statesmanship.

However, there are some Democrats who would like to see Attorney Carl Smith in the contest.

If things can be worked out amicably Smith and Quinn will not contest against each other, and the man considered best fitted to make the November fight will go to the post in the primary in May. If both should enter it might facilitate the effort of Mr. Kelly to again impregnate himself by picking up both major party nominations.

Ten Aged Women Perished in These Smoldering Fire Ruins at Brookville

THE LEVELED RUINS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA MEMORIAL HOME'S INFIRMARY, HAVEN OF CIVIL WAR VETERANS' WOMENFOLK........TEN, SOME BLIND, DIED IN THE SWEEPING FLAMES

OPEN FIRE PROBE WHERE 10 DIED

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Feb. 21.—A thorough investigation into the infirmary fire in which 10 aged women—kin of Civil War veterans—perished was slated for today by the board of managers of the Pennsylvania Memorial Home.

The board was to meet this afternoon. The officers also plan to replace the fire-leveled one-story frame building with a new modern structure which will meet the requirements of the State Department of Welfare.

Meanwhile, the home will be the scene of a mass funeral tomorrow for eight of the victims, all of whom were either widows, sisters or daughters of Civil War veterans. The two others are to be buried from the places they lived before they were inmates of the home.

While the board was going ahead with its investigation, the townsfolk were singing the praises of the institution's night nurse, Mrs. Ella Hulings, who risked her life in a heroic effort to rescue some of the inmates.

TALK OF JUROR HALTS SUIT

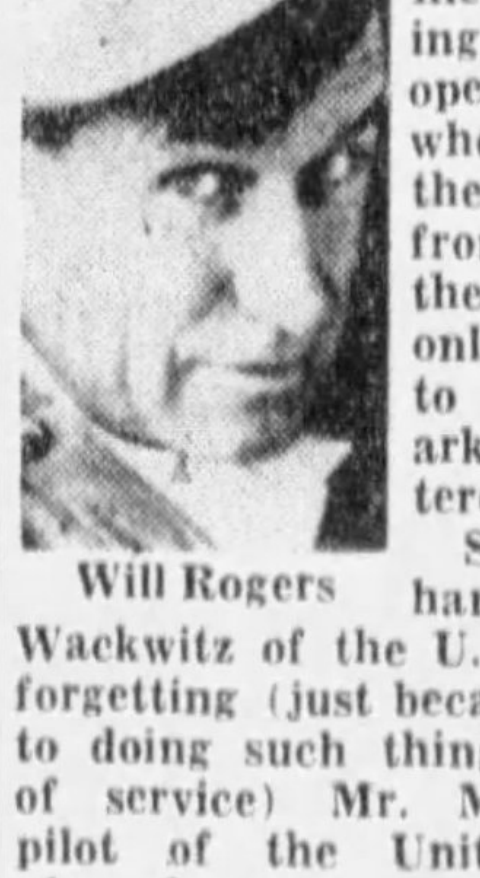
A non-suit was declared in a $50,000 damage action against the Vanadium Corporation of America today after a complaint was made in Common Pleas Court that one of the jurors was seen talking to a clerk employed by defense counsel.

Judge James H. Gray was told the clerk spoke to the juror, an acquaintance, in a restaurant. The court refused a motion of the plaintiff's counsel to continue the trial with 11 jurors and granted the motion of defense counsel for a compulsory non-suit after the plaintiff refused to continue with the trial.

The defense was represented by the law firm of Weil, Christy & Weil. The plaintiff was Ida Griffin, Negro, who charged her husband, Henry, of Bridgeville, died as a result of injury suffered in the Vanadium Corporation plant at Bridgeville.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
NEW YORK, Feb. 21.



Will Rogers

After flying all night, got in here at 8 a. m., right in the wildest of what even California would call unusual weather. Plane stuck in the snow. After it landed, an Army flier came breezing in, in an open cockpit, who had made the same run from Cleveland, these being the only two planes to land in Newark all day yesterday.

So give a big hand to Lieut. Wackwitz of the U. S. Army, not forgetting (just because he is used to doing such things after years of service) Mr. Maurice Mars, pilot of the United passenger plane I was on.

It was so cold yesterday that for one hour they didn't roll the dice on the New York Stock Exchange. When those crapshooters' hands can't roll 'em, it's cold.

Yours, WILL.

DR. CHALFANT RITES SET

Funeral services for the Rev. Charles Latta Chalfant, 66, of 118 Monitay avenue, Ben Avon, who died Monday, will be held in the T. B. Moreland funeral home, 401 North Highland avenue, at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Dr. Chalfant, general secretary of the Presbyterian Hospital and of the Western Theological Seminary, was born at Martins Ferry, O., September 28, 1867. His father, the Rev. George W. Chalfant, was pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church in East Liberty.

A graduate of Shadyside Academy, Lafayette College and the Western Theological Seminary, Dr. Chalfant also received the degrees of doctor of divinity from Lafayette College, and doctor of laws from the College of Idaho.

His first pastorate was that of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Cleveland. Later he served as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ashtabula, O.; Grace Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, and the First Presbyterian Church, Boise, Ida., resigning the last charge to become vice president of Idaho College.

Dr. Chalfant leaves his wife, two sons, George Preston, of San Francisco, and Frank Elgin, of Boise; a daughter, Mrs. E. B. Hinshaw, of Westfield, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. U. S. Greves, of Greensburg, and a brother, Judge Edward C. Chalfant, of Pittsburgh.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason, a member of the Royal Arcanum, and of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

DOG SHOT, TRIO HELD IN ATTACK

Three men were held for further investigation by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt at a hearing in Central Police Court today on charges of aggravated assault and battery, after they were alleged to have attacked two men and fatally shot a dog that pursued them.

Edward Kwiatkauski, 24, of 153 Forty-third street; Carl Jadlowiecz, 19, of 2221 Mulberry way, and Stanley Ejzak, 18, of 2307 Penn avenue, were arrested after, police said, they attacked Joseph Kunkel, 62, of 3612 Smallman street, at Thirty-eighth street and Mineral way last night and then beat John Nowicki, 23, of 177 Thirty-eighth street, as he came to Kunkel's aid. Police said Ejzak is a United States sailor home on leave.

A police dog, owned by Mrs. Mary Splan, of 3708 Charlotte street, was killed by the trio when the animal gave chase after the attack, police reported.

Stricken in Street, Man Dies in Store

Joseph P. Kerin, 23, of 247 Versailles avenue, Versailles Township, collapsed in an East Pittsburgh street last night of a heart attack and died a short time later in the store of T. W. Allen, 900 Dixon avenue, East Pittsburgh, according to a Coroner's report.

Oil Derrick Blaze Threatens Homes

A 300-gallon oil storage tank and several frame houses were threatened by a burning oil derrick in Davis avenue, Bellevue, early today. Firemen played water on the homes and tank for several hours.

UNIFORM BUDGET DEMAND GAINS

Many Favor Forcing Accountings By Smaller Units

(A uniform budget and accounting system for all local governments in Pennsylvania is being sponsored by many civic and taxpayers' groups. The operation of such a bill is reviewed in today's article, the thirty-eighth of a series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing in its campaign to lower taxes by eliminating waste and duplication in government.)

Economists, taxpayers' leagues and civic groups throughout the state are looking favorably on the presentation in the next session of the Legislature of a bill to provide for installation of budget and accounting systems for the many local governments in the state and force local officials to make periodic reports to Harrisburg.

A bill which would have answered the purpose was presented in the Legislature during the last special session, but did not receive the full support of the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

The National Economy League, Western Pennsylvania branch, the State Chamber of Commerce and numerous other organizations are anxious to see a uniform accounting and budget act in force in this state.

Such a bill would apply to all districts and units having the power to appropriate public money or levy taxes. All budgets and tax levies would be adopted according to forms and procedure prescribed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. No final action would be taken on any budget until at least one public hearing had been held. Facts on the budget, when completed and ready for passage, would be available to the public.

The bill also would provide that no time during the year could expenses of any department exceed the appropriation. The only additional appropriation which could be made during the fiscal year would be to meet emergencies such as epidemics, floods, fire or other catastrophes.

Such a bill would further provide that within 15 days after the budget had been adopted, a copy be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The legislation would provide that the Secretary of the Commonwealth formulate and prescribe the system of keeping accounts, which system would be uniform for each class of local government specified.

The legislation would provide fines for local public officials refusing or neglecting to comply with the requirements of the Secretary of the Commonwealth within a reasonable length of time.

Such legislation would also provide that the fiscal conditions of every local government [illegible] viewed in a report [illegible] with the sta[illegible]

Officials Would Be Required to Send State Reports to follow a system formulated by the officials at Harrisburg.

After all reports had been submitted, the bill would provide that the Secretary of the Commonwealth prepare a comparison of statistics. The state report would indicate the comparative receipts of sources of revenue and the comparative costs of the several branches of government in the specified local governments, one report being issued for each class of local governments.

2 Policemen Held In Attack Charge

Two Braddock policemen are under $1,000 bond each today after being held for court on charges of aggravated assault and battery at a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace George H. House, of Braddock.

The officers, Philip Cognito and Thomas Frain, were arrested on charges preferred by Edward Kress, of 25 Moody street, who testified the policemen beat him following his arrest on February 11.

Kress will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles M. Richards, of North Braddock, tonight, on charges of resisting an officer, filed by Cognito.

WOUNDED THIEF PLEADS GUILTY

From a wheelchair in Criminal Court today Jack Delperino, 26, of Chicago, pleaded guilty to a robbery charge and waived extradition to Chicago to face a murder charge.

He was shot by Patrolman Michael Nowicki as he fled from an $81 holdup of the Strand Restaurant, 524 Court place, January 9, the court was informed.

Delperino refused, in Mercy Hospital, to disclose his identity, but it was established through exchange of Bertillon records. He is wanted in the slaying of Emil Onesta with a sawed-off shotgun in Chicago, July 18, 1933, and in a bank robbery in Mauston, Wis., the court was told. Judge W. Heber Dithrich suspended sentence so Delperino can be taken to Chicago for trial.

SEEK TO DRY UP NIGHT CLUB

Petitions for revocation of the beer and liquor licenses of Ester Danzilli, proprietor of the Cocoanut Grove Club, 5124 Liberty avenue, were filed in Quarter Sessions Court by District Attorney Andrew T. Park late yesterday.

In the suits, presented by Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillips, it is alleged beer was sold at the place last Sunday. It was also charged that the place is "a common, ill governed and disorderly house" and that it is a common nuisance and disturbance in the neighborhood. The court will hold a hearing later.

Alert Wall Street Grabs Corner on Snowball Market

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Big blizzard postponed Wall Street an hour yesterday.

So much snow the boys didn't know whether to buy or sell.

American Sleigh Bells opened quiet and closed jangling.

The last time Wall Street opened late was during an eclipse of the sun eight years ago. The boys were nervous. They remembered that Harriman bought the Erie Railroad in the dark.

Only last year a speculator tossed a gas bomb in the ventilator shaft. It didn't bother anybody because the lads hadn't been breathing since 1929.

The trend is still upward if you don't look at a thermometer and can forget foreign loans.

RECEIVERSHIP FEAR CITED BY COUNCILMAN

Tells Democrats to Get More Facts on Trolley Situation

Councilman William A. Magee has threatened to go before the Public Service Commission and ask the extension of the Traction Conference Board agreement unless Democrats in Council seek more facts and make fewer demands about the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the five-cent fare.

Magee declared that if the present policy of Council is followed the result may be to force the company into a receivership. He said:

"In that case, instead of a five-cent fare, there would probably be a ten-cent fare."

HINTS AT CHAOS

Councilman John J. Kane, Democrat, asked what would prevent the city from operating bus lines, and Magee replied that chaos similar to that which occurred during the trolley strike would exist.

Assistant City Solicitor John J. Kennedy revealed that the company has indicated a willingness to make certain fare reductions based on the arrangement of zones.

Magee, objecting to the method of making demands of the railways company rather than going after facts, said:

"Unless there is a change, I think I'll feel it my duty as an individual citizen and member of this Council to go before the Public Service Commission and ask it to extend this contract (traction conference agreement). The Democrats should have a member on the Traction Conference Board, and have information from some member of their own choice."

TEMPORARY AGREEMENT

An ordinance passed by the old Council extending the traction conference agreement for two years from February 1 is still before the Public Service Commission. Out of respect for the new administration, Council agreed to operate under a temporary agreement with the railways company for three months.

The two-year extension is still before the P. S. C., and may be approved unless Council gives definite reasons why it should not be.

The Mayor has a written request in Council asking that the appointment of William E. Schoyer to the Traction Conference Board be held up. He has not stated a reason.

FEDERAL JUROR STRICKEN

James M. Clarke, 72, a juror in Federal Court, was stricken with pneumonia yesterday afternoon while serving on a jury and was removed to his home at 1916 Perrysville avenue.

He was on a jury deliberating in the damage suit of Mrs. Marie Mincin, of Mt. Lebanon, against the Louden Packing Company, of Indiana, tried before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. The trial began Thursday and was given to the jury at 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

Attorneys John E. Evans and Sebastian C. Pugliese, for the plaintiff, offered to accept a verdict from the other 11 jurors but defense counsel would not agree. Mrs. Mincin, mother of eight children, claimed the death of her husband, Alfred Mincin, on April 10, 1932, was caused by eating infected beans, canned by the defendant concern.

CLEAR SLEUTHS IN BAIL CASE

Two city detectives, Albert Schreckengost and Joseph Foster, were exonerated today of any wrongdoing in connection with obtaining a bail bond for a woman arrested for shoplifting.

The woman had complained she gave $50 to Schreckengost to get a $1,000 bond for her release. Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith today explained an investigation revealed the regular price for a professional bond of that amount was $100, that the detectives had obtained a cut-rate for the woman and had paid the $50 fee to the bondsman.

Mayor McNair and Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall participated in the hearing, Smith said, and agreed the two officers were blameless.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

SALES TAX HELD ESSENTIAL TO RECOVERY

"Unless Congress at this session passed a federal sales tax law the country will face conditions which are likely to offset the good of the industrial recovery program.

"The situation is so dangerous that I feel national attention should be directed to it in the most earnest way."

This warning was issued today by J. Howard Pew, of New York, a former resident of Pittsburgh and Grove City, Pa., in an article written for Hearst newspapers. Mr. Pew, president of the Sun Oil Company, a recognized spokesman for one of America's key industries, added:

"Nearly all legislatures will meet early next year, confronting empty treasuries and strikes of taxpayers. Many will resort to sales taxes unless the federal government beats them to it.

"I can imagine few things more demoralizing to business. States cannot constitutionally tax interstate commerce. Therefore states sales taxes would be avoided by buying in interstate transactions, putting a premium on mail order business, discriminating against local merchants, and disrupting established trade channels.

"A little study of our two most onerous taxes of this kind—on gasoline and cigarets—will illustrate my point. State gasoline taxes vary from 2 to 7 cents. Their wide variations have caused evasion, racketeering and demoralization.

"On the other hand, cigaret taxes, so long as they were exclusively federal taxes and therefore uniform, caused no such trouble. But recently a number of states have started taxing cigarets. Bootlegging and evasion have set in. Railroad cars carying cigarets have been looted and railroad companies are organizing special police protection.

"If states pass sales taxes, buyers will beat the taxes by trading across the state lines. Merchants will lose their trade to distant centers. Money will be drained away from one area into another. The whole organized, responsive, responsible system of merchandizing will be demoralized.

"Personally I would favor a constitutional amendment reserving this tax to the national government, perhaps distributing part of it among the the states. But we should not wait for that. Congress ought to pass a general sales tax now, and quite independently initiate the reservation amendment.

"A federal sales tax would be almost instantly adjustable to conditions. It would put an end to the present anomaly of excessive excises on a few articles, some of them above 100 per cent of manufacturer's cost.

"A general sales tax would be equitable and painless, and it would insure a permanently balanced federal budget."

CAMPBELL ASKS OLD POST

Candidates for federal and state office obtained petitions from the County Elections Bureau in a decreasing number yesterday, among them being Guy E. Campbell, of Crafton, seeking his old seat in Congress.

The second woman candidate for Congress appeared, Marye Kelly, of the First Ward, taking out petitions to run in the Thirty-second District, now represented by M. J. Muldowney. Mrs. Anne E. Felix is also a candidate, and her contest against Muldowney is still unheard by Congress.

Petitions were obtained for the following:

CONGRESS

Thirtieth District—Edwin A. Glenn (R. D.), Gibsonia.

Thirty-second District—Marye Kelly (R. D. I.), First Ward, John J. Laffey (R. D.), Fourth Ward.

Thirty-fourth District—Guy E. Campbell (R.), Crafton.

STATE SENATOR

Sixth District—Tom Mooney (R. D. I.), Twentieth Ward, William Penne (R. D. I.), Seventeenth Ward, Ralph E. Livingston (R. D.), Twentieth Ward, James F. Kennedy (D.), Nineteenth Ward.

Seventh District—Robert H. Hartz (D.), Twenty-fifth Ward, E. C. Ferris (R. D.), Twenty-fifth Ward, E. C. Price (R. D.), Twenty-second Ward.

Tenth District—Thomas B. Brown (R. D.), Rankin.

Eleventh District—Julius C. Hamrock (D.), Homestead, Alfred J. Ackerman (R. D.), Whittaker.

Twelfth District—Cyrus A. Davis (R. D.), McKees Rocks.

Thirteenth District—James J. Dillon (R. D.), Edgeworth.

Monaca Jury Fix Retrial Sought

Arguments for a new trial for Charles F. E. Fahey, convicted last November of embracery in attempting to "fix" a jury that was to have tried the "Three Toms" in the Monaca Club raid case were made by Attorney Harry A. Estep before Judges James H. Gray and W. Heber Dithrich in Criminal Court late yesterday. He charged that heresay evidence had been admitted and that the court had erred in defining the law to the jury.

Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson opposed a retrial. The judges will rule later.

HONOR HEADS OF ORPHANAGE

A testimonial dinner honoring Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Deutelbaum, superintendents of the J. M. Gusky Hebrew Orphanage for 16 years, was held in the Concordia Club last night. More than 200 persons attended.

The speakers were John H. Adams, principal of Perry High School; Mrs. Enoch Rauh, former director of the city welfare department; Sidney Teller, director of Irene Kaufmann Settlement; Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, of Rodef Shalom Temple; Mrs. Josiah Cohen, widow of the late Judge Cohen, first president of the orphanage; Leo Lehman, treasurer; A. L. Solomon, honorary president; Aaron Schwartz, a graduate, and Melvina Perlberg, representing present residents.

Attorney Louis Caplan, president of the home, presided.

County to Buy Gas Wholesale

The County Commissioners will set up their own gasoline tanks for the storage of gasoline, and save 4 cents a gallon, they decided yesterday.

Commissioner C. M. Barr ordered bids asked for two 12,000-gallon tanks, so that the county could buy tank car lots at 6 cents below the wagon price. In the past the county bought at 2 cents below the wagon cost. Barr explained that the county should save $15,000 a year by buying "wholesale."

REGISTRATION RULES GIVEN

The new registration committee, faced with the setup of permanent registration, today issued a statement explaining the necessity of naturalized citizens presenting their naturalization papers or certification of their citizenship when they register, beginning March 29.

The commission, Jacob Frank and Thomas A. Joyce, also announced that beginning March 29, registration will be from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. without interruption. Registrars will sit in the regular booths throughout the city. After March 29 voters may register at the commission's office in the County Building.

Cleaners to Honor Assembly Candidate

A testimonial dinner in behalf of M. A. Marcus will be held in the Hotel Henry tomorrow evening. The dinner will be given by the cleaning and dyers' operators of Pittsburgh. Marcus is president of the Iron City Dry Cleaning Company and a member of the NRA Code Authority for the cleaning and dyers industry. He is a candidate for Legislature. W. J. Mooney will be toastmaster and William Steinberg is chairman of the arrangements committee.

MRS. PINCHOT FLIES HERE FOR MEETINGS

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, arrived by plane at the City-County Tirport today, to make a series of speeches in the Pittsburgh district.

She will speak before the Forest Hills Civic Club tonight in the Forest Hills School, Atlantic avenue. Tomorrow night Mrs. Pinchot will discuss labor conditions in Pennsylvania before the annual Washington birthday dinner-meeting of the Women's Political Educational Association in Kaufmann's.

Sharing the same program will be John D. Meyer, former United States district attorney and now assistant state attorney general, who will discuss the proposed manufacturers' sales tax legislation pending before Congress to replace the income tax.

Mrs. Sarah Braun, former member of the registration commission of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the meeting.

Virtually all postal employes will be given a holiday tomorrow, according to a mandatory order posted by the Postoffice Department. There will be no delivery or window service.

Star routes will operate, and special delivery and perishable mail will be handled. Limited holiday collectons and dispatches will be maintained. Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution will place a wreath on the Washington statue, Montgomery and Sherman avenues, in a breif ceremony to start at 11:30 a. m.

E. S. Fairley, commander of the North Boroughs Post No. 116, American Legion, will initiate more than 50 boys into the newly-organized Sons of the American Legion, at 8 p. m., in Bellevue Borough Hall.

Judge Benjamin Lencher will speak on the "Life of George Washington" at tomorrow's luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange in Smithfield Grill.

Dr. F. J. Ferguson, of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society, will address the Thursday noon meeting of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A.

Fancy Paint, Cheap Meat for Jail Puzzle Barr

Warden John McNeil, of the County Jail, was called before the County Commissioners yesterday to explain why he wanted a patented paint, costing $2.67 a gallon, nearly twice as much as another brand.

Said Commissioner C. M. Barr:

"I can't understand why he wants $2.67 paint for the jail when he buys three-cent meat."

McNeil explained the paint had been tested and found good, but its equivalent would do. The commissioners ordered bids readvertised.

MORE PLANNERS MAY RESIGN

Further changes in the City Planning Commission loomed today following the resignation of L. W. Monteverde, chairman.

Edwin W. Mudge, steel executive and vice president of the Planning Commission, was rumored ready to resign, and others are expected to follow.

Posts on the commission are honorary, offering no pay. In his resignation, Monteverde said he felt he had done his duty as a citizen in serving seven years, six of them as chairman.

Mayor McNair said he had a man in mind for Monteverde's place, but would not name him. McNair recently dismissed Commissioners S. L. Tone and W. C. Rice, appointing Frank Vittor and Henry Brockman.

Litigation Ordered Over County Audit

County Commissioner C. M. Barr yesterday ordered the county law department to proceed in court against Robert G. Woodside, county controller, to force him to furnish or authorize Ernst & Ernst to furnish the commissioners with a copy of the 1828 county audit.

The action, approved by the board, followed Woodside's second refusal to submit a copy of the audit over to the board.

M'NAIR SCORNS 'PLOT' TO TAKE CITY AUTO

Mayor McNair has denounced vigorously a "plot" which he says has been hatched in City Council to separate him from his automobile.

The Mayor, while he still rides street cars to work occasionally—he did so with great regularity during the campaign—has found increasing use for the big car assigned to the Mayor's office. He wants to keep it.

Lifting the curtain of secrecy which has veiled recent sessions of Council, the Mayor described the scheme originating in Council to eliminate his official car and named as the author Councilman William A. Magee.

Magee, while Mayor, eliminated all city cars in favor of taxicabs.

McNair, shortly after his inauguration, turned over his car to city assessors, but recently has been using it so frequently that assessors have had little chance to get it. Members of the McNair family have also been using the car.

Asked if Council had proposed to take away the car, McNair said:

"That's Magee's idea. He's a bachelor and all the walking he does is from the hotel to the office. He wants to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars for surveys, and try to save a little money by using taxicabs. He was the best spending Mayor Pittsburgh ever had."

McNair declared he is opposed losing the car as he considers that it is now necessary, particularly to meet his speaking appointments.

The car is the Lincoln sedan which gained considerable prominence during the Kline administration because of its special equipment, over-sized tires and monogram.

Tax-Free Building Plan Held Illegal

Mayor McNair's proposal to exempt from taxation by city ordinance new homes up to $6,000 in value has been declared in opposition to state constitution by City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully.

Expressing regret at the necessity of an adverse opinion, Scully said the constitution provides that all taxes must be uniform on the same class of subjects. Scully also voiced the belief Council would not have authority to exempt property from taxation.

INSURANCE LET BY M'NAIR AIDE

William B. Foster, city assessor, is handling placing of the city's insurance, at the request of Mayor McNair.

Foster, a member of the Henry George Club and of the Mayor's inner circle of advisors, says he is attempting to put the city insurance on a business basis.

Himself an insurance agent, Foster has made it clear that he is not receiving commissions for the city work. For a time, Mayor McNair planned to place all the insurance through Foster and have the latter rebate portions of his salary, thus saving the city money. Concerning that idea, Foster said:

"That is out. I was never enthusiastic for it. The companies have strict rules against rebating."

Foster said members of the Mayor's insurance committee have received some of the business, and voiced the belief that they are entitled to it because of their efforts to help the city.

McNair On Trip, Due in Lancaster

Mayor McNair was to be in Lancaster today on the first leg of his eastern trip. Tomorrow he will visit Mayor Howard Jackson in Baltimore, and inspect the model financial system of that city.

Late tomorrow he expects to be in Washington to discuss Pittsburgh housing plans with Federal Housing Director Robert D. Kohn.

STOICS WIN COMFORT ON DEVIL'S ISLAND

Killer Describes Tortures Which Revolters Face

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XIX

CAYENNE, French Guiana.—It's late afternoon, not quite dark, and I loaf on a steel bench looking across the South Atlantic.

The sea is lazy, muddy, filled with tiger sharks. Well-fed tiger sharks because they feast on human bodies. You can sometimes see one cutting the swell with a black fin. Or at night you catch the phosphorescent gleam from their slimy skins.

On either side of me sits a blue-jawed killer in the pink and white uniform of the Devil's Island convict.

They are doing life for murder, but in the gathering gloom you'd take we three for carefree tourists at a Riviera winter resort. This is the hub of the 12 most talked about and written about penitentiaries in the world; capital city of the Land of Do Without.

Bridge Before Lock-Up

The lifers light up a last cigaret before shuffling off to their cells for 6 o'clock supper. If anything interesting turns up they'll go to the little cafes under the palm trees and buy their supper, then play a hand or two of bridge before sauntering off to jail.

There will be no guards along the way to check them up. If they don't turn up, no bloodhounds will bay at their heels, no sirens will scream, no search parties will go out. It's all rather matey.

Let's ask Marcel all about this. Marcel is the black-haired fellow with the steel blue jaw, one of the convicts who sits beside me here and keeps slapping at mosquitoes on his ankles. He doesn't say much about what brought him here but it's all in the records. A robbery here, a forgery there and finally he killed his landlady with a piano stool. That was in Strasbourg and he got 12 years in Guiana.

A Convict's Story

Let's start at the beginning:

"Marcel, you killed your landlady?"

Flipping his cigaret butt into the sea, he replied:

"With a stool."

"Well, why didn't they guillotine you?"

He shrugged his shoulders and lit another Algerian fag:

"Justice; that's what they call it. I was sent to Rochelle and held there in a big dormitory three months. Then came the Martiniere and we went aboard.

"It was awful, for the sea was rough, and we were locked below decks for 19 days with never a breath of air and no place to sit."

"And you went to the big transportation base at St. Laurent?"

"Yes, I was a killer. My papers were bad. I was sent to Joseph. That was terrible. Nothing could be worse. Men there were dying, men sobbed, men went mad. I knew then why our average life was only five years. I knew then why 10,000 of the original 12,000 settlers to come here died the first year. The mosquitoes were deadly, the weather was suffocating. The beds were plain filthy boards. We were 60 in a room. Men with hideous sores, and depraved habits. The strong overpowered the weak and there were murders and debaucheries."

"But what happens as the result of these cell murders?"

"Nothing, except when squealers say who plunged the knife. Then it is death to the squealer. The word spreads almost at once. Every convict in this colony knows right now who you are and what you are doing. That's a funny thing because they got the wrong information on you, Sinclair. Somebody spread the word that you'd come down from the United States government because France wouldn't pay her war debts and you were going to seize the island!"

"I wouldn't give you 10 cents a dozen for islands like this. But tell me, how long did you stay on the island?"

"Seven months; and there were five killings in our cell in that time. The court killer did them all . . . and I think everybody knew."

"But how could this so-called executioner be searched day after day and still keep great knives about his body?"

The Disappearing Act

"Easy. Watch."

He whipped a greasy blade, which every convict carries, on me, then stuck it inside his smock again. I felt his body carefully but there was no ridge or bump to indicate where the deadly blade lay. He took the smock off and sat there bare from the waist up. I still could not see the knife. It was tucked very carefully under his arm and hung there in a flesh-colored scabbard of tape.

"Where did you go from the island?"

"To the mahogany camp. It was in the open and I liked that but some of our men died of sunstroke and fever. I was there two years. One day with two Chinese I planned to escape. One of the Chinese was a 'librere.' He had served out his eight years. He got us a boat.

"We had some dried fruits, some bread, some water and a map. We paid an Indian $30 to get us into Dutch territory and he did that. We found the trail through the swampland too but the bats were terrible. Vampire bats. They drank our blood straight out of our faces. We tried sleeping by day and splashing on through the jungle at night. One of the Chinese disappeared. Just disappeared. I think he fell into the quicksand. I don't know but that voyage was . . . it was forever. I think I was glad when they caught me and brought me back."

"Who?"

"Those bloodhounds. The Indians. Fiends they are. They get a reward for every man. Oh, yes. They say they track down convicts for the reward money. That's lies; lies; lies! They rob us, they murder us.

"The odds are all against us, the cards are stacked. So; with me, it was the blockhouse, then the tribunal. There were judges on my case from Guadalupe, from Martinique and one from France. They sent me six months to the dungeons on Royale.

"Nothing but bugs, boredom and blinding darkness. We never knew what day it was. We never knew if it was day or night. We screamed; we shrieked; we cried like babies.

The Stoic Wins

"So I learned to be what you call a stoic. I learned the nonsense of rebellion in such a place, and here I am.

"The guard tells me what to do. Perhaps it is run a message, perhaps wait some place to run a message if I'm needed. Or I cut the grass, or clean a ditch or smooth a road. I work maybe three hours, maybe only two. Then I am finished for all day.

"After that I can go into the jungle, or for a swim or a walk. Or I can meet my lady friend... Oh, yes, our boys all have lady friends. Some think this is a big joke. Love in the jail-house. But it doesn't do to make rebellion. If you will come now we will all drink some wine."

All the benches under the almond trees were occupied now. There were spooning couples on some of them. White men in their prison togs which looked, in the twilight, like lounging pajamas. They were making love to brown girls or tawny women from Java. We walked through.

We came up a damp unpaved street, hesitated a minute at a whitewashed dance hall where a band blared, "Follies Bergere," the sign said. We kept pattering up the street and passed through a thick green clump of bamboos. Studded here and there in the bamboos were wooden crosses and mounds of red dirt. Marcel said:

"Most of us get in there some day. We are still convict in the graveyard."

"Why?"

"Only the dishonored are dumped into the bamboos. Years ago they piled the dead one on top of the other without coffins. The vultures fed on the corpses and scattered the bones. But now civilization has come. We get a separate grave, and a coffin. But no mourners, no friends, no priest."

Marcel didn't sound as if he regretted this very much and he was jingling some coins in his pocket as we turned into the bar.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

At a simple wedding this morning a Pittsburgh girl, or Mt. Lebanon, to be exact, became the bride of the grandson of the late Capt. T. J. Vandergrift, a pioneer oil man of Western Pennsylvania.

The bride is Alice Mossman, daughter of the William Templeton Mossmans, of Beverly road, Mt. Lebanon, and the bridegroom, James George Vandergrift, son of F. C. Vandergrift, of Akron, O., an executive in the Goodyear Rubber Co. there.

They were married this morning in the home of the bride's parents, Beverly road, Mt. Lebanon, with the Rev. Edward L. Boetticher, of the Beechview Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. Only the family attended the ceremony.

Grandson of Pioneer Oil Man Bridegroom

The bride was formerly a student at Allegheny College, and the bridegroom a graduate of Ohio State University. After the ceremony, Mr. Vandergrift and his bride will drive to Charleston, W. Va., where the bridegroom is in the oil business.

Mrs. J. Fred Lissfelt, wife of the Sun-Tele's music critic, will sing with the Shapiro String quartette at its concert Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Hotel Schenley.

Mrs. Lissfelt has only recently made her debut as a singer.

Among those one may be sure to see in an audience at the Shapiro quartette concerts are Mrs. O. H. Babcock, Mrs. Arthur E. Braun, Mrs. S. L. Benedito, Mrs. David W. Kuhn, Mrs. Morris Kaufman, Mrs. William S. Moorhead, Mrs. H. H. McClintic.

Mrs. Lissfelt Will Be Shapiro Concert Soloist

Others are Mrs. Edwin Ruud, who is back from California; Mrs. C. A. Shoemaker, Mrs. Josiah Cohen, Mrs. Helen Rauh, Mrs. John E. Nelson.

Off for a nearer resort than those of Florida have been Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins and her daughter, Elizabeth. They are now at popular Pinehurst.

Explains Mystery of Submerged Bouquet

Garden lovers galore—about 300 of them—flocked to town yesterday afternoon to hear Miss Anne Wertsner, professor of floriculture for women at Ambler, Pa., speak on "The Care and Arrangement of Cut Flowers" in Kaufmann's auditorium, sponsored by the western division of the Garden Club Federation.

And many a family last night heard over the dinner table of the charms of bubble bouquets, submerged bouquets and bouquets of cut flowers, stuck in a neat mound of spongy moss. Miss Werstner showed just how these various floral decorations are arranged.

Frances Petty's Engagement Announced

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Frances Petty, daughter of Mrs. Frances Petty and the late John Edward Petty, of New Kensington, to Rowland Hawker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Hawker, of Hulton road, Oakmont.

Formal announcement was made at a party Saturday evening given by Mrs. Petty, who is a former Pittsburgher. Miss Petty was graduated in January from Indiana State Teachers' College. An early fall wedding is planned.

Twentieth Century Meeting Canceled

The twentieth Century Club has declared a holiday for tomorrow, Homer Saint Gaudens having been compelled to cancel his engagement to speak under auspices of the current interests committee.

SOCIETY CAREERS NO. 8: Antique Shopkeepers

MRS. LEWIS KUHN — MRS. RICHARD McCLURE KUHN

The Kuhn sisters-in-law, who have opened an antique and needlework shop in the East Liberty district. And they're not relatives of the Kuhn sisters, similar shopkeeping partners also in East Liberty. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Hearing League To Celebrate 14th Year

The fourteenth anniversary of the founding of the Pittsburgh League for the Hard of Hearing will be celebrated this evening with a reception in honor of new members. Miss Elsie F. Boehmig has planned a program of entertainment.

The Business Women's Club of the league will have its regular monthly meeting on Friday at the league rooms. Miss Sara Minor and Mrs. B. F. Ball will be hostesses at dinner preceding the business meeting.

Women Voters Committees Meet Tomorrow at Congress

All central committees for the monthly conference of the League of Women Voters will meet at the Congress of Clubs tomorrow with the exception of the education committee which has planned a separate meeting in Kaufmann's on Monday.

The child welfare committee will have for its speaker Mrs. A. C. McMillan, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Goodwill Industries. Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack, chairman of the courts committee, will take up the subject of the new Juvenile Court. The living costs committee under the leadership of Mrs. W. M. Parrish will study "The Consumer."

At the morning session Mrs. Doria Boyd will speak on "Armaments and World Peace;" Mrs. Leon D. Hansen on "Advances and Retreats Made on the Peace Front;" Mrs. George Campbell "Planning a New World Society;" Mrs. Arnold Replogle "The Banquet," and Mrs. Carl Behrhorst "Findings and Declarations of the Cause and Cue of War Conference."

The speakers at luncheon will be Mrs. Charles Trimble, whose subject will be "One Hundred Years Hence;" Mrs. A. H. Bowman, "Tea at the White House" and Miss Mary E. Scott "Women Working for World Peace."

Junior League Puppet Show On Feb. 28

A group of busy Pittsburgh Junior League members will be ushers at the marionette show the Junior League will give Wednesday, February 28, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the Frick Training School—this is not a free performance, like those given in some of the public schools by the league.

The ushers for this performance of "The Capture of Mr. Static" and of "The Three Little Pigs," dramatized by Emily Stuart, Pittsburgh Junior League member, will be Mrs. Beverly Shriver, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., Mrs. John Berdan, Mrs. Ellen Stone Bailey, Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III.

On Saturday morning, March 10, at 11 o'clock in St. Stephen's parish house, Sewickley, the performances will be repeated. Mrs. Rhodes Quaile is now chairman of the children's theater of the Junior League, which is, of course, conducting the marionette plays.

She takes the place of Eliza Boyd, who is now in Texas with her mother, Mrs. Richard H. Hawkins, Jr., the guest of Mrs. Hawkins' son and his wife, Lieut. R. Klemm Boyd and Mrs. Boyd, of Fort Sam Houston.

South Hills Republican Unit to Hear Attorney

Mrs. Worth Kinney, of Eastmont avenue, assisted by Mrs. Warren Craig, will entertain the South Hills Council of Republican Women on Friday afternoon. Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay is to discuss "Women's Duties as Voting Citizens."

B'nai B'rith Auxiliary Card Party on Tuesday

The third monthly card party of the B'nai B'rith Auxiliary, Pittsburgh Lodge No. 44, will be held at the Oppenheim-Collins' Auditorium, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs A. Berkowitz, chairman, is assisted by Mrs. I. A. Lichter and Mrs. Cornelia R. Slone.

Bible Verse Federation Theme

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Having in mind that "without vision the people perish," Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has taken a Biblical verse as the theme for the federation's council meeting in Hot Springs, Ark., May 21 to 26. It is "Your old men shall dream dreams and your young men shall see visions." Discussion of outstanding controversial subjects of special interest to women will constitute a part of the program. Birth control will be discussed, both pro and con, Margaret Sanger, president of the National Committee on Federation Legislation for Birth Control, taking the affirmative.

"Clubwomen, What of the Future?" is the subject of a symposium which will occupy one of the evening programs and in which each State Federation president will speak for two minutes on what she foresees in club work. A national broadcast will feature one session and special music is being arranged.

Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will attend.

Council Works To Segregate Juveniles

A new project for the Legislative Council of Western Pennsylvania was announced by Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse, president, at the meeting yesterday in the Board of Education Building, when she pointed out the need for segregation of juveniles awaiting trial.

More than 2,000 juveniles from 16 to 21 years of age are detained with seasoned adult criminals instead of being segregated, according to Mrs. Fouse, who believes that a solution can be found without any increase in local taxes.

Mrs. George Bray heads the committee to study the situation and will be assisted by Mrs. Arnold M. Replogle, Mrs. W. M. Parrish, Mrs. Henry J. Schapper, Mrs. J. Markel, Mrs. Bert Anderson and Mrs. Charles F. Goldthwaite.

A resolution approving the current move to urge the State Relief Board to include rent for Pennsylvania's people on relief was passed after Miss Rose Stein, of the League of Social Justice, explained that the needy of Pennsylvania have had no rent provision so far. A discussion of the problems of the consumer featured the meeting.

Aides Selected For Benefit At Tech

Miss Waide

Miss Sylvia Waide is to be one of the aides for the Washington birthday party and benefit bridge Saturday evening in the recreation hall of Margaret Morrison Carnegie College. The affair is being given by the Household Economics Club of the college to obtain money for scholarships to be awarded students of the household economic department. Miss Margaret Sample and Miss Katherine Davis are co-chairmen.

Other aides will be Miss Mary Duncan, Miss Mary Jane Atkinson, Miss Rita Pearsall and Miss Margaret Schultz. Miss Leah Voegtly is chairman of the ticket committee, which includes Miss Mildred Kelley, Miss Edna Speed, Miss Lillian Herman, Miss Anna Treese, Miss Anne Hill, Miss Edith Volkwein, Miss Betty Nugent, Miss Mary Wettach, Miss Betty Mackay, Miss Elizabeth Stuertz and Miss Ann Linn.

On other committees arranging the benefit are Miss Elsie McCort, Miss Jane Harris, Miss Helen Steibel, Miss Helen Duffy, Miss Mary Frances Nichol, Miss Marcia Barr, Miss Ruth Gustafson, Miss Margaret Weidlein, Miss Veronica Volpe and Miss Bernice Craft.

Patrons for the bridge include Dr. Thomas Stockham Baker, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Porter, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Watkins and Miss Mary Watson Green.

Cabaret Bridge Planned by City Club

March 17 will be not only St. Patrick's Day for the Woman's City Club, but the date of its most important social event of the year as well. For that afternoon a group under Mrs. H. S. Wherrett's chairmanship will give a big St. Patrick's cabaret bridge in the Chatterbox. All sorts of unusual features are being planned, many of them still in embryo, and at the close of the afternoon there will be general dancing.

Among those assisting Mrs. Wherrett on the various committees are the president, Mrs. C. L. Pierce, Jr., Miss Marion Jobson, Miss Viola Clifft, Miss May W. Norton McCutcheon.

City Council P.T.A. Meets Tomorrow

Two speakers will address the February meeting of the City Council Parent-Teacher Associations tomorrow afternoon in the Board of Education Building. Dr. C. R. Hoechst, director of extension education, will speak on "Training for Citizenship" and Dr. S. P. Franklin, of the University of Pittsburgh, on "Better Citizenship."

* * *

Next Wednesday Judge Elder W. Marshall will address the Wilkinsburg City Council, P. T. A., on "Citizenship" This is a regular monthly meeting, called for 1:30 p. m. in the Allison School auditorium. Vivian K. Fay will entertain with a reading during the social period.

Chorus Directors Preside at Tea Urns

As an innovation at the tea which followed the Tuesday Musical Club Choral program yesterday, in Memorial Hall, directors of other local women's choruses were asked to preside at the tea urns. Among them were Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, Woman's City Club; Mrs. Robert Ayers, Girls' Glee Club of the University of Pittsburgh; Anna Laura Cree, Twentieth Century Club Choral; Jane Graninger Hervey, Women's Choral of the Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward; Helen Keil, Girls' Glee Club of the Pennsylvania College for Women; Mrs. James Stephen Martin, Pittsburgh Madrigals; Elsie Breese Mitchell, Congress of Clubs Choral; Mss Ruth Parker, Dormont New Century Choral and Choral of the Butler Music Club, and Miss Amanda Vierheller, of the Sewickley Music Club Choral.

Decorations were carried out in red, white and blue, with flags and tall tapers around a centerpiece of cyclamen.

Workers of Association For Blind Entertained

All the workers and members of the office force, 150 of them at the Association for the Blind were entertained at luncheon by the Town Club in the Association Building yesterday. Later the club had its business meeting in the auditorum.

SIMPLE DESSERTS OF TEN MOST PLEASING

Formula Given for Apple Ginger Pudding

Just because a dessert is fussy and expensive to prepare doesn't necessarily mean it is better than a plain, inexpensive dessert. Often the simple one is more welcome on the part of the eater for after a reasonably satisfying meal no stomach takes to being loaded down. Then, too, a simple dessert makes things much easier for the housewife.

Mrs. M. C. Richardson contributes a very sensible and delicious pudding suggestion today in the form of the $5 prize winner, Apple Ginger pudding. It's the sort of a meal-finisher the family will like and which will be very healthful for all generations.

Prudence Penny wants your recipe suggestions too. She asks that you send them in to her at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. In return you may win either the $5 prize or one of the ten $1 prizes she awards daily. She returns no recipes.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. M. C. RICHARDSON,
301 Orchard street (10).
APPLE GINGER PUDDING

Three cups flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon salt.
One and one-half teaspoons ginger.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
One cup boiling water.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One cup molasses.
Two cups strained applesauce.

Sift dry ingredients together. Melt shortening in boiling water and add molasses. Combine with first mixture. Place applesauce in shallow pan well greased. Pour batter over applesauce, bake in moderate hot oven (375) until firm in center (about 30 minutes). Serve plain or with whipped cream or hard sauce.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

KITTY SULLIVAN,
323 Westinghouse avenue, Wilmerding.
BAKED TOMATOES AND FISH ROE

Six tomatoes.
One and one-fourth cups fish roe.
One-half cup soft bread crumbs.
One tablespoon minced onion.
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Two tablespoons melted butter.
Salt and pepper.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.

Cut a thin slice off the stem end of the tomatoes and scoop out centers. Combine fish roe, bread crumbs, onions, Worcestershire sauce, butter, salt and pepper and fill tomato cups. Bake tomatoes, covered, in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 10 minutes. Garnish with parsley.

MRS. C. PIVIROTTO,
1128 Pemberton street.
LAMB PATTIES WITH PEARS.

About two pounds lamb shoulder.

Bone it and put it through the food chopper. Form into patties. Fasten a piece of bacon or salt pork around each one of them with a toothpick. Broil the patties.

Heat a can of pears in their own juice. Drain them and serve them on platter with the patties.

MRS. S. H. KATZ,
6317 Ebdy street, Squirrel Hill.
MIXED FRUIT COCKTAIL.

Four oranges.
Two grapefruit.
One small can peaches.
One large can pineapple.
Small bottle green cherries.
Small glass of mint jelly.
Three tablespoons sugar.
Cocoanut.

Peel oranges and grapefruit, cutting away all the white skin; separate sections, remove seeds and dice. Dice peaches and pineapple. Combine all fruits and juices. Turn mint jelly into saucepan. Add sugar and one-half cup juice taken from combined fruits. Heat until jelly is thoroughly dissolved. Cool, then add to fruits. Chill thoroughly. Serve in sherbet glasses. Center a small mound of cocoanut on each cocktail. Garnish each mound with a green cherry. Place green paper doily under sherbert.

MRS. R. J. McCOLLUM,
R. D. 2, Hasson Heights, Oil City.
BANANA CAKE.

One and one-quarter cups sugar.
One half cup butter.
Cream well.
Two eggs beaten very light.

Two ripe bananas sliced thin, then crushed and whipped with silver fork till foamy.

Two cups sifted cake flour with one teaspoon baking powder and one teaspoon soda.

Alternate flour with one cup thick sour milk.

One teaspoon vanilla.

Bake in slow oven about one hour.

VIOLA FARQUHAR,
204 Avenue F, Wilkinsburg.

One teaspoon gravy flavoring.

Cut up fish and allow to simmer with vegetables in the water for two hours, keeping the quantity of water the same. Lift out fish and vegetables with skimmer, and press through a colander. Return to kettle, adding four tablespoons of flour rubbed into four tablespoons of butter. Stir until mixture boils. Add a pint of milk and season with one and one-half teaspoons salt and one-half teaspoon white pepper. Let boil short while longer. Serve with garnish of sprigs of parsley and two hard cooked eggs cut in slices.

JEWEL SANDWICHES

Cut day old bread into very thin slices and shape into diamonds or discs; with small cutter or knife cut little holes in half the slices. Butter the bread. Spread with cream cheese softened with sweet cream and nicely seasoned. Spread some of the slices with sifted hard cooked egg yolk, others with chopped pistachio nuts and others with quince jelly. Put on the top slices and the colors will peep through the openings like jewels.

VEGETABLE AND MEAT BALLS.

Ingredients
One and one-half pounds ground round steak.
One cup partly cooked rice.
One cup grated carrots.
One cup grated cabbage.
One small onion (chopped fine.)
One small pepper (green.)
Two cans tomato soup.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Method

Wash rice well. Cook in salted boiling water about 15 minutes or until rice is partly tender. Add to the meat one cup rice, chopped onion, chopped green pepper, grated carrots and cabbage. Mix well and salt and pepper to taste. Form into balls. Place in a savory roaster. Pour over vegetable balls, 2 cans of tomato soup, diluted with one-half cup water. Bake in moderate oven for one hour. Makes a complete meal in one dish.

MARY MARGARET KEENAN,

CHOCOLATE NUT DROP COOKIES

One cup sugar.
One-fourth cup butter.
One egg.
One-half cup milk.
One and one-half cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half cup cocoa.
One cup nut meats.

Cream sugar and butter in a bowl. Beat egg and then add egg and milk. Sift flour, baking powder and cocoa, and add to mixture, then add nuts. Stir well. Drop with spoon on greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (375 F.) for 15 minutes.

VIOLET F. SEYBOLD
7229 Penn avenue.
HAM TIMBALES

Four eggs.
One cup milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One teaspoon onion juice, one cup chopped ham.

Beat the eggs slightly. Add the milk, salt, pepper, paprika and onion juice. Add the ham. Turn into buttered molds. Put greased paper over the top. Bake or steam until firm in pan of hot water. Oven should be moderate (350 degrees F.) and timbales should be baked about 25 minutes. Serve with bechamel sauce.

BECHAMEL SAUCE

Two tablespoons butter.
Three tablespoons flour.
One cup meat stock.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One-half cup cream.

Melt the butter. Add the flour. Cook well. Add heated stock (stock may be made by dissolving one bouillon cube in one cup boiling water), being careful to keep the mixture smooth. Add salt, pepper and paprika. Add the cream. Serve with ham timbales. Serves six.

MRS. J. LANDAU,
7430 Ben Hur street.
BAKED VEAL EN CASSEROLE

Two pounds of veal.
One-fourth pound salt pork.
One onion.
Two stalks celery.
One small clove of garlic.
Four slices white bread.
Pepper and thyme.

The veal (it may be a cheap cut) is sliced into small pieces, and the salt pork is sliced into thin strips. The onion, celery, and garlic are chopped together, and the bread is cut into small cubes.

Grease a glass or earthenware casserole, and put a few strips of salt pork on the bottom. Then place in a thick layer of veal. Scatter over it the chopped vegetables and season with pepper and one-eighth teaspoon of thyme. Cover with the bread cubes and scatter the remaining pork strips over the bread. Finally, place a thin layer of veal on top and season. Cover with water and bake two and one-half hours.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

It's days like these last we've been experiencing that make our thoughts turn to cosy home furnishings and furniture! These, and the fact that, as usual, in February furniture comes into its own! So we went trekking down to one of the town's best known furniture stores and found that . . .

True quality is cheaper than "also-rans" (something we always knew but have questioned . . . like all of you). It's the same old story about you "getting just what you pay for" . . . only today, real quality is obtainable at common sense prices instead of the lofty peaks which it reached some four years ago. Just take this for instance . . .

A Kenilworth oak coffee table with drop leaves . . . making it unusually large when opened up—48 inches in diameter. Here is the table of every homemaker's dreams! Sturdy, gracefully fashioned out of mellowed oak . . . in all the beauty of the traditional English style. AND . . . only $35!

* * *

Every home needs a desk. Because . . . if you DO pay your bills, then you have to have a desk on which to write out checks! And if you DON'T pay your bills . . . then you have to have pigeonholes and drawers in which to stick them so they won't be lying around as constant reminders! (Good logic, how about it?)

But anyway . . . anyone who wants a really GOOD desk at a price which we never expected to see on a piece of furniture like this . . . haste away to view this solid walnut desk with the burled walnut top! A marvel of dignity . . . capacity, and beauty! In Louis the fifteenth period with deep lavish carvings at the sides, on the drawers, and the front. Take your little $78 and get this desk . . . Oh deskless ones . . . and we will claim all the credit for the discovery!

* * *

We've heard sighing poems about "alabaster brows" and all such . . . but we'll declare that we never saw or heard about alabaster vanity lamps which could even come close to these for style, unusualness, and superb quality!

They're tall and graceful . . . but their outstanding point is the way that alabaster bows have been "tied" around the base! Someone certainly did a fine job of carving. And the shades are in keeping with the rest of the lamps . . . parchment with coral trim.

* * *

AND—we've seen a French Directoire chair . . . armchair . . . just about the last word in such style. White touched in gold . . . with a green damask seat and a $54 price—which for this is SOMETHING!

FORMAL GOWNS FOR THE 'TWEEN SEASON

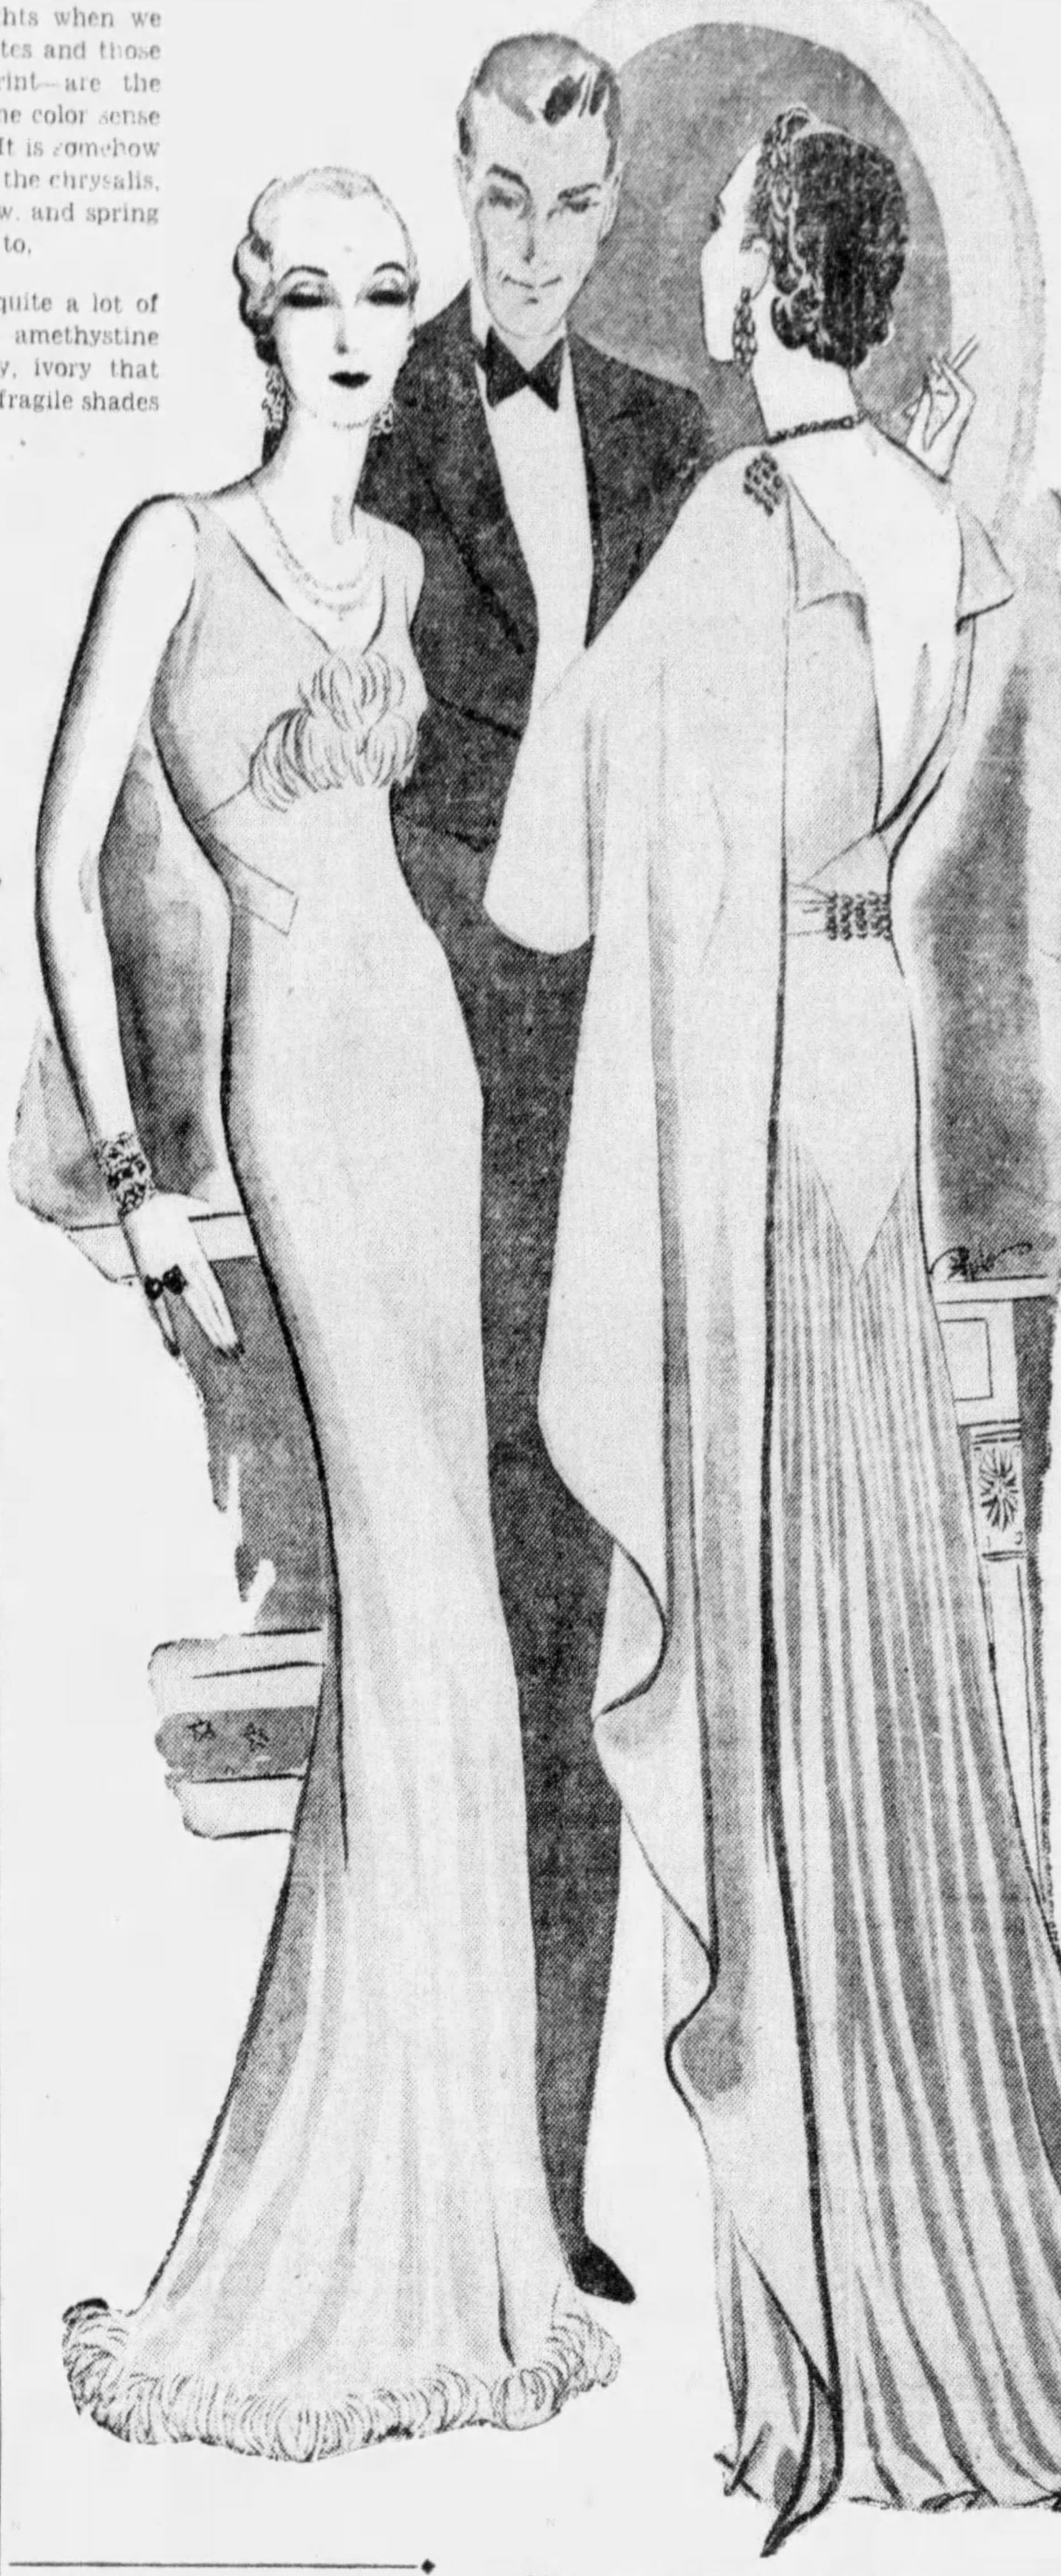
By PRUNELLA WOOD

SPANG between the gala nights when we wear dark, stunning evening toilettes and those when flower effects—color or print—are the vogue is a very good time to rest the color sense with a subtle gown of plain color. It is somehow refreshing, somewhat a bursting of the chrysalis, when winter takes a kiss and a bow, and spring is still something to look forward to.

* * *

THIS 'tween season there is quite a lot of interest in misty off-white tones— amethystine or lichen shadows on palest gray, ivory that may be creamy or pearl-like. Such fragile shades are becoming to tanned or city-white complexions, becoming to real or mock jewels, and grace Palm Beach as adequately as they do Park avenue.

This is the time to gather in a gown of floating chiffon, halfway stop between winter satins and spring tulles. Black chiffon mounted on white, and perhaps titivated with hidden lengths of some bright shade of chiffon through the design, makes an excellent 'tween season gown.



Both these gowns are excellent models to set off jewels which may be really valuable, or merely look that way.

The gown at the left is plain, luscious white crepe, weighted further by a hem border of self-petals, a modif repeated for the bodice corsage. Note the deep decollete and the princess lines of the model. Right a mist gray chiffon over satin, extremely graceful, and worldly with ruby colored jewels.

Pattern 1777

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Printed silks and cottons are enjoying great popularity again this season. We had one in mind when we designed this chic model for the matron, and woman of large proportions. A black, brown or navy blue ground with small coin dots or florals would be good. The lines of the frock are really slenderizing—revers that conceal a full bust, the diagonal seamings suggestive of a two-piece model, new bell sleeves and the touch of contrast in the vestee. Because the waistline is unbelted the silhouette will seem taller and straighter.

Pattern 1777 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3⅞ yards 39-inch fabric and ¼ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

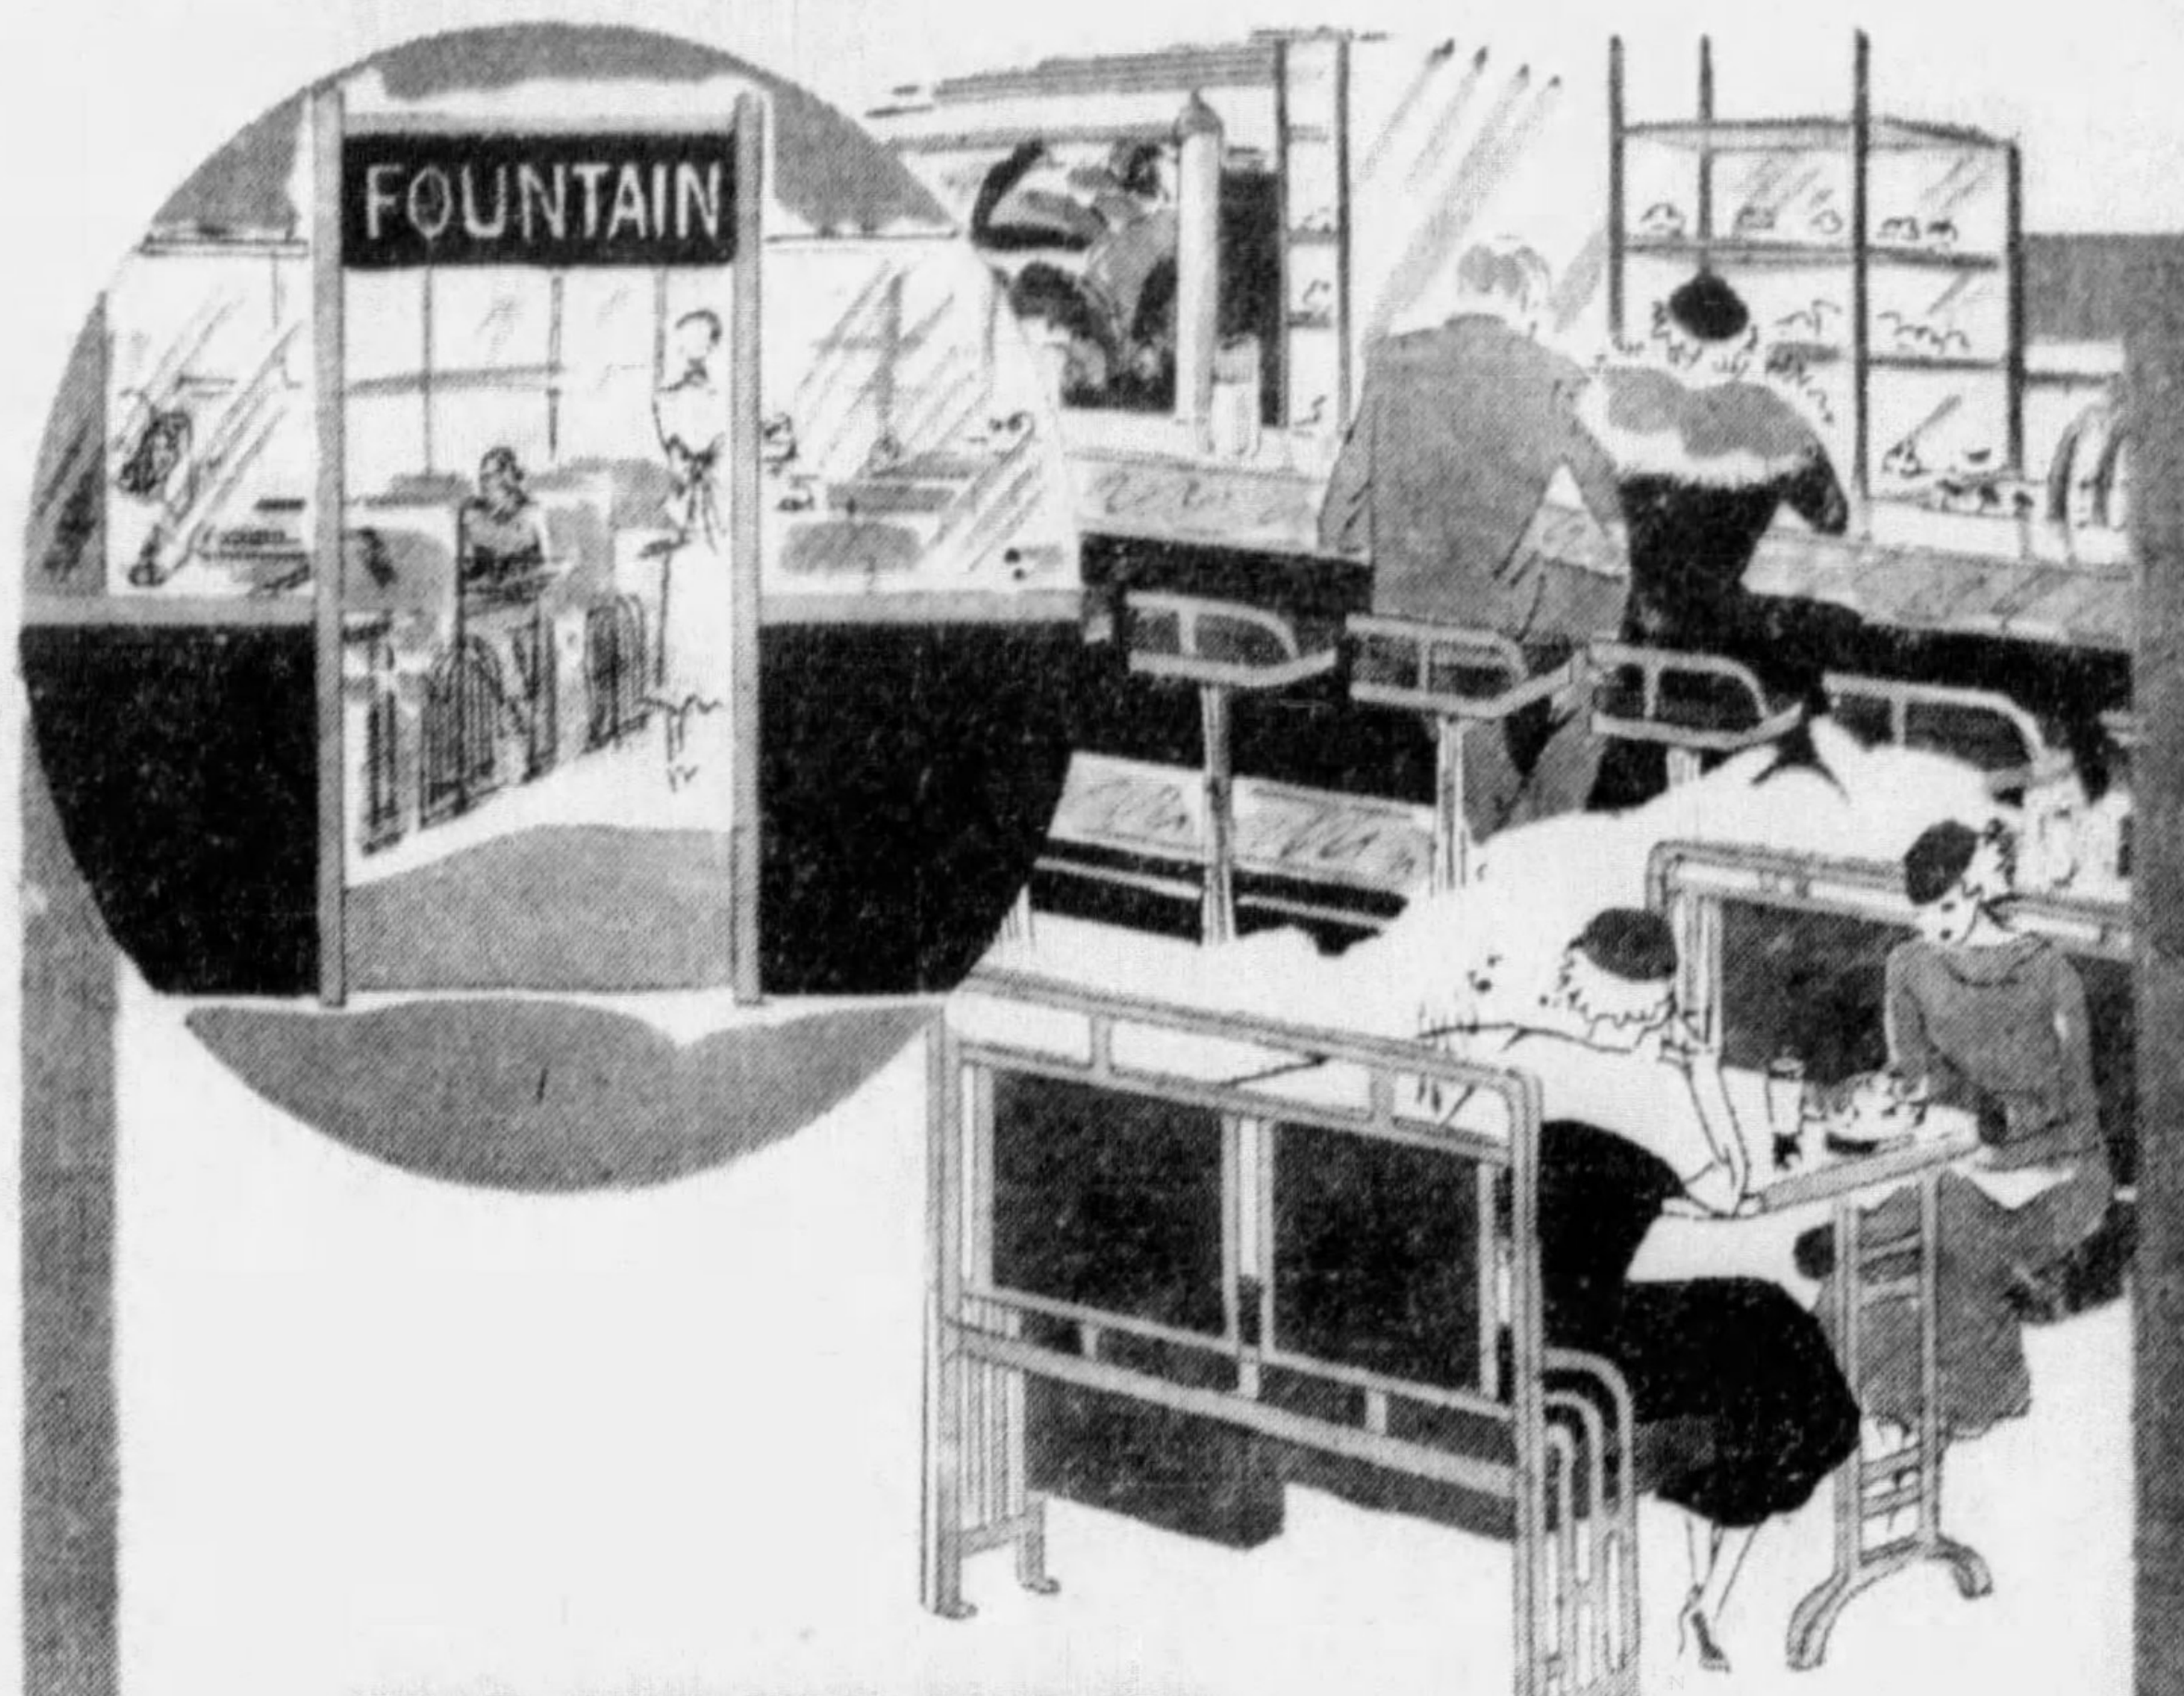
SPRING COATS by Grabowsky

514-516 WOOD STREET

Glorious Grabowsky foxes are rippling and ruffling in a romantic fashion around the necklines of new Spring coats. Where can you find silvery Silver Foxes comparable to these? Where such soft White Foxes dyed subtle blue and grey tones?

We also have many coats of the breezy town and sports types, not furred . . . ridged woolens and beguiling tweeds depending on excellent cut and fabric for their consummate chic.

Coat prices begin at $35



THE STREET FLOOR FOUNTAIN RESTAURANT IS SOMETHING TO SEE

Wall panels, table tops, the Fountain itself, made of Westinghouse's strikingly new micarta. Two murals depicting Farm and Factory Products, and Fruits and Spices are of micarta, too, inlaid in vivid colors. Booths built of aluminum from the Aluminum Company, seats upholstered in smart green leather. Stunning black and white china especially designed for the Fountain. Monel metal fountain fixtures and trimmings.

And the food! . . . Luscious salads, dainty yet satisfying sandwiches, hot dishes. Prompt service by waitresses in gay printed uniforms. We call it the Fountain, but it's really a restaurant. Light, airy, quiet. An ideal place to meet for lunch or a bit of refreshment. The Fountain saves you time and saves you money.

Miss Hepburn To Retain RKO Job

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21.—That trouble between Radio and Katharine Hepburn probably will be settled any minute now, Radio having not the slightest intention of letting that star-power get away from them.

Not only will she make the two pictures her contract still calls for, but the third that Radio wants her to do and that they say Hepburn will be willing to make. Hepburn is one of the few stars on weekly salary at that studio and that weekly salary is tops, and she can make it for as many weeks as she is willing to work, and if she wants to work often enough she can make just as much as the rest.

But it's up to Katherine Hepburn to decide whether movies are to be her career or whether she wants to divide her time between pictures and other interests.

* * *

It not only looks as though Lee Tracy's troubles were entirely over but that the road to recovery for him is going to be a honey. Not only is he starring in a picture (and it was one of many offers), but the fast-talking Tracy has been signed by an oil company for his first broadcast. The oil company pays him $1,250 for a single broadcast. Isabel Jewell, who goes places with Tracy, anyway, goes on the air with him, too, on the program.

* * *

Frank Capra, who is just about the most "in demand" director in Hollywood today, will make another picture for Columbia before swinging over to the M-G-M lot to put "Soviet" into work finally. It will be the Mark Hellinger racetrack yarn, "Strictly Confidential," and Sidney Skolsky (once a columnist) has been signed to play the part of a jockey. Skolsky is reported as being very anxious to play this part because he's never been on a horse in his life.

* * *

And speaking of "Soviet," which has been on again, off again, partly made and scrapped, another picture on Russia has been put on the shelf. Lewis Milestone, after working on the idea for "Red Square" for almost a year and making a special trip into Russia for facts, figures and atmosphere, was told the other day that Columbia will not make the picture, and Milestone is now trying to settle his contract with that company. And we don't think that Milestone has abandoned the idea at all, but will probably get someone else to make it.

* * *

Bert Kalmar, of the Kalmar-Ruby music crowd, is still celebrating his birthdays and had himself a party the other night in honor of his natal day. Edgar Allan Wolfe sat around getting a big kick out of a lot of old programs that Bert has in the house from the time that he and his wife were a vaudeville team, and Wolfe found a lot of acts he wrote but never did get credit for. Charlie Butterworth and Harry Ruby played duets on the piano, but didn't stay together for very long. Maurice Revnes (just back from New York), the Al Newmans, Arthur Hornblow, Leon Errol and Mrs. Chico Marx among the merry-makers.

* * *

Even the independent companies are beginning to consider the foreign markets when they make pictures these days, and the idea now is that if you are to make an English story the best plan is to give it an English cast. M-G-M will try it with "David Copperfield." RKO is doing it with "Dover Road," and Fox, of course, started it with "Cavalcade." Maybe this type casting will result in Americans for American stories exclusively.

* * *

Random shots: Adela Rogers St John and Dick Hyland are divorcing after months of separation . . . John Gilbert is being very sweet to Virginia Bruce again and Hollywood's afraid they'll reconcile . . . Rosamond Pinchot is being hounded by picture companies—says she doesn't want any offers, but consented to an M-G-M test just the same . . . That romance between Tom Brown and Anita Louise is hotter than ever at the moment . . . Pert Kelton says she does her best work when in love—she's doing her best work now, but won't tell who he is . . . Dorothy Lee got up out of a sick bed to go to Denver for personal appearance . . . Benn Levy should feel better—they're not going to use the title "forgotten Lips" for "Springtime for Henry" . . . And those of you who wondered about Warren William starring in "Mona Lisa" will be relieved to hear that it is now being called "Self Portrait" of, by and with Warren William.

Getting Along

Jean Muir has progressed in films to the point of being leading woman opposite Warren William in "Bedside," opening Friday in the Davis and Regent.

Belgian King On Screen

Highlights in the career of King Albert of Belgium, killed by a fall while mountain climbing, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. His voice is heard speaking in his native tongue at the last public function he attended. He is shown with President Wilson during the World War on his visit to this country in 1923. There are also pictures of Crown Prince Leopold who becomes King Leopold II and of Princess Astrid, the new queen.

Latest developments of the air mail situation include a talk by former Postmaster General Brown who declares that a "collosal injustice" will be done the aviation industry unless the order for the Army to carry the mail is changed.

Pictures show the latest blizzard that raged through the East.

Civilian Conservation Corps workers are seen building roads 7,000 feet up in the Sierras, near Lone Pine, Cal.

Ski experts at Norfolk, Conn., stage some new thrills.

Cuba "remembers the Maine" when all Havana turns out to commemorate the sinking of the battleship 36 years ago.

The Flying Codonas, famous aerialists, are seen practicing new stunts at San Pedro, Cal.

Auto racers try out a new track shaped like the letter B at Los Angeles.

The Mardi Gras, at New Orleans, comes to an uproarious climax with a parade.

Youth Hurt in Fall From Rail Trestle

A half hour after he was said to have left his home last night to go to another city, Samuel DePasquale, 19, of 316 Darsie street, fell from the Thirty-third street trestle of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and suffered a broken arm, police reported.

Players and Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Experimental Theater will hold try-outs Thursday night for parts in "Forever Always," by Kilburn Blaisdell, one of two plays by Pittsburgh playwrights to be produced by the Experimenters in March. The other will be "Eleanora's Portrait," by Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit, the cast of which will include Jean King, Robert Lee, Ferdinand Fillion and Joseph Fetchko. The playwright's section will meet Thursday evening also in the Experimental Theater in Aiken avenue.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse has selected "Naked," by Luigi Pirandello as its next production, fifth of the winter season. The date for presentation has not been chosen, but the play will be staged in the Hotel Schenley Theater.

* * *

Alex Kann, Pittsburgh actor, one of the promoters of the summer playhouse at Oakmont last year, also an actor in its productions, is now associated with the celebrity puppet show of Sue Hastings' marionettes in the Merry-Go-Round Club in New York. He is acting as master of ceremonies and puppeteer.

Carnival Dance Listed At Hi Hat Club

Dancing in carnival atmosphere will be featured at the Hi Hat Club, Freeport and Fox Chapel roads, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Waiters and entertainers will wear fancy costumes and the ballroom will be decorated in the same spirit. The floor show will include the Rhythm Sisters, Aleeca, Ruth Malcolm, Beverly Stall, David Jeffries, Nellie Anderson, Thompson Sisters, Jack Jenkins, Helen Thomas, Joe Allen and a dancing ensemble.

Synagogue Plans, For Anniversary

Mr. Rosenbloom

Arrangements for the seventieth anniversary celebration of the Tree of Life Synagogue to be held the week of March 18 are under the direction of Charles J. Rosenbloom, general chairman. The program of events will stress the community-wide aspect and significance of the Tree of Life Synagogue since its founding during the Civil War.

Historical Cycle Gets Play As Class Fiction Waits

By MICHAEL SHAW

Now that the "historical" cycle is well launched, and virtually everybody except Marie Dressler has played or is playing a royal personage of some sort, Hollywood, ever hungry for scenario material, seems inclined to turn from the field of biography (pretty well used up) to that of notable fiction.

Two of the great books of our time are shortly to be transferred to the screen: Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" and W. H. Hudson's "Green Mansions."

These are ticklish tasks. There are plenty of people who admire "Of Human Bondage" beyond all other modern novels, and if the movie makers take too many liberties with it, the outcry is likely to make Theodore Dreiser's howls about the film version of "An American Tragedy" sound like murmurs.

Pretty much the same thing may be said of "Green Mansions." When lovers of Rima, the bird-girl heroine of Hudson's work, raised a fund for a statue of her to grace a park bird-sanctuary, Jacob Epstein sculptured what many thought a monstrosity and London had one of its most violent and entertaining controversies of recent years.

There is hope in the fact that Leslie Howard will play Maugham's club-footed hero, and that lovely Dolores Del Rio will be Rima. Mr. Howard, an actor of sterling integrity, is an author himself. And Miss Del Rio certainly looks nothing like Mr. Epstein's bird-girl.

* * *

Descending to novels of lesser scope and standing, we again find Maugham to the fore in Hollywood. His "The Painted Veil" is to be the basis for Greta Garbo's second picture under her new contract.

Already filmed is G. B. Stern's "Long Lost Father," which was a bit of a best seller a summer or two ago. The screen version enlists the valuable services of John Barrymore.

Another popular book, "British Agent," Bruce Lockhart's story of his experiences in Russia during the war, has been picturized with the busy Mr. Howard in the leading role. This is biography of a sort, and should perhaps be pigeonholed with the works of the historical cycle.

But returning to pure fiction, we find Edith Wharton's "The Age of Innocence" scheduled for Irene Dunn, and Hans Fallada's "Little Man, What Now?" for Margaret Sullavan.

Even authors of a more distant day are being taken up by Hollywood. Samuel Goldwyn chose "Nana" for Anna Sten's American debut, and while the picture is a long way from Emile Zola, we shall undoubtedly find it good entertainment.

And Miss Sten is next to do Tolstoi's "Resurrection," with Rouben Mamoulian in charge. Mamoulian has already directed Garbo and Marlene Deitrich. He must be the world's luckiest man.

* * *

Climaxing or anticlimaxing all this is the news that Warner Brothers are trying to figure out what to do with "Anthony Adverse," that modern marathon of reading sired by Hervey Allen, one-time Pittsburgher, with the aid and comfort of two other fellows—Vincent Nolte and William Hickey—long dead and forgotten. "Anthony" has now reached the stage where it is a radio joke, so the Warners had better hurry up with their picture.

So far as we know, the screen rights to Sinclair Lewis' new one, "Work of Art," are still for sale. Considering what happened to "Ann Vickers" in the movies, perhaps it is just as well.

Meantime the royalty series must run its course. The Fulton has booked "Catherine the Great," an English production with a German star, Elisabeth Bergner, supported by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Later we shall see Marlene Dietrich as the same empress. It is too bad that neither of these ladies is using Shaw's version of "Great Catherine."

ON PITTSBURGH RIALTO

As soon as Ben Bernie arrives in town, he will begin a scout around for a local program to use in his Pittsburgh broadcast Tuesday night, according to Warner Brothers. Incidentally, he will broadcast from WCAE and not from the Stanley stage.

The local Jackie Heller, who was slated to appear with Bernie in the Stanley, will disappoint many of the home town folks by fulfilling a Chicago engagement during Bernie's Pittsburgh visit.

* * *

William Danziger, the advance man for "Broadway Peek-A-Boo," which opens in the Pitt Friday, and Nicholas Boila, the show's production man, worked on the Paramount lot at the same time on Bing Crosby's "Too Much Harmony," but never met until joining the "Broadway" show.

* * *

S. Tilden Stern, the Warner artist whose work is on exhibition at Wunderly's, executed 20 caricatures of the candidates for parts in the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association Purium play to be presented soon. Everybody applauded the caricatures but the caricaturees.

* * *

Judith Dean, with the World's Fair Scandals in the Pitt, was one of the three Texas Guinan girls who succeeded in escaping from the French immigration officials for six hours during that Guinan run-in with the French government. Miss Dean and her two colleagues were finally apprehended by the gendarmes in a Paris cabaret.

Ladies' Hospital Aid Sponsoring Show

The Ladies' Hospital Aid of Pittsburgh is sponsoring a benefit show to be held in the Stanley, Sunday night March 4, to begin at 7 o'clock and run continuously. The organization is badly in need of funds and the proceeds will be used to purchase medical and surgical appliances. A first run picture and short subjects will be shown. Mrs. Simon Seegman, Schenley 2528, is in charge of the benefit and tickets may be obtained from her.

All In A Day

Cash Payment

ARTHUR MET Louisa Littleworth when he was playing a small part in a short-lived production. It was Arthur's first stage role—and it was also his last.

For Arthur was none too fond of work, and toil was not absolutely essential while there was someone like Louisa around. Someone like Louisa who slipped him a little present now and then, and saw to it that he didn't actually suffer for any of the luxuries of life.

Arthur had nothing but the utmost contempt for Louisa. At least, so he told Mazie.

"Listen," he said, "you got no reason to be jealous of that old fool. She's fat and kinda funny, but, on the other hand, she's filthy with money. So why shouldn't I cash in? The old guy died and left her plenty, and if she wants to spend it on me, why should I kick?"

Mazie looked troubled.

"Yeah," she agreed. "I understand that. But what about us? Don't she know how things are between us?"

Arthur smiled serenely.

"I told her we were married, see? I had to explain you some way, and that'll keep her from getting any ideas that maybe she and I could get hitched. I can't very well tell her right out that I don't want to marry her. Not while she's so free with her dough. Now don't you worry none. You love me, don't you, baby?"

Mazie admitted that she did.

"But," she added frankly, "just the same, I think you're an egg." ....

Arthur's method of handling Louisa was a trifle different. He held her hand and gazed into her slightly faded eyes. And when he did that, he was the picture of dejection. For Arthur was a much better actor off-stage than on.

"Darling," he lied, "I hate to be taking all these things from you. It makes me feel bad because—well, I love you so much. Ah, how I wish things were different! If only I had money, or you had less! And then there's my wife! If only she would consent to divorce me!"

Whereupon, Louisa would nod and sigh deeply, too.

"Yes," she would murmur, "life is very hard for people like us!"

And while Arthur was holding her close, he was grinning down her back. Life was certainly ideal when you had brains enough to work things out right.

Things could go on in this fashion for months.

Louisa believed that he and Mazie were man and wife, and that kept her from getting any serious ideas in his direction. And in the meantime, he had Mazie. Mazie was a good kid. He loved her, all right. But he didn't love her enough to give up the things that Louisa's money made possible.

That was what started the quarrel between him and Mazie. She was, she told him, sick and tired of having him run out of the apartment every night to dance attendance on Louisa. Things couldn't go on like that much longer, she declared.

"Don't be dumb," her ardent swain retorted, "I gotta give the old girl some of my time."

"Just the same, I don't like it!"

"Well, if you don't," Arthur growled into his highball, "you can always get out."

"Yes!" Mazie's eyes were bright with anger. "I suppose I can do that!"

Arthur didn't think that she would really go. They had quarreled plenty of times before. Mazie was just a little jealous. She'd get over it.

But Mazie did go. She packed her belongings hastily, went out and banged the door after her. She didn't come back that night. And she didn't come back the next day, either.

Arthur experienced as much regret as it is possible for a man of his type to feel. A few highballs helped some. The knowledge that he must go to see Louisa helped not at all. He was growing tired, too. Tonight he'd tell her it was all off. He'd mention Mazie. That would be as good an excuse as any. Then, after it was all over, he'd hunt up Mazie and persuade her to return to their modest love nest.

He presented himself at Louisa's in his familiar role of heartbroken lover. He kissed her hand and sighed, and the words that he had used so often came easily to his lips.

"My darling, this is hard—very hard. But I must say it. Things can't go on like this any longer. It's much more difficult to go on seeing you, knowing that you can never really belong to me!

"Ah, if things were only different! If only I had money or you had less, I could ask you to be mine. And then, too, there's my wife—"

Louisa stopped him with a playful hug.

"There, dear boy," she chortled, "there no need for you to go on in this fashion! Louisa has a sweet surprise for you tonight. I can be yours, honey lamb, forever and ever."

Arthur stammered. He sputtered and grew pale.

"B—but," he protested.

"Listen, darling, I did have money. My husband left me quite a little, but it's almost all gone now. So you need not worry about that any longer. You mustn't feel that you can't ask me. I can be yours!"

"But my wife—" The words were faint.

"I've taken care of that, too. That, dear boy, is why I have so little money now. She came to me today, your Mazie, and told me that she had decided to get a divorce, inasmuch as you loved me so deeply.

"It cost me quite a lot, dearest, but it was worth it—even though it took nearly every cent I had. You see, she agreed to accept a lump sum as final settlement, instead of suing you for alimony?" ...

MUSIC

'MAZEPPA'

Syria Mosque

After many postponements, the Ukrainian Art Theater finally landed in Syria Mosque last night, and after an hour's delay, with the patient audience of a few hundred waiting, at last sang Tschaikowsky's opera "Mazeppa."

Mr. Lissfelt

The opera is now 50 years old and appears only in Russian theaters. Tschaikowsky himself was not so pleased with this music, and it is indeed quite reminiscent of his "Eugen Onegin" and "Pique Dame." But there are many fine choruses and solo scenes worthy of excellent singers.

Last night's performance, though laboring under difficulties, presented scenery and costumes that were more than adequate, a chorus that frequently sang well and with a lovely tone, and several solo singers who played and sang well.

The story is highly dramatic, a truly historic tale from the life of "Mazeppa" the Ukrainian leader against the Russian Czar. The episode from which the opera is made concerns the love of the mighty man for "Motrya," her abduction, and her father's revenge by betrayal of "Mezeppa." The father "Kotchebey" goes to the block, "Motrya" becomes insane, and the opera ends with a rally around "Mazeppa" and a start for the wars.

First honors go to Thalia Sabanieva, who will be remembered for her singing with the San Carlo Opera, and who last night did some excellent singing. Elena Bussinger, as the mother "Lubov" is also a convincing actress though her voice is hardly dramatic enough for the part.

The "Mazeppa," Alexis Tcherkassky, made a fine picture, sang dramatically though the voice was just strong enough for the role. Michael Scvetz, the father, played a typical Russian character well, and in the second scene sang his best. Kriona, Dilov and Didowich played minor roles.

The small orchestra was often so well handled that it seemed adequate, too, and for that Paul Ouglitzky was responsible. The opera was sung in Ukrainian.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Hearing Date Set In Suit Over Son

Charles L. Zinn, Jr., 53 South Howard street, Bellevue, has filed habeas corpus proceedings to obtain part-time possession of his son, Edward, 6. Judge Ambrose B. Reid fixed February 23 for the hearing.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

It's Best Sometimes to Keep One's Worries Concealed

Dear Bubbles, I have been on ear ever since I got your letter.

I want to answer you just right. For it is a weighty question you ask me.

Whether a girl who has gone wrong once should tell the man who wants to marry her.

I have asked several people to answer your query for you. One was a prim creature who is older than you are. Her eyes snapped as she said:

"Tell her to marry, and mum's the word."

Another, a portly woman who was using the vacuum, replied:

"Say to Bubbles only time should do such tellin'. Not her. A girl never loses nothin' by keepin' still."

Here is Bubbles' letter:

Dear Miss Brunot—

I read your column every day, and since I find you are a great help to the young and older people, would you please help a lonely girl? And the lonely girl is me.

I am 20 years old. But age doesn't matter. I have a hard luck story. About a year ago I went with a certain fellow whom I knew for a long time. One evening he asked me by telephone if he and another fellow and his girl and I could take a ride. I had gone with him before and he always had been a gentleman. But this time he wasn't.

Of course I never told anybody. But I cried a lot. And he came and begged of me for forgiveness, and for me not to tell my parents, and although I hated him, I said I wouldn't.

Now here is the big point. I am to be married soon. But, Miss Brunot, if I ever breathe the truth about myself to my fiance it will be all off between him and me.

I love him and I am craving a home of my own and children. So please don't disappoint me, but write and tell me exactly what to do. I simply can't live my lonely life. Yet should I tell him all my life if he asks me?

BUBBLES.

SILENCE IS GOLDEN

This young man may never ask you for your past. Men have a way of never thinking of doing this. As one big playwright said recently, a man never is interested in what a woman has done, unless it begins to annoy him.

There are many things lost, both from heaven and from earth, my dear Bubbles, in fact many more than people dream of, and because we use too many words. Silence is golden. When one says nothing, there can be no response.

It is a man's pride, especially a young man's, to think he is the only one who has ever held his future wife in his arms. Yet pride is not love. It is not the deep, continual devotion that brings bread into the kitchen and furnishes a roof and stays up when the wife and children are sick.

There are men who come and go. The deceivers. There are men who come and stay. The faithful ones. And lucky indeed, the girl who cares for one of the latter breed. And if you have found such a man, Bubbles, do not let anything, not even a past affair, nor a breath of scandal, nor long drawn out nights of tears, keep you from him.

LOCK WORRIES AWAY

Be true to him now. Be faithful in performing your wifely tasks. Be constant no matter whether adversity or good luck comes. And you will have done all that can be expected from anyone. You love him. He loves you. You are willing to marry him. He is willing to marry you. And as he also may be hiding something, lock up safely in your heart anything that is gone and was bitter. You will be a better woman, a better helpmate, a better wife for having suffered, and repented.

I like you, though, Bubbles, for being worried about this. Yet just because I have written to you and encouraged you to be quiet in this matter, is no reason why your conscience may not keep on knocking. That is part of the price of having stepped aside.

What you are most of the time, what you are now, counts more than what you were for but a few brief minutes. That is the joy of being born today, in an age of advanced reasoning. A time when every girl has a chance. There are no Salems now. There are no courts of injustice.

We are often left to judge ourselves. And thank heaven there are Bubbles who are genuinely sorry.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Exchanging Information

Of course, Bridge players may not talk across the board except in the legitimate bidding of their hands. They may not, if they wish to be ethical, by word, manner or gesture indicate pleasure or displeasure with a lead or play of their partner. However, even with these rigid restrictions there are means by which players can and do exchange legitimate information in the play of the hand to the end that an adverse contract may be defeated. Such plays are known as signals or echoes, and a knowledge of them and their application to any situation is part of the necessary equipment of any good Bridge player.

A hand in which a player holding the commanding trump waited to take it until a second round of trumps had been led so that he might learn, if possible, what suit to lead to defeat the contract occurred in a recent Duplicate game in New York City. Other players, who failed to await the partner's signal by winning the first round of trumps, made the wrong guess and permitted the Declarer to fulfill his contract.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠ (1)	Pass (2)	2 ♠	Pass
2 N T (3)	Pass	3 ♠ (4)	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Of course, the correct choice of an Opening bid.

2—The long suit is too weak to justify West in overcalling at the range of two.

3—Offering partner a choice between the major suit and no-trump.

4—On account of the two unprotected suits, North indicates a preference for spades.

In the play West decided to open the singleton diamond Queen because of his holding of the Ace of trumps and two small ones, reasoning that if, by any chance, he could place his partner in the lead, the opening of the singleton must assure him of two trump tricks and thus possibly bring about the defeat of the contract. This trick was won by the Declarer, and a trump immediately led. Obviously South, as he had bid without either the Ace or King, had five trumps. West therefore correctly refused to win the first trump trick, waiting for his partner to give some indication of any trick-winning card he might hold. On the play of the second trump East discarded the heart nine, whereupon West, winning the trick with the Ace, returned a small heart. East won and led a diamond, permitting West to cash a second trump. West then laid down the heart King for the setting trick. Had he not waited for East's signal, the club lead would have appeared fully as likely to bring success as the heart, and in the cases where a club was led, the contract, of course, was fulfilled.

Assure the Baby Good Health in Adult Life

Infant feeding has been greatly simplified within the past decade. Yet even today many young mothers confess they are bewildered and uncertain when planning the baby's menu. They are at a loss as to when to wean the baby, when certain foods should be included in the diet, and how often baby should be fed.

Let me say to every new mother that proper eating habits for the young infant are at the foundation of its future health and happiness. When good eating habits are established early in life, the mother saves herself much unnecessary worry and grief. By good habits, I mean regular feedings at regular intervals. When properly trained the baby will learn to wake at feeding time and to sleep between times.

Contrary to a popular notion, over 95 per cent of all mothers can nurse their babies. Every baby should be breast fed whenever possible. There is no satisfactory substitute for mother's milk.

The baby should be nursed every four hours during the course of the day. The child is expected to gain an average of five ounces a week for the first few months. Failing to do this, the feedings should be given every three hours instead of every four hours.

If the baby fails to gain weight and is not making the necessary progress, the fault may be due to lack of mother's milk or that the milk is not rich enough. In either case it is imperative that the baby be weaned and a milk formula substituted. Your own doctor will advise you just how to prepare the formula required by your baby.

I am often asked, "When can the baby be given orange juice?" A teaspoon of orange juice may be given the infant when it is one month old. The amount is gradually increased until at three months, a tablespoon is given twice a day. Tomato juice or prune juice may be substituted for the orange juice.

As I view it, it is wise to give every infant cod liver oil or a substitute. Ask your doctor to tell you just how to give this to your baby.

Another problem which often confronts the young mother is when to give cereals. Cereal may be given at six months. Farina, cream of wheat, or strained oatmeal should be given first. Later, other cereals may be added. Rice, barley gruel and strained vegetables make excellent additions to the diet.

Never force the baby to eat. Encourage it to eat its food by serving it at regular intervals. I cannot repeat too often that proper eating habits are the short cut to health and happiness.

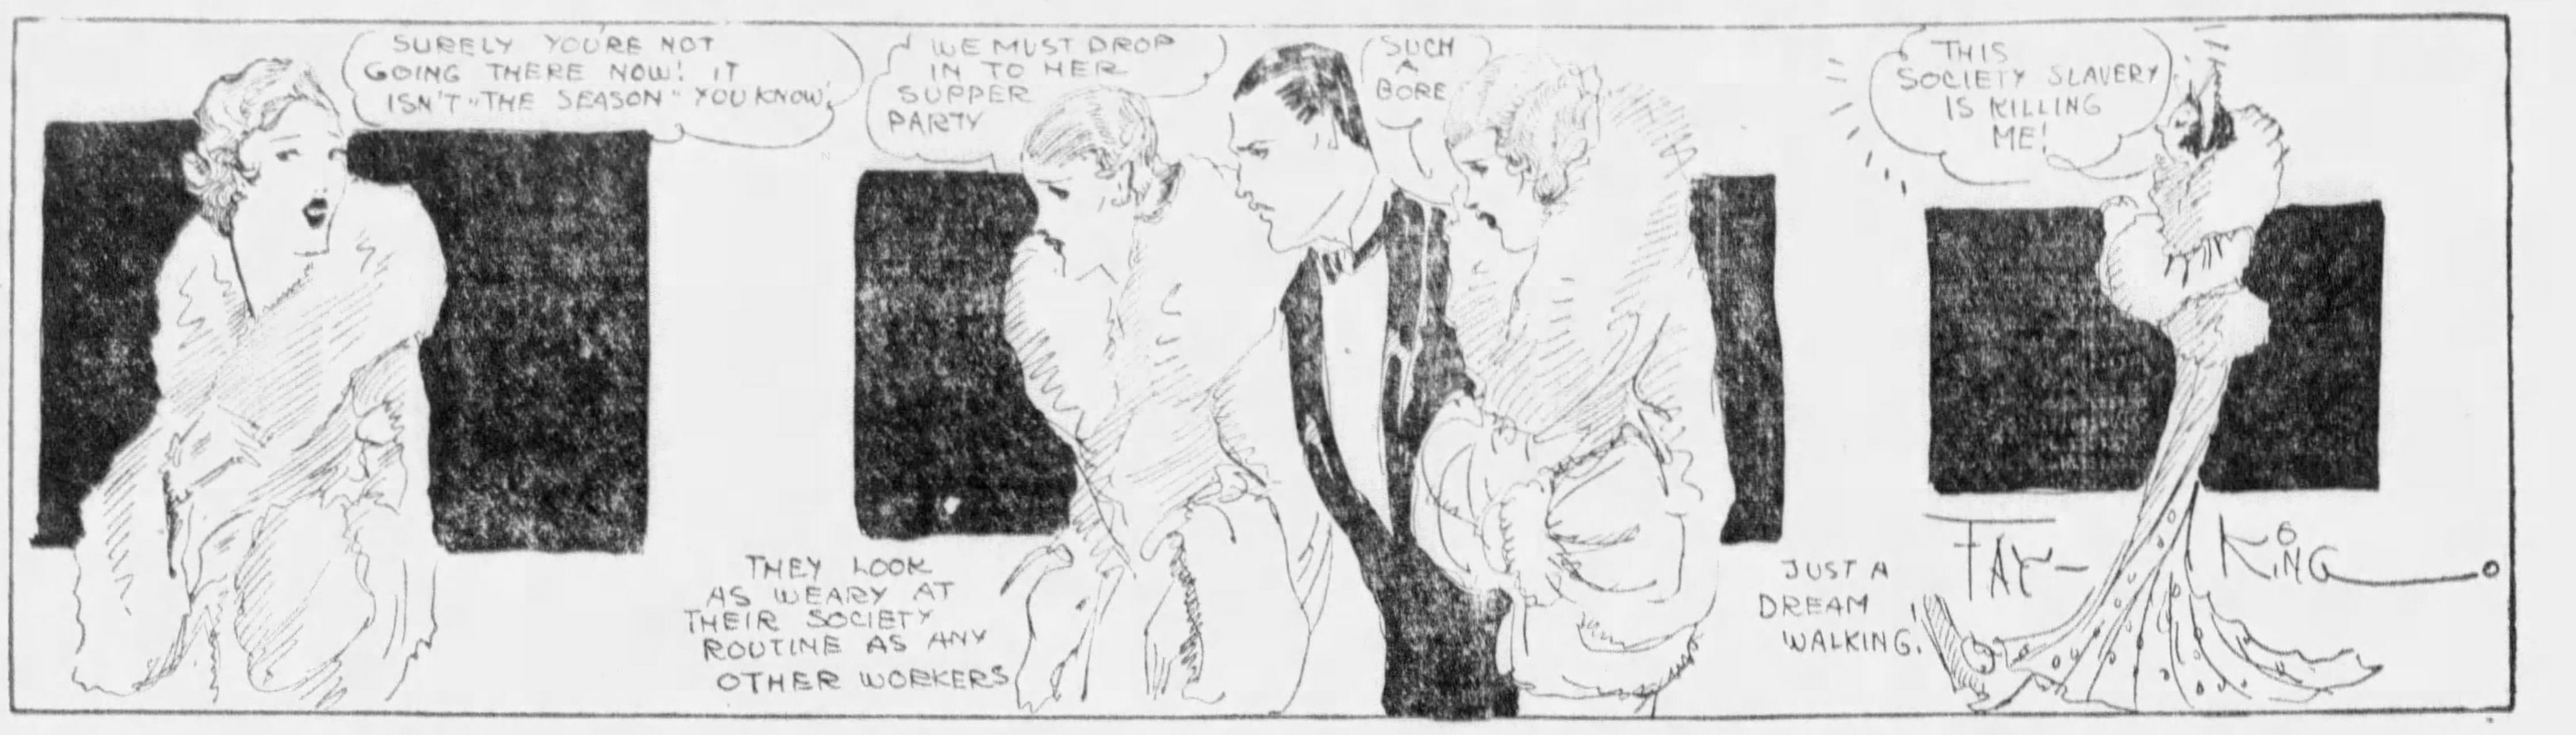
Fay King Puzzled by "Idle Rich" Who Are Seldom Idle



SURELY YOU'RE NOT GOING THERE NOW! IT ISN'T "THE SEASON" YOU KNOW!
WE MUST DROP IN TO HER SUPPER PARTY
SUCH A BORE
THEY LOOK AS WEARY AT THEIR SOCIETY ROUTINE AS ANY OTHER WORKERS
THIS SOCIETY SLAVERY IS KILLING ME!
JUST A DREAM WALKING.
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Why they are called the "idle" rich has always puzzled me. It seems to me they work hard, and overtime, at their social racket.

It must be tedious and tiresome at times, to be rushing about as they are compelled to do.

To appear at this function and that affair. To make annual trips to summer resorts and winter playgrounds.

To sail aboard at the proper second and return the instant that it is smart to be home.

To master the art of seeming never to be bored by bores, but to cultivate them if they have social prestige.

To be always doing only what is being done, and for no better reason apparently.

Veritzen's Threat Concerning Avis Worries Madge

To my horror, I found myself trembling so violently, after Philip Veritzen had seated me back of the coffee urn, that the delicate china cup and saucer which I took up jiggled noisily in my hands. I set them down quickly, and sternly addressed myself to the task of pulling myself together.

He had upset me terribly, not so much by what he had said as by the things he left unsaid. His last enigmatic comment left me particularly perplexed. How did he mean to "deal with the situation?" Was it possible that he was now going to wreak upon Avis the wrath which had its roots in the frustration of his plans for Noel, and include Noel and Mary in his displeasure?

Or—for a moment I struck a more hopeful note—was it possible that he finally had regretted his cruelty to Mary and Noel; that he saw Mary's true value as contrasted with the utter worthlessness of Avis, and that he meant to deal summarily with Avis so that she should be cured of any further propensities to mischief?

What did Philip Veritzen mean to do?

FUSSINESS OBSERVED

I heard little exclamations of approval and delight over the wedding supper. I saw my husband's beautiful niece cut her cake; her bridegroom beaming his approval. And then I noted that Mary and Noel had disappeared and knew that if I were to see Mary before she left, I must not stay at my post any longer.

The wedding supper was by no means over, however. Noel and Mary had slid away almost unobserved. But I signaled to Katherine and she came over to me.

"Please take my place here," I whispered. "I'm going upstairs, and I'll open the door carefully and take a peep at Faith to see if she is awake."

"She won't be," Katherine rejoined confidently, "but by all means look at her if you want to."

She smiled as she made the retort, and I smiled back at her. But I knew and she knew that underneath our smiles and apparently careless words she was commenting upon my fussiness, and I was letting my mean jealousy of her care of my baby raise its head.

HURRY TO GET AWAY

I salved my conscience with the reflection that only when my nerves were frayed almost to distraction did I permit that feeling to get the upper hand of me. But I opened the nursery door and listened to my baby's even breathing with a fantastic wish that I could snatch her up and fly with her.

This was no time to indulge in vagaries, I reminded myself sternly, and shutting the door softly I went across to Mary's room and knocked.

"Come in," she said softly, and when I entered I gasped in astonishment. She was almost completely dressed in her traveling costume, while her wedding gown and veil and the accessories were spread out upon the bed, ready for putting away.

"Why, Mary!" I exclaimed. "However did you manage—"

"Ah!" she paused and swept me a swift courtsy. "I'm what is known in theatrical parlance as a 'quick change.' I hope Noel is as nearly ready, but I know he isn't. Go knock on his door, will you, darling, and ask him how nearly ready he is. Tell him to lace his shoes in the car. I'll drive, if he isn't all ready."

I went obediently down the hall and knocked softly at Noel's door. He did not admit me, and I knew he was not yet changed, but I gave him Mary's message and received his promise to be at her door, fully ready for the journey, in three minutes.

As I went back to give her the message, I almost collided with with Marion flying upstairs.

"Quick!" she said, as she opened Mary's door without knocking and dragged me inside. "There'll have to be some tall hurrying around here, or those boys will get on to your scheme."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to Use New Dishes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I won a twenty-eight piece set of dishes at a Valentine party and I would like to know just what I should serve when using them? The set is of beautiful black onyx. It consists of six cups, six saucers, six small ash trays, six coasters, salt and pepper shakers, and the cream and sugar bowl.

2—What sort of glasses would you suggest getting for the coasters?

3—Would it be alright to serve sandwiches?

4—Is there a certain time of the day or evening when this set should be used? S.

1—This set, with the addition of some plates of tea-plate size or of the slightly larger size, would, I should think, be convenient to use when you are serving tea, or when you are having one table of bridge, or when you are having six people in for supper.

2—Against the black coasters white glasses would be the most effective, I think. And tumblers would fit best in the coasters.

3—Yes.

4—I am sure that you will find many occasions in the day or evening, to use this set when you are having a few guests.

The Wrong Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have a girl friend 15 years of age, and she is in love with a boy of 16. For a birthday gift she gave him a ring . . . not expensive, but a good one. She has been going with him for about six months. Do you think this was proper?

2—Also is it proper for a girl of 15 to give a boy friend a Christmas present? B.

1—No, this wasn't good taste on the girl's part, and I am sure that the parents of the girl wouldn't or didn't approve, if they knew of it. A man has the right to give a girl jewelry and a girl has the right to give a man jewelry only if they are engaged.

2—Certain gifts are quite proper . . . books, notably, or cigarettes or some such trifle. But not a gift that could be considered "consequential," unless they are engaged.

Hints for the Household

Soak handkerchiefs in a salt solution for about thirty minutes and they will launder more easily.

Place a small box of lime in the pantry and it will keep the air pure and clean. Renew it occasionally.

A little ammonia rubbed on stains caused by lemons or oranges will remove them almost instantly.

Artificial silk knitted underwear should be washed in lukewarm water with soapsuds. Hot water makes the fabrics tender. Pure soap is essential. The fabric should not be rubbed, but squeezed and rinsed repeatedly. Hang on a line to dry, but do not use clothespins. In ironing avoid too hot an iron.

Awakening the child through loud voices, an alarm or other sudden, imperative means, may leave him cross and irritable. Try always to awaken the child by speaking to him gently or by touching him softly. Allow him time to thoroughly rouse himself from sleep before you get him up.

NO. 39.

AN ORDINANCE—Levying and assessing a tax on meters or other measuring devices used to record the quantity of service or product sold or delivered by electric light, heat and power companies, natural gas companies, artificial gas companies, water companies, telephone companies, steam heating companies and taxicab companies, and individuals operating taxicabs under certificates of public convenience issued by the Public Service Commission.

WHEREAS, under the provisions of an Act, entitled "An Act empowering cities of the first and second classes to levy, assess and collect, or to provide for the levying, assessment and collection of, certain additional taxes for general revenue purposes; authorizing the establishment of bureaus, and the appointment and compensation of officers and employes to assess and collect such taxes; and permitting penalties to be imposed and enforced," approved the fifth day of August, 1932, the City of Pittsburgh is authorized by ordinance, for general revenue purposes, "to levy, assess and collect, or provide for the levying, assessment and collection of, such taxes on persons, transactions, occupations, privileges, subjects and personal property . . . . as it shall determine, ..." and,

WHEREAS, Due to the great depression now existing in the United States, causing widespread unemployment, and making it difficult for taxpayers to pay their taxes, thus casing a deficiency in revenues of the city, which deficiency must be corrected; and,

WHEREAS, The utilities herein referred to are not bearing their proper proportionate share of taxation for the police, fire and other protections received, and also their necessary use of the public highways of the City of Pittsburgh; Now, therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That for the purpose of providing additional funds for general revenue purposes, a tax is hereby levied and assessed on all electric light, heat and power companies, natural gas companies, artificial gas companies, water companies, telephone companies, steam heating companies and taxicab companies, and individuals operating taxicabs under certificates of public convenience issued by the Public Service Commission, in respect to the ownership or use by said companies or individuals of meters or other devices used for measuring or recording the quantity of service or product furnished to consumers thereof.

Said tax shall be at the rate of two ($2.00) dollars for each meter or other measuring device owned or used by the hereinbefore listed companies or by individuals operating taxicabs as aforesaid, and shall be levied and assessed for the period beginning with the date of the approval of this ordinance and expiring May 31, 1935, and shall apply to all meters or other measuring devices used during said period or any portion thereof. Provided, however, that meters not actually used to measure or record, etc., shall not be subject to the tax herein imposed.

SECTION 2. Every corporation or individual subject to the provisions of this tax shall, not later than March 1, 1934, file with the City Controller a sworn statement showing the number and location of each and every meter and other devices located within the City of Pittsburgh, as provided in Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The City Controller is hereby authorized and directed, whenever in his judgment it is necessary, to check the number and location of said meters and other measuring devices, and to make an independent investigation of the same so as to ascertain the number of said devices in use within the City of Pittsburgh.

SECTION 4. The tax due under the provisions of this ordinance shall be payable on March 10, 1934, at face.

Failure to pay said tax shall subject the taxpayer to a penalty of two (2%) per centum upon the face of said tax, and in addition thereto interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum (½ of 1%) each month until said tax is paid.

SECTION 5. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council February 5, 1934.

Pittsburgh, February 17, 1934.

I do hereby certify that the foregoing ordinance, duly engrossed and certified, was delivered by me to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval on February 6, 1934, and that the Mayor failed to approve or disapprove the same, or to return the same to Council within ten (10) days from said date, whereupon it became a law without his approval, under the provisions of the Act of Assembly in such case made and provided.

CAREY OUSTED, STENGEL ASKED TO PILOT DODGERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Cuts Lead Vets to Quit. Faber Reports Reduction. Griff Rates Matty First.
Johnson Different Type. Yacht Defi Due Annually. Grid Changes for Yale.

It made nice reading for the sentimentalists in connection with the retirement of Urban Faber and Eppa Rixey from baseball—that story that the two old pitchers finally realized Father Time had them licked, that they admitted they had become too slow for the modern game and were withdrawing voluntarily because they felt they should step aside in favor of younger men. But the real reason behind it all probably was an entirely commercial one. In all likelihood the venerable slabmen were as eager as ever to continue their careers, and dropped out only because of salary cuts which they considered too drastic.

Urban Faber

Faber admits as much in his own case. Only a few weeks ago it was announced that not only would the veteran spitballer be given a new pitching contract for 1934, but that as a reward for his long and faithful service the White Sox owners had assured him a job for life in some capacity. Urban says the club's later announcement that he had "decided to hang up his shoes" was all right as far as it went, but that he made that decision only after he had balked at a salary reduction which he deemed too heavy and the management had made no offer to discuss the differences. In other words, Faber, never a high-salaried man though long one of the country's best pitchers, quit because he received a take-it-or-leave-it proposal. It is said his salary was sliced from $7,500 to $5,000, with a clause provided for a bonus of $2,000 if the Sox had a successful season financially. Probably an unsatisfactory contract also was the cause of Rixey's decision to give up the game. Otherwise, baseball vets do not wait until spring training time to decide on retirement.

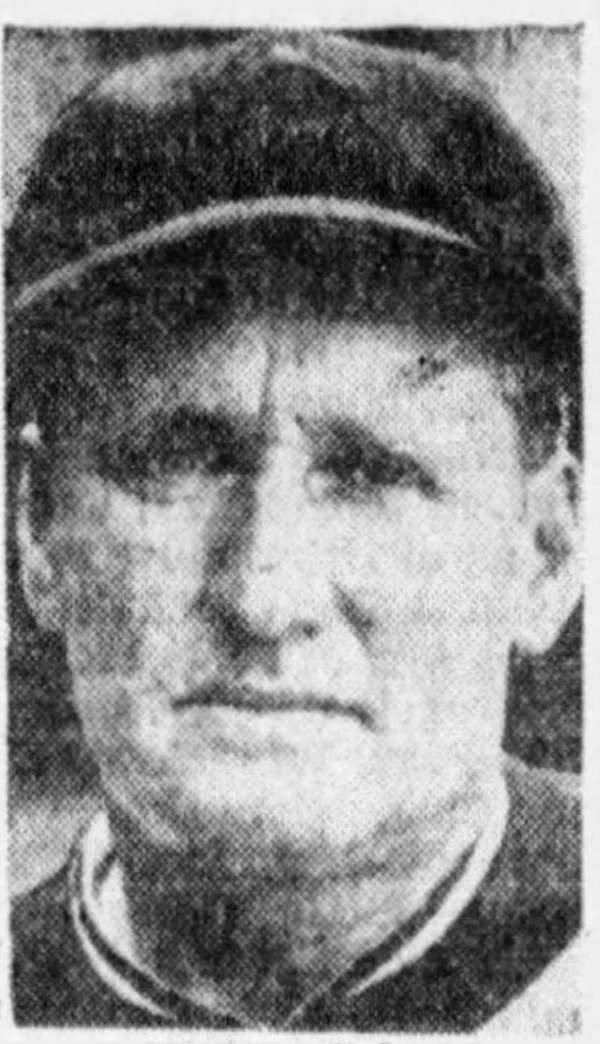
EVEN GRIFF RATES MATTY ABOVE JOHNSON

You might think that Clark Griffith, in a natural leaning toward his own mighty mound star of yesteryear, Walter Johnson, would be one veteran baseball man to cast a vote of disagreement with those who have expressed the opinion that the late Christy Mathewson was the greatest pitcher of all time. But Griffith strings along with the rest. Mathewson gets his ballot.

Griffith could have found in the Washington club's records a pretty strong argument in support of Johnson had he cared to offer it. For from one angle Johnson was at least a more successful pitcher than Matty. The latter pitched for the Giants when they were winning pennants, meaning that he was backed by a fine fielding and powerful hitting club. On the other hand, Johnson did the bulk of his pitching when Washington was a low second-division team, with little defensive skill and no batting punch. And Johnson's record of 96 victories in three consecutive seasons never was equaled by Matty or anybody else among the modern pitchers. Matty's high mark for three straight years was 94 wins. Grover Alexander was stopped at the same total. Cy Young could not go beyond 91.

WHERE PITCHERS AND THROWERS DIFFER

Griffith, a former pitcher himself, and one of the smartest that ever tricked a batter, gave an explanation in rating Mathewson above Johnson. He said he named Mathewson as his first choice because he had been asked to name the greatest "pitcher"; if he had been asked to single out the greatest "thrower" of all time, he would have named Johnson.



Walter Johnson

The owner of the Senators points out that there is a vast difference between pitching and throwing, though all men who work on the mound are classed as pitchers. Pitching means a great deal more than merely throwing a ball past a batter, Griffith explains. Great pitchers use their heads even more than their arms. They resort to cunning, control and a knowledge of batters' weaknesses, and do not depend on the strength of their wings. But there are many other winning slabmen who get by on power alone, meaning the ability to throw a ball so fast or to make it break so sharply that batters cannot hit it safely.

BRITISH PLAN ANNUAL YACHT CHALLENGE

The five unsuccessful attempts of the late Sir Thomas Lipton to lift the America's Cup have not shaken British yachtsmen's hopes of one day winning the famous trophy that has remained in this country for 83 years. Nor will their confidence of ultimate victory be lessened if they do not succeed in next fall's races. They are making plans to send a challenger over every year until the cup is taken back across the sea.

American permission to use their best boat this year, instead of being forced to go through with the challenger first designated, the Endeavour, as provided by the rules, has made the Britons feel a lot more hopeful about their chances for 1934. T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, now under construction, will have a real trial horse in W. L. Stephenson's Velsheda, which swept British waters last summer, and the challengers believe that if the Endeavour doesn't come up to expectations Velsheda will be a worthy substitute. On this side of the Atlantic, the uncertainty as to what boat will defend the cup will continue until the trial races have brought the answer. The new Rainbow will be given plenty of opposition for defense honors by the Yankee, course record holder, and the Weetamoe.

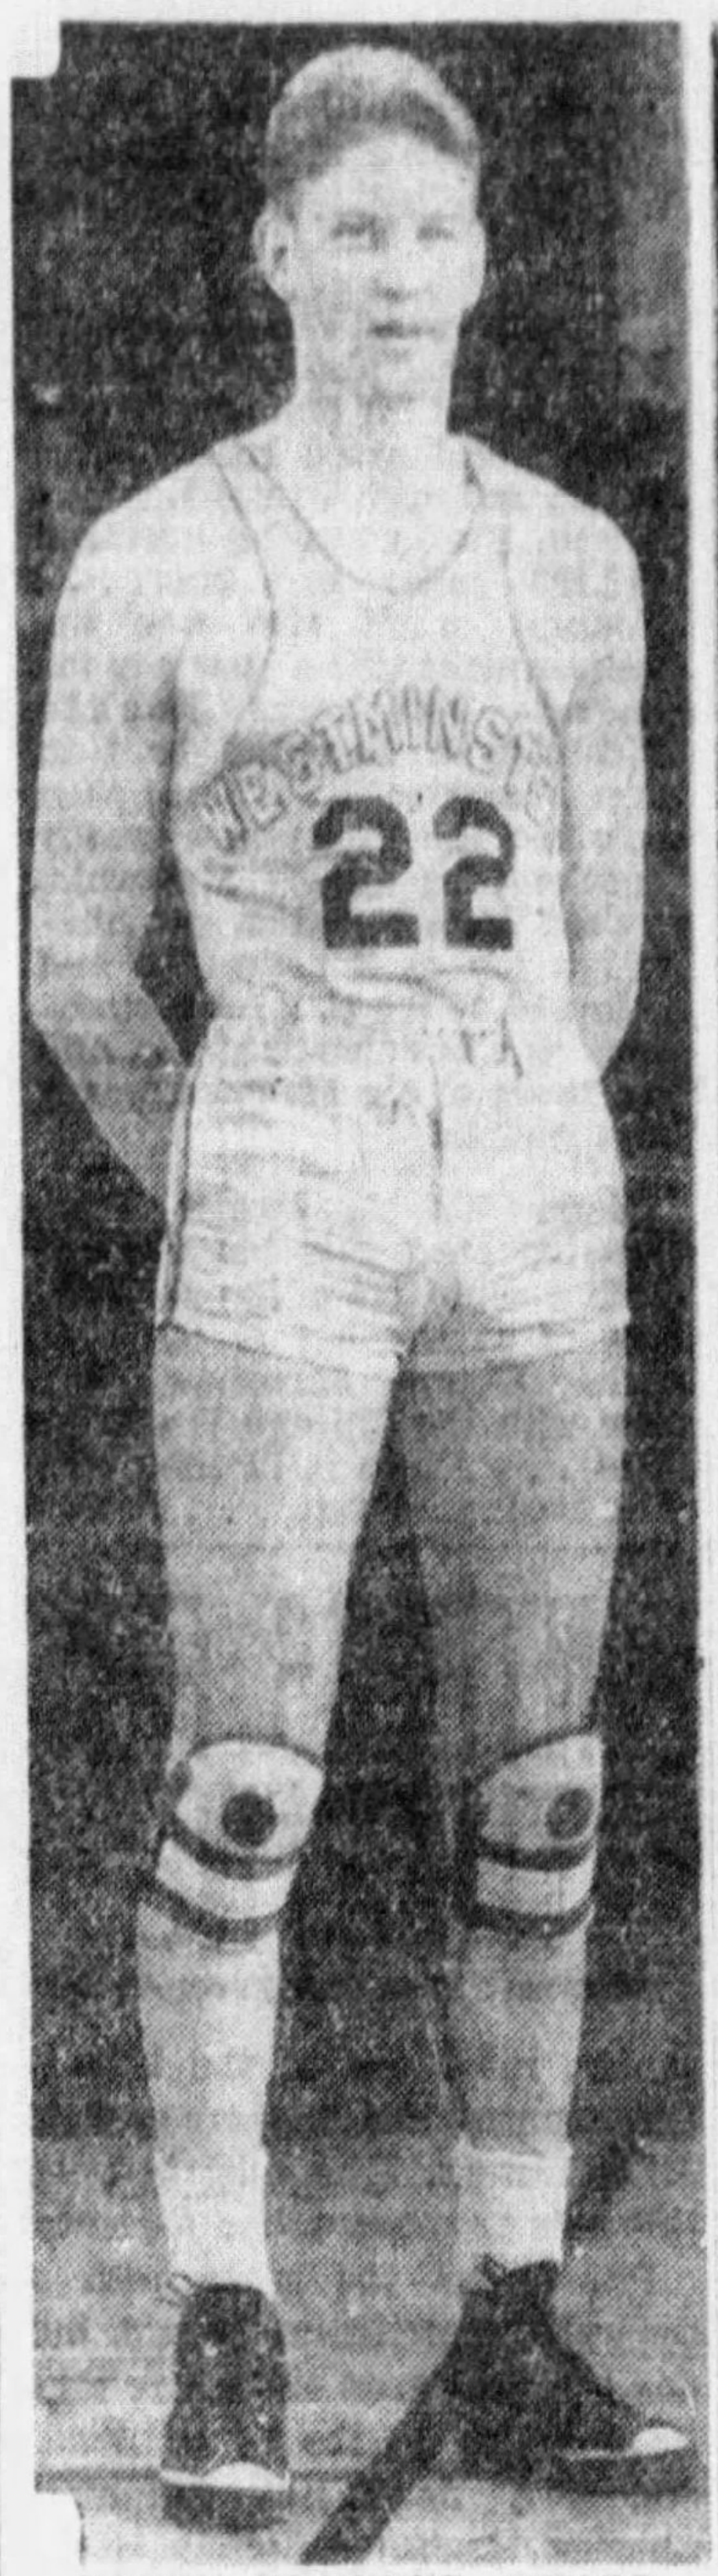
NEALE TO GIVE VARIETY TO YALE ATTACK

Eastern football critics are confident that one result of the appointment of Greasy Neale as Yale's backfield coach will be the giving of needed variety and a surprise element to the Blue attack. There will be no stereotyped, cut-and-dried offensive under Neale, it is figured. Doing the obvious has been a weakness of the Elis for years. They waited until third down to pass, hit off tackle on the goal line, and kicked at the conventional moment. They telegraphed their plays by tell-tale drifts to right or left and other little give-aways such as individual mannerisms and the spacing of the backs. It is expected that Neale will change all that, keep the enemy guessing.

Greasy Neale

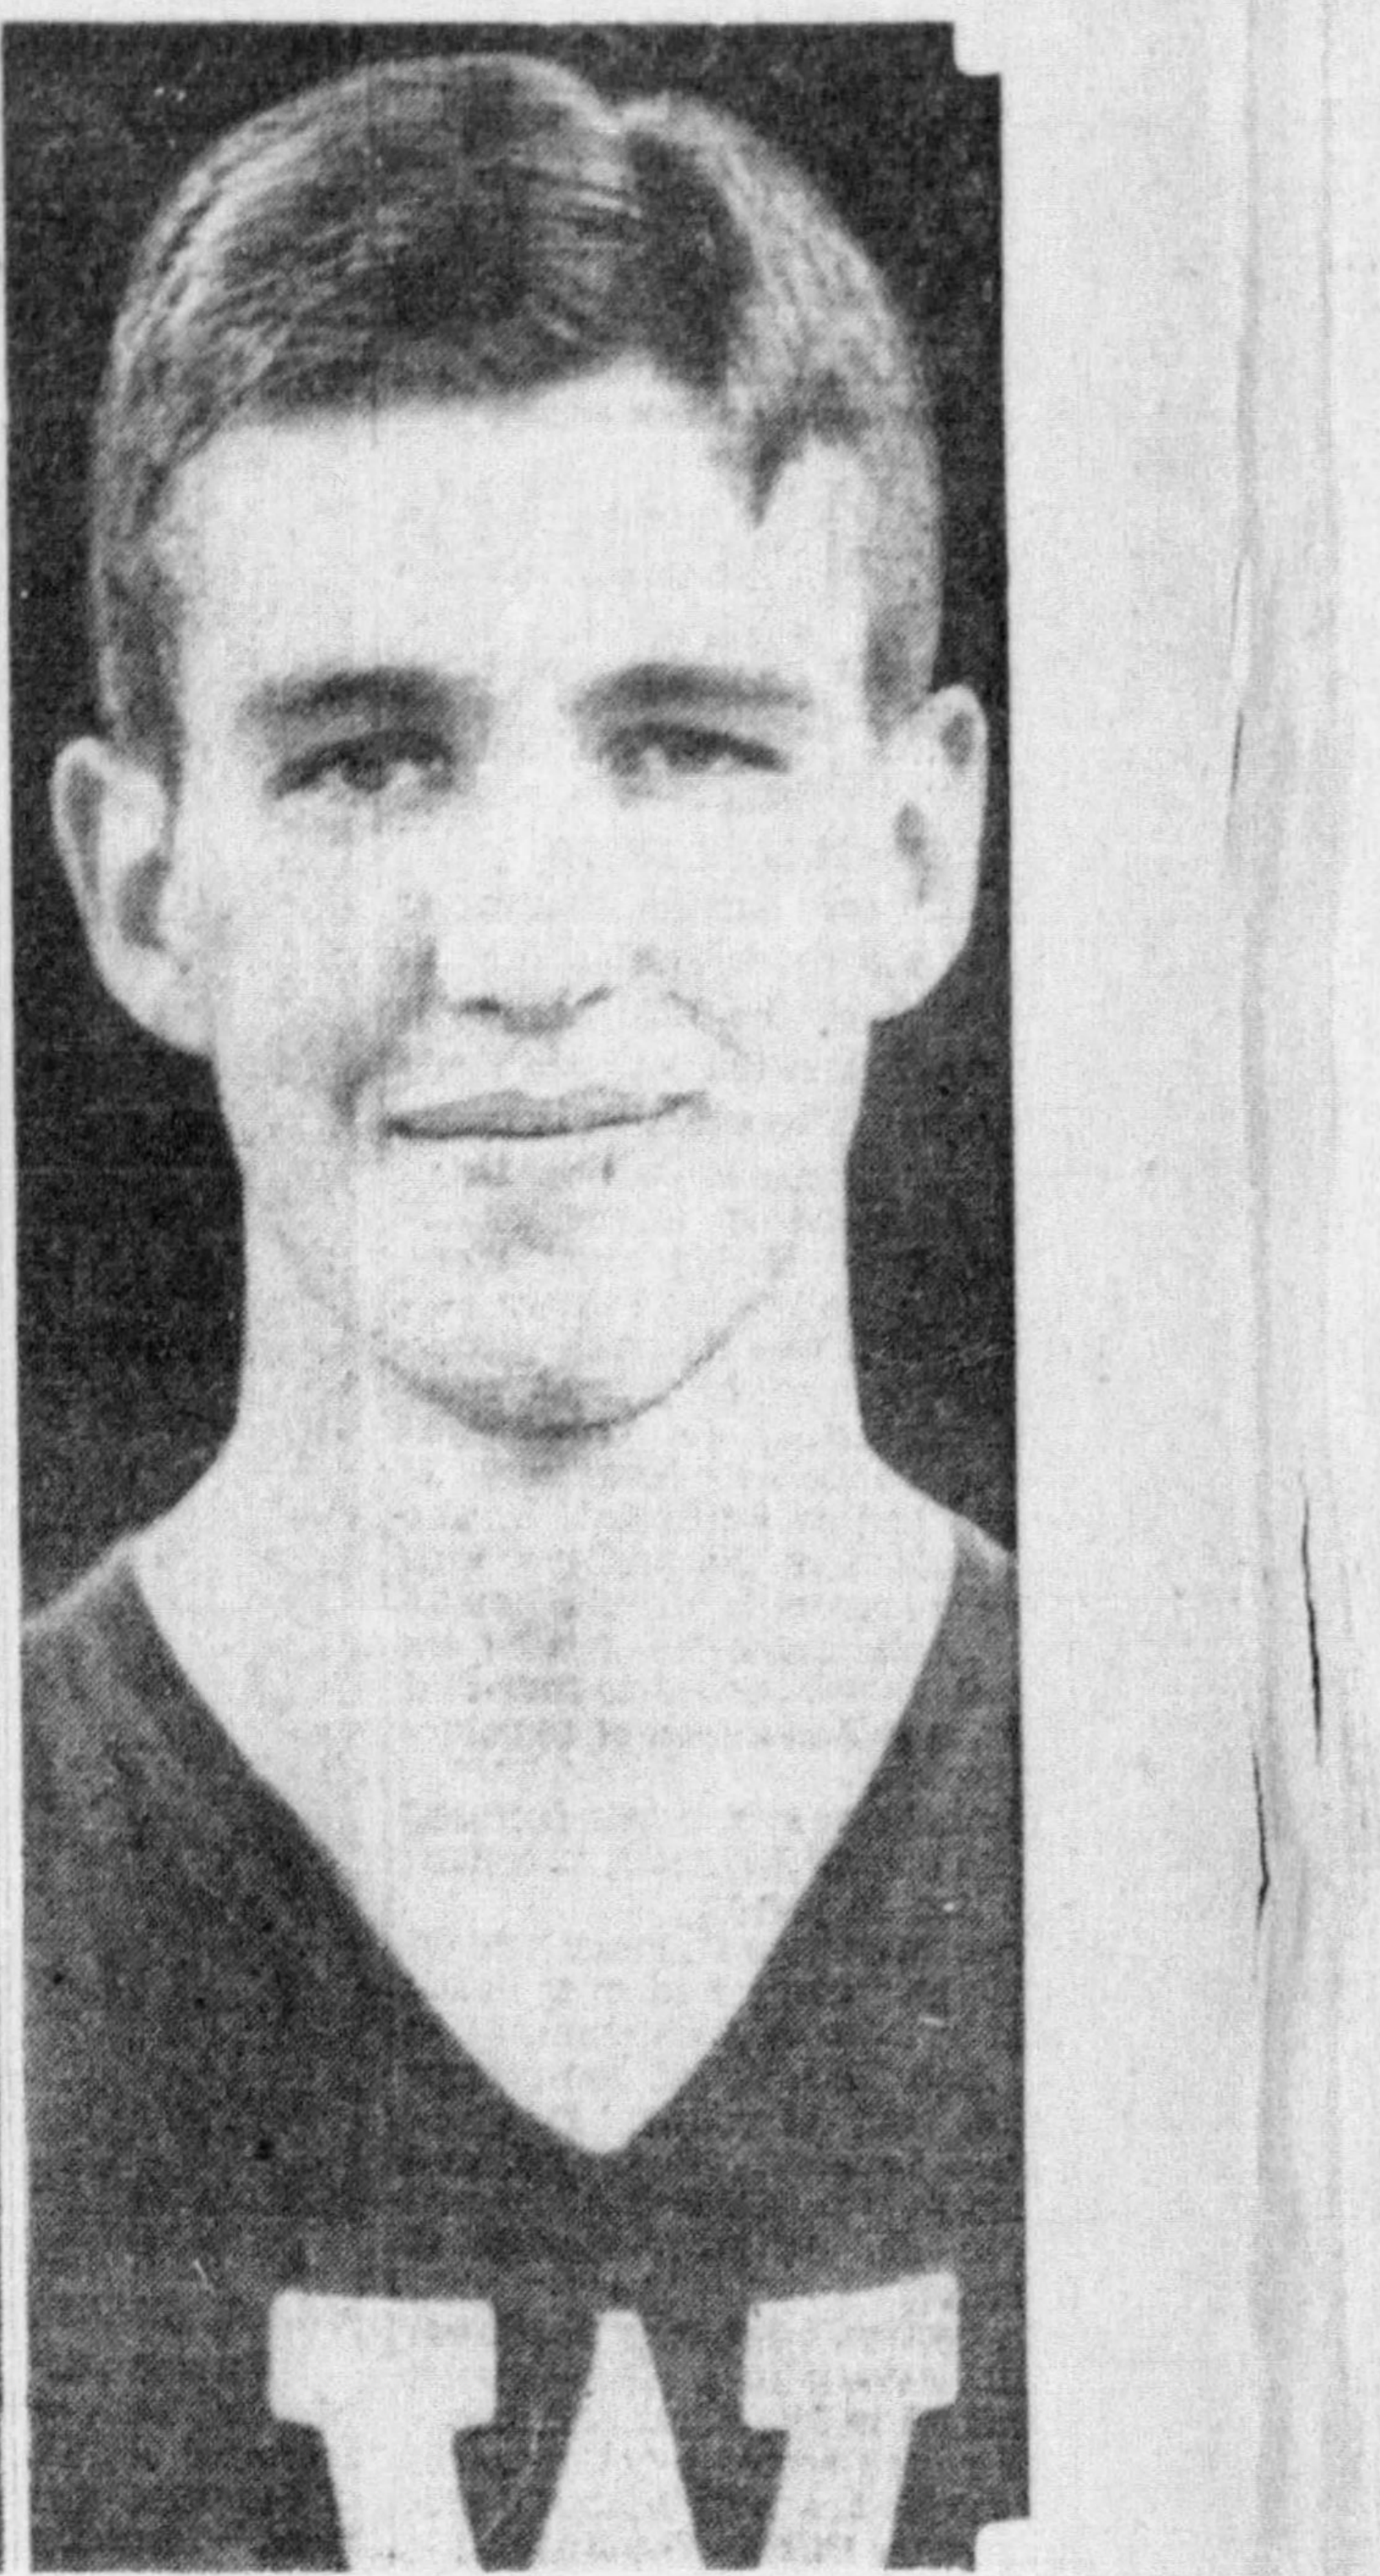
George Trevor sees in Bernard Rankin, a former halfback converted into an end, a player who is made to order for Neale's favorite lone gainer, the end-around play from a triple pass. Greasy featured that play while he was at W. & J. in 1921. Herb Kopf circled back from end, took the ball from Brenkert, wing half, who had received it from Basista, the deep man, and tore around the opposite flank. Kopf, a strong-legged runner, made more yardage that fall than some of the regular backs. Rankin, a natural ball carrier, is pronounced just the type of end to fit in smartly with Neale's pet maneuver.

Titans Who Go A-Gunning for Title in Game With Pitt Tonight



HENRY HUNNEKE, GUARD

PROF. JOHN D. LAWTHER IN CLASSROOM...HE HAPPENS TO BE THE COACH OF THE WESTMINSTER, TOO



WES BENNETT, HIGH-SCORING CENTER

Aside from the fact that the game is the last for Pitt at home this season and that the mythical Tri-State district title is at stake, there's not much to say for the Pitt-Westminster tussle on the Stadium Pavilion floor tonight. But that's enough. It's a high spot of the campaign. Both teams have beaten the Duquesne University Dukes, who were a standout until the Titans toppled them and the Panthers followed suit, and—well, tonight's "natural" fade-out is the result. The Titans have won 18 out 21 games todate, while Pitt has captured 12 out of 15. Some nifty records!

Basketball enthusiasts hereabouts have been arguing for some years over the relative merits of Pitt and Westminster teams, especially since same have been hitting the high spots of the intercollegiate circuit. Tonight, in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion the Panthers and Titans meet, and will settle, for this season at least, and as far as such can be settled with one game, the question of superiority.

Pitt and Westminster oddly enough have met only twice in basketball. The first game was played back in 1921 and resulted in a 54 to 23 win for Pitt. The second game went the same way, by a count of 34 to 25.

RECORDS BRILLIANT

Since the advent of Dr. H. C. Carlson as head coach at Pitt, and of Prof. John Lawther at Westminster, the Pitts and Titans annually have been right up among 'em when time for final ranking arrived. Both have held mortgages on the mythical district title on more than one occasion, and along with Duquesne and Geneva, practically have ruled the tri-state roost for the past six or seven years.

It is fitting and proper that the teams should clash this year, for both are having splendid seasons. Pitt has twice knocked off Notre Dame, a claimant for the national title, and has defeated Duquesne. Westminster, while not playing as representative a schedule as the Panthers, owns a victory over the Dukes and has kicked the tar out of all other district opposition. Both fives have been beaten three times, suffering their losses at the very outset of the season, but it is doubtful if any of the foes who scored the victories could repeat at present.

The Panthers list a double triumph over Notre Dame and singles over Northwestern, Minnesota, Ohio State, Temple, Georgetown, West Virginia, Wash-Jeff, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne and Army. Westminster has beaten Bethany, Allegheny, Slippery Rock and Waynesburg twice, and has taken John Marshall, Upsala, Adrian, Wheaton, Grove City, Glenville, Duquesne, Thiel and Edinboro in single games. St. Thomas, of Scranton, C. C. N. Y., and the Dukes were the foes to take the Titans' measure. Pitt has lost to Purdue, Butler and Duquesne.

BENNETT, CRIBBS CLASH

The Titans boast a crackerjack individual performer in Wes Bennett, brilliant and high scoring center. Bennett has been averaging around 20 points per game. He'll meet a man his equal, however, in Claire Cribbs, Pitt's star

Waite Hoyt on Coast, Set to Greet Buccos

Pitcher Waite Hoyt, accompanied by Mrs. Hoyt, has arrived in California to await the arrival of the first squad of Pirates, who leave here next Monday for Paso Robles to begin spring training.

The Hoyts, according to a letter received at Pirate headquarters this morning, made the trip by boat from Miami, going by way of the Panama Canal.

Hoyt announced that he was in the pink of condition and ready to begin spring training.

VANITIES FACE BUTLER

The Goldenson Vanities, who suffered their first defeat of the season at East Liverpool Monday night, meet the Butler Ad Girls, Butler County champions, on the South Side Market House floor this evening.

Commission Grants Tourney Permit

The ban against the A. A. U. instituted by the State Athletic Commission will not interefere with the staging of the Greater Pittsburgh amateur championship boxing tournament under the auspices of Lawrenceville Post No. 531, American Legion, at the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, Forty-fourth and Butler streets, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of next week, it was announced today.

Boxing Commissioner Dr. W. D. McClelland has issued a permit for the show, ignoring the right of the A. A. U. to sanction it, and A. A. U. officials said they would take no steps to prevent the bouts being held under this arrangement. No date has been set so far for the meeting between the A. A. U. and the Commission in Philadelphia.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Clarksburg—Battling Gizzy won by a technical knockout over Joey Eirene, 7 founds; Jimmy Colombo won by a technical knockout over Billy Harmon, first round; Ralph Gizzy defeated Nick Valdeck, 4 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Art Lasky knocked out Benny Miller, 5 rounds; Eddie Zivic defeated Perfecto Lopez, 6 rounds.

At St. Petersburg, Fla.—Tony Lato defeated Ceal Yancey, 10 rounds; Tony Lopez defeated Terry McGovern, 8 rounds.

At Fargo, N. D.—Ray Cossette defeated Al Christie, 6 rounds.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Tony D'Allesandro defeated Petey Mike, 10 rounds; Erie Lawson defeated Leo Larrivee, 10 rounds.

CASEY RUSHES EAST; MAX TO BE PAID OFF

(Picture on Page 26.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Max Carey today was relieved as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. No successor has been appointed, but Casey Stengel, Dodger coach, has been called to New York from California to be offered the job.

Max Carey

The announcement that Carey was being paid off on his one-year contract came from Bob Quinn, general manager of the baseball club, who is ill in a midtown hospital.

Quinn, propped up in bed and with a nurse in attendance, said Stephen W. McKeever, Dodger president, had wired Carey that his services no longer were needed and that the club would pay him the full amount of his contract, believed to be for $12,000.

He said Stengel had been called in from Glendale, Calif., and would be offered the job, but that he had no advance information as to whether Stengel would accept. Casey, a former star outfielder as was Carey, was given his coaching job by Max when the latter took over the management of the Dodgers for the 1932 campaign.

MADE PILOT IN 1931

Carey was made manager of the Dodgers late in 1931 after a year out of baseball when McKeever finally succeeded in unseating his arch foe, Wilbert Robinson, who had led the flock for 17 years.

He immediately started rebuilding the club and finished third in his first season. Last year, how-

LEGION NIGHT FOR SEALS

This will be American Legion Night on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Benswanger

The subject will be the annual junior baseball tournament of the Legion, and four guest speakers will appear. They are William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has just been named State Commissioner of the elimination for Pennsylvania; James Isherwood, of Waynesburg, western Vice Commander of the Department of Pennsylvania Legion; Herman Blosser, of Swissvale, Western Pennsylvania athletic chairman of the Legion, and Harry L. Haas, also of Swissvale, athletic officer in charge of the Swissvale team, annually a leading entry in the competition.

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will direct the program, which will appeal to many boys who will compete in the eliminations and their parents and friends.

By JULIUS LEVIN

It's all over but the shouting as far as the championship race in Section I of the City League is concerned and the boys are ready for same. The situation is pretty much the same in Section II.

The defending league champions, South High's crack array, sewed up the Section I crown yesterday as it won its tenth successive triumph of the present campaign, defeating its only challenger, Connelley's basketeers, 37 to 28. Led by Ed Spotovich, who was stopped in the first test with the Tradesmen, South piled up 16 field goals, Spotovich getting six himself, which, added to four foul shots, gave him a total of 16 points for the day.

Connelley's attack was featured by the play of Evanoski, at center, who had 15 points.

Over in Section II, Perry held on to its half game lead over South Hills by beating Vocational, 37 to 18. Bob Kornick led the scorers again, with 15 points. Oliver tripped Langley, 35 to 26, and South Hills knocked off Allegheny, 43 to 28, in other Section II battles.

In Section I, Schenley nosed out Fifth Avenue in a high-scoring fracas, 44 to 40. Hyatt and Friedlander each scored a dozen points for the victors, with Widowitz getting 14 for Fifth. The lineups:

To Manage the Dodgers

CASEY STENGEL.....HE'LL REPLACE MAX CAREY AS BOSS

Former star of the Brooklyn Dodgers, once with the Pirates, who has been summoned to Brooklyn to talk terms to become the successor of Max Carey, another former Pirate star, as manager of the club. Casey was a coach for the Dodgers last season. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

CAREY OUSTED AS PILOT

ever, the club finished in sixth place, and rumors that Carey would be deposed have been flying all winter.

Carey, it has been charged, was "aloof" and "unfeeling." He was accused of being unable to get along either with his players or with business associates on the club.

FORMER PIRATE STAR

Carey was one of the great outfielders of baseball with the Pittsburgh Pirates from 1911 to 1926 and was one of the stars of the 1925 world series in which the Pirates won the world championship from the Washington Senators. He was sent to Brooklyn on waivers by the Pirates in 1926, following an intra-club war which saw the great Pittsburgh machine dismantled. He was an active player with Brooklyn for two years, acted as pinch-hitter and coach in 1929 and then went back to the Pirates in the same roles. He was given his unconditional release at the end of the 1930 season, and was inactive in 1931.

Carey is said to be making considerable money in business and does not have to depend on baseball for a living.

POWERS CURTAILED

Since Quinn came to the Dodgers last fall as general manager, Carey has not been consulted as to player deals and trades, although formal denials have been issued from time to time that there was any disagreement. No later than last week Quinn denied that Carey was to be let out.

Carey, vacationing at Miami Beach, also denied yesterday that he was to be relieved and indicated he was going ahead with plans for the opening of the training camp at Orlando, Fla., next week.

The one-year contract which the club is renouncing was signed late last summer just before the end of the National League campaign.

M'MANUS CONSIDERED

If Stengel does not accept the Dodger offer it is believed the post will go to Marty McManus, former Red Sox manager, who was signed recently as a player.

Stengel, christened Charles D., served with Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and Boston as an active player from 1912 to 1925. He was the hero of the 1923 world series with the New York Giants, even though the Yankees won. His two home runs decided the only two games the Giants won, one a 1-0 victory.

From 1925 until he was signed by Carey in 1932, Stengel acted as president, manager and coach of several minor league teams. He is said to be the popular choice of Brooklyn fans.

The Dodgers today announced the unconditional release of Joe Shaute, 33-year-old left-handed pitcher. During a major league career of 11 years with Cleveland, of the American League, and Brooklyn, Shaute pitched in 350 games winning 99 and losing 107. He was used almost exclusively in relief roles last season.

Gizzy Stops Elrene In Seventh Round

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Battling Gizzy, 136, of Donora, Pa., won over Joey Elrene, 130, Louisville, Ky., in the seventh round by technical knockout here last night.

Jimmy Colombo of Clarksburg, won by a technical knockout over Billy Harmon, of Donora, in the first round. Ralph Gizzy, 130, of Donora, won over Nick Valdeck, 130, of Clarksburg, in four rounds.

FIVE REMAIN IN CUE RACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—With only four games remaining, five players had designs today on the world three-cushion billiard championship, now held by Welker Cochran, of San Francisco.

One of the quintet, and a favorite, was Cochran himself. The others were J. N. Bozeman, Jr., 27-year-old Vallejo (Cal.) star; Johnny Layton, the florid veteran of Sedalia, Mo., who has held the crown 10 times; Allen Hall, of Chicago, and Willie Hoppe, the former balkline king, bidding for the only title he has never held.

Cochran propelled himself back into running last night by overwhelming the youthful Bozeman, 50 to 23, in 46 innings, with a brilliant exhibition of shot making. And, just to make the race more complicated, Hall, already conqueror of Bozeman and Cochran, knocked off Layton in an upset, 50 to 30.

Stubblefield Gets Auto Race Victory

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Forty-eight hours after Al Gordon was awarded the 250-mile stock car road race here Sunday, American Automobile Association officials reversed their decision and gave W. H. (Stubby) Stubblefield first place.

A. C. Pillsbury, regional director of the A. A. A., said it took his officials 48 hours to find out an error was made in checking the thirty-third lap which resulted in Gordon, Long Beach, veteran, getting the checkered flag in token of victory.

Tilden and Cochet Resume Net Duel

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—For the ninth time in eight years, Big Bill Tilden and Henri Cochet will face one another across a tennis net tonight.

These two racquet masters, bitter rivals in their amateur days, meet in the feature match of the windup of he Franco-American professional series in Madison Square Garden. The other match tonight will pit Ellsworth Vines, lanky Californian, against Martin Plaa.

HEIDELBERG TO FACE TEST IN AVELLA

By TOM BIRKS

The Avella Soccer Club is scheduled to make its first appearance in Pittsburgh Sunday when it meets Heidelberg in the third round of the national amateur cup competition at Greenlee Field.

This young club, hailing from Washington County, is classed as one of the best elevens to be gathered together in this district for many years. Soccer fans began to take notice of the Washington County boys when they travelled to Gallatin and held Harry Sickles' team to a tie, and then handed the Keystone League cracks a 3-0 defeat in the replay at Avella.

TEAM IMPRESSIVE

Any team beating Gallatin 3-0 must be considered worth while, and its large following of fans from around Bishop are willing to bet that their favorites take Heidelberg into camp in this particular game.

Avella will have a tough job. Heidelberg usually rises to the heights when it appears in the national amateur cup competition, and Manager McCabe is not letting the boys get the impression that something easy is ahead.

Last Sunday Heidelberg failed to impress the fans against the Riehls, but probably the rearranging of the front line had something to do with the team's faulty play. Steve Kuten will be playing center forward next Sunday for the Green and Gold. Kuten is working in Cleveland and was unable to get away for the Riehl game.

URBANICS READY

Steve Urbanic will play one of the inside positions, which will help. Mike Urbanic got a bad game out of his system last Sunday. This usually steady halfback was wild in his kicking. He usually drops the ball into the goal mouth in dangerous fashion. However, every player has one bad day.

The winner of Sunday's game meets the Cleveland Indians at Greenlee Field one week from Sunday in the Western final of the national amateur tourney. This will mark the first appearance of the Indians in Pittsburgh. They are reputed to be a better team than the Slavias.

P. A. A. Beats K. A. C. In Sports Meet

P. A. A. athletes gained a sweeping victory over their Keystone Athletic Club rivals at the Winged Head clubhouse last evening in the second inter-club sport night of the winter season. Capturing verdicts in all seven events on the card, the Red and Gray amassed a 50-2 advantage and thereby avenged the Keystone triumph of last month. The summary:

	Points P.A.A.	Points K.A.C.
Squash racquets	4	1
Handball	3	1
Volleyballs	10	0
Baseball	10	0
Duckpins	10	0
Tenpins	10	0
Billiards	3	0
Total	50	2

Ben Pope, K. A. C. squash professional, said at last night's gathering that the City Class B squash racquets title tournament has been definitely slated to get under way on the Keystone courts next Saturday. The competition will continue throughout next week. Entries may be sent to Pope in care of the Keystone A. C. or telephoned to him at Court 6600.

Haines Sets Own Terms With Cards

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Forty-two-year-old Jess Haines has named his own salary for 1934 and signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Haines, veteran of many baseball wars, last year had an earned run average of 2.50 per nine innings, the best of his career. He won nine out of 15 games.

Arriving from his home in Ohio, the right-handed fast ball pitcher, at the request of Vice President Branch Rickey, named his own salary. Then he received permission to carry out his own plans for getting into condition.

Giants to Start Training Saturday

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Arriving here from Memphis, Manager Bill Terry, of the World Champion New York Giants, looked over the new training field here with satisfaction and sounded a call for first workouts to begin Saturday.

DUKES DEFEAT TEMPLE, TECH SWAMPED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—Duquesne University's crack basketball team made a distinct impression on local floor followers as it completed its two-day stay here with a triumph over Temple University's Owls last night. Monday night the Dukes turned back Villanova.

Irv Brenner, star center, led the Dukes to a 40-to-26 triumph over the Owls. He broke through Temple's defense for a total of six field goals. He also was instigator of the Dukes' fast-breaking attack and when not shooting handed out passes right and left.

Close behind him in scoring was Paul Birch with five twin pointers. Howard (Red) Rosan was the shining light in the Temple defeat. He tallied a pair of double deckers and arched four out of six fouls.

The game was rough from the start. Thirty fouls were called, 17 of them on Duquesne. Temple could convert by eight into points. The Dukes caged but four. The lineup:

Temple.	G.	F.	Pt.	Duquesne.	G.	F.	Pt.

EASY FOR GENEVA

Carnegie Tech made an unsuccessful basketball invasion of the Beaver Valley last night, the Tartans taking a 49-to-18 socking from Geneva College's fast-passing Covenanter quintet.

Geneva put on a great scoring act in the first half as they easily penetrated the defense of the crippled Skibo five. Led by Littell, Grahame and Penebaker, the Covenanters piled up a 32-4 advantage at the intermission, limiting Geneva to a single field goal during the first 20 minutes of action.

The reserves played throughout most of the second half, Hurley and Hemphill attending to the scoring with two field goals each.

Paul Gibson, Tech's sophomore forward, accounted for half of his team's points with two field goals and five fouls for a total of nine points. Littell scored 14 for Geneva and Penebaker secured 12. The lineup:

BOBCATS TRIUMPH

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—West Virginia Wesleyan basketeers dusted off another opponent which has defeated them on a foreign floor when they nosed out Davis and Elkins College here last night in a thrilling game 41 to 40. Wesleyan led at the half 22 to 21.

JOHN M'GRAW IMPROVED

NEW ROCHELLE, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—John McGraw passed a fairly comfortable night, his physicians reported today, with signs of the uremic poisoning with which he is suffering "much diminished."

The following bulletin on the condition of the former manager of the New York Giants Baseball Club was issued at New Rochelle Hospital:

"The patient passed a fairly comfortable night. He was quite restless at intervals. Signs of uremia much diminished. Stuporous only at intervals.

"No new physical signs, although patient shows rather wide variation in temperature. General condition about the same as reported in last bulletin, although he is still seriously ill. Temperature 103, pulse 94, respiration 32."

The bulletin was signed by Drs. L. B. Chapman and E. L. Kellogg.

Coincident with the improvement in McGraw's condition came word that the former manager of the New York Giants was so gravely ill on Saturday that the last rites of the Catholic Church were administered. That was the day after he had been admitted to the hospital.

A surprise visitor yesterday was Judge Francis X. McQuade, former business associate of McGraw's, but a bitter enemy of the baseball leader for a half dozen years. McGraw recognized him immediately.

To Name Referee Today for Big Bout

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(INS.)—The local boxing commission will meet this afternoon to select a referee for the Carnera-Loughran heavyweight championship fight here one week from tonight. The managers of the two fighters, Bill Duffy and Joe Smith, have been notified to attend, and, if Smith adheres to the views he expressed several days ago, he may protest the naming of a local man on the ground that an official of "big fight" experience is needed.

RENNER UNDER KNIFE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Bill Renner, quarterback on the 1933 University of Michigan football team, underwent an operation for appendicitis today, and later hospital attaches said his condition was "fine."

SWIM MEET CARDED

The Carrick High School swimming team will invade Cleveland Saturday to meet the University School team.

SPORT VIGNETTES

They tell a good story about Pitcher Urban (Red) Faber, who recently quit at the age of 45 after 20 seasons with the White Sox . . . It happened in the 1917 world series, in which he won three games and lost one against the New York Giants . . . He stole third base in one of the games only to find Buck Weaver there ahead of him . . . "Where are you going?" Weaver yelled . . . "Back to pitch," said Faber sheepishly.

Tomorrow is Washington's birthday and also the first anniversary of Sir Malcolm Campbell's world speed record drive in an automobile at Daytona Beach, Fla., when he averaged 272.108 miles per hour. . . . Young Corbett also won the welterweight title a year ago tomorrow, outpointing Jackie Fields in a 10-round bout in San Francisco. . . . Since then he's lost the crown on a speedy knockout by Jimmy McLarnin, retired from the ring, got himself a job as a policeman and returned to the ring for a comeback as a middleweight. . . . And we thought Sir Malcolm was a fast worker!

Glenn Wright, former Pirate shortstop star, gets his unconditional release from the Brooklyn Dodgers at the age of 32, while Pitcher George Earnshaw starts anew with the Chicago White Sox at 34 . . . Akron is in the throes of a boxing revival . . . A Paul Pirrone-Alabama Kid fight there the other night, with the Alabam' the winner, drew close to 3,000 fans . . . Pittsburgh's Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith bout outdrew the Vince Dundee-Ben Jeby battle in Chicago's Stadium, and the latter show had a world champion on the card . . . Matchmaker Lew Raymond foresees a great future for Anson Green, Homestead's Negro middleweight puncher, who defeated Dan Hassett on the Yarosz card, and plans to use him in a feature bout in his next show.

Bill Farren, former popular local sports radio announcer, now is the chief announcer of Station WNEW in New York . . . Tom Andrews' annual boxing and other sports record book is just off the press for its thirty-third edition . . . PANTHERS FACE TITAN FIVE center, rated one of the best in the country and the greatest in Pitt's history. The duel between this pair promises action a-plenty.

Pitt enters the game with a somewhat patched-up lineup, but one that was good enough to take Notre Dame on the South Benders' own floor last Saturday. Charley Hughes definitely is out of the game, still suffering with a severe cold. His place at guard will be taken by Don McCamant, who leaves his usual forward position to Ted Roderick, stellar young sophomore. Skippy Hughes will pair off with the latter and Ochsenhirt will be at his usual station at the other guard.

The game will mark the final Stadium appearance for the three Pitt seniors, Ochsenhirt, McCamant and Charley Hughes.

LINEUP SET

Westminster's lineup likely will have Capt. Bill Douglass and Leyshook at forwards; Bennet at center, and Hunneke and Wilhelm at the guards. Douglass and Bennet may trade positions at some point of the game. Each is at home either at forward or center.

The contest is the last big-time collegiate floor attraction of the local season. Carnegie Tech's remaining tussles with Pitt and Duquesne do not figure to draw to any extent, due to the weakness of the Tartans and their apparently hopeless cause as far as the Panthers and Dukes are concerned.

The Allegheny Mountain Association indoor track and field championships get under way in the Pitt track house this evening and will be concluded with the staging of the finals tomorrow.

Seeded Stars Bow In Women's Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Two seeded favorites, Mrs. Henry C. Brunie, of New York, No. 1, and Helen L. Grawn, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., No. 5, went down to unexpected defeats as the play in the twenty-seventh annual women's indoor national tennis championships reached the quarter-final round.

Other seeded stars all reached the final round without being pressed.

Eddie Zivic Wins In Coast Battle

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—Art Lasky, Minneapolis heavyweight, knocked out Benny Miller, local heavy, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

In a fast six-round bout, Eddie Zivic, star Pittsburgh lightweight, defeated Perfecto Lopez, of Los Angeles. Ziviz won all the way.

Sports Shorts

George Lott, J. Gilbert Hall, Miss Helen Jacobs and Miss Dorothy Round won second round matches in men's and women's singles play in the international tennis tournament at Kingston, Jamaica, yesterday.

Holly Richardson won the first heat in the Pocono Mountain sled dog derby at Skytop, Pa., yesterday. A victory in either of the two remaining heats will give him the title.

Dick Ciuci, of New York, scored a subpar 71 to win medalist honors in the tenth annual Dixie amateur golf championship at Miami yesterday.

The Carnegie Library, of Homestead, is throwing a swimming meet tonight. Four A. M. A. title events are carded.

A Max Baer-Steve Hamas bout for Los Angeles is well on its way to being closed.

Baby Arizmendi, the Mexican featherweight, is asking recognition as the world champion, now that the New York Athletic Commission has withdrawn its recognition of Kid Chocolate.

P. B. Farrell, president of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has indefinitely extended the deadline, set for last night, for a decision on whether York, Pa., is to retain its franchise in the circuit for the 1934 season.

Charley (Red) Ruffing, veteran pitcher, signed his New York Yankee contract yesterday, but Lyn Lary, infielder, announced he was not satisfied with the terms offered him.

The St. Louis Cardinals have released Glenn Spencer, pitcher, formerly with the Pirates, to Columbus, of the American Association, it was announced today.

GAME SATURDAY

H. J. Webers vs. J. Scott Morgans.

The Red Ravens, Sewickley's representative in the City Hockey League, are looking forward with a fair degree of confidence to chalking up their second triumph in league competition when they meet the Carnegie Tech skaters at Duquesne Garden tonight.

After absorbing six straight defeats, the Ravens got a break when Tech and Duquesne were admitted to the circuit. They showed their appreciation by downing the Dukes, 6-1, in their first meeting with collegiate opposition, and they are not likely to prove any less appreciative when they clash with the Tartans tonight. The probable lineup:

Ravens.		Tech.
Bughman	G	Dubin
Longnecker	D	Lenox
Hoe	D	Hudson
Lockhart	C	Bell
D. Thompson	W	Jerge
McKinney	W	Ailles

Raven spares—Gibson, Livingstone, L. Thompson, Montgomery, Doolittle, Chalfant, J. Haverty, G. Haverty and Hays.

Tech spares—Dane, Higgons, Wick, Dickson, Meyer, Adamson and Kelley.

FAIR GOLFERS OF SCHENLEY BOWLERS

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

A great race is being waged in the Schenley Golfers' Duckpin League, which is composed of women bowlers. Two games separate the league-leading Mid Iron team and the Mashie team with the Niblicks holding third place. The Jiggers and Drivers, who are four games behind the pace-setter, are tied for fourth place.

Mrs. S. I. Agostini, of the Jiggers, has been registering some fine game performances. She holds the individual average leadership with 120.86. Mrs. P. A. Daniel, of the Drivers, is second with 118.45. Mrs. Agostini holds the high single game mark for the season, 189. Mrs. O. L. Long and Mrs. D. E. Cutler have 183 and 181 scores, respectively, to their credit.

FORMER CHAMP STARS

Mrs. John M. Blair, former city golf champion, is a fine bowler. She has an average of 114.92. Mrs. C. B. Kissinger, of the Mid Irons, established a new mark for three games when she rolled a 459 score to top Mrs. Agostini's former mark by 25 pins.

Miss Agnes Collins enabled her Mid Iron team to win two out of three games from the Niblicks, with Miss Oliver Boschert rolling best for the conquered team. The Mashies took two out of three from the Brassies. The Jiggers made a clean sweep of three games from the Putters, and the Drivers took three from the Spoons. Mrs. Agostini's 413 score led the bowlers for the day. Mrs. Daniel had a 403 tally and Miss Edith Clark followed with 374, Miss Olive Boschert, 362; Miss Agnes Collins, 359, and Mrs. L. D. Connor, 329. The league rolls every Monday afternoon on the Forward Alleys, Squirrel Hill.

STRIKES AND SPARES

The Stroh's Bohemians, of Sharon, and the Broadway All-Stars, of Farrell, met in a special duckpin match, a home-and-home series, with total pins for six games deciding the winner, and the Sharon aggregation won when it totaled 5,213 pins against 5,181. Both teams have filed their entry for the sixth annual Pennsylvania and Ohio Duckpin Association tournament. G. L. Ryne, who is secretary of the P. and O. D. A., is manager and captain of the Stroh's Bohemians, and Ralph Hoffacker, who was runner-up in the singles last year, is in charge of the Farrell team.

A full schedule of matches is offered in the Metropolitan Tenpin League tonight, as follows: Auditorium No. 2 vs. Muck Brothers, Nuss Brothers vs. Iron City, Aspinwall vs. Keystone A. C., Brookline vs. Pittsburgh A. A., Silver Toppers vs. Old Reliable, Braddick Colts vs. Lawlor, North Side Elks vs. Roxian, Forward vs. Auditorium No. 1, Elba vs. St. Michael's, Fort Pitt vs. Old Anchor, E. M. Tuckers vs. Ko Ko Mo Kids.

There will be no bowling tomorrow in the Westinghouse Tenpin League because of Washington's Birthday. League bowling will be resumed March 1, according to W. D. Mills. The latest averages released by Mills show teams Nos. 8 and 6 tied for first place, each having won 14 games and lost 7, while teams Nos. 3, 11 and 9 are tied for third place, one game behind the league-leaders. Capt. C. Smith's No. 8 team holds the season marks for one game and for three games, with 2,580 and 928, while individual honors for one game go to Capt. Voyek, with 256, and for three games to Burkhart, with 689. Capt. Charters, of the No. 1 team, boasts an average of 192 for 18 games and Capt. Roantree, of No. 3 team, follows with 190 for 21 contests.

STOCKS POISED ON MARKET FENCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—While stocks appeared to be poised on the cheerful side of the market fence today, they gave few indications as to which way they might jump.

A number of low-priced specialties were run up fractionally to a point or more, but the old-line leaders did little or nothing. Most market commentators admitted their inability to judge the intermediate trend. The activity was rather dull. The exchange will be closed for tomorrow's holiday.

Grains were a negative influence on equities. Cotton, silver and rubber showed rallying tendencies. Sterling recovered moderately, but the European gold currencies were still narrow. Bonds moved sluggishly.

Specialty share gainers included Packard, Hupp, Kelvinator, Electric Auto-Lite, Sparks-Withington, Remington Rand, Studebaker, Stewart-Warner, Maytag, Glidden and McKesson & Robbins. Such issues as American Telephone, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Motors and Santa Fe showed few signs of life. Slight changes were recorded by most of the utilities, rails, alcohols and metals. New York Central eased on publication of the road's bond refunding offer.

Flurries in the motor accessory stocks were attributed largely to reports that earnings of some of the companies this year may be highly satisfactory in view of the growing production of automobiles.

Cheerful estimates were being made of the freight car loading figures for the past week which appear on Friday. In some quarters it was thought that there would be an increase of some 10,000 cars over the previous week. The normal upturn for the period would be only around 1,100. Cold weather and expanded coal shipmentsfi, in addition to industrial advances, were expected to account for thegain.

The New York Central's offer of $59,911,000 of 10-year 6 per cent collateral bonds, convertible into common stock at $40 a share for three years and thereafter at $50 a share, was about in accordance with expectations. Stockholders on record March 5 will have the privilege of purchasing $1,200 principal amount of the new bonds for each 100 shares held.

Declaration by American Telephone of the regular $2.25 quarterly dividend did not come as any surprise to the financial district, notwithstanding the company's earnings last year were not all that could have been desired.

Continued strength of Studebaker was accompanied by further rumors of plans to lift the receivership, although some important Wall Street quarters expressed perplexity over the persistent rise in the stock, pointing out that a reorganization would presumably require new funds, which might be raised by an assessment on the stock.

POWER OUTPUT GAIN LARGER

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Electric output of the United States during the week ended February 17 totaled 1,640,951,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 11.6 per cent over the 1,469,732,000 kilowatt hours in the like week of 1933, according to the Edison Electric Institute. In the preceding week output totaled 1,651,535,000 kilowatt hours, or an increase of 11.4 per cent over the like period last year.

Untermeyer Hits Stock Regulation Bill

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The stock exchange regulation bill recently introduced at Washington was described here today by Samuel Untermeyer, New York lawyer, as "in some respects dangerous, unworkable, unduly extreme and likely to disrupt our financial system."

In a breakfast club speech Untermeyer, who for 30 years has sought federal regulation of stock exchanges, said he "would regard it as nothing short of a catastrophe" if a "proper bill" should not be enacted.

Untermeyer particularly attacked the provision headed "margin requirements on long accounts." He said it prohibits "every member of a stock exchange and every person who transacts business through a member, to extend or maintain credit or arrange for the extension or maintenance of credit to or for any customer of any securities not registered upon the national securities exchange." He continued:

"It would mean that not only no broker but no bank could lend upon an unlisted security; it would destroy the marketability of fully 75 per cent of all the outstanding securities of corporations in this country. It would render United States government, state and city bonds unavailable for borrowing purposes."

Banks, Exchanges To Be Closed Tomorrow

Banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets will be closed tomorrow in observance of Washington's Birthday, a legal holiday. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours on Friday.

GRUNOW SHOWS NEW MODELS

Over 600 dealers and salesmen have accepted invitations from the Brown-Dorrance Electric Company, local distributors of Grunow refrigerators and radios, to attend a showing of the new 1934 line of refrigereators which will be presented for the first time at the Hotel Schenley tomorrow.

H. C. Bonfig, vice president and general sales manager of the General Household Utilities Company, will address the meeting. J. J. Davin will talk on promotion and advertising and J. D. Jordan on construction of the units.

William C. Grunow is expected to attend the meeting. Mr. Grunow has stated that he is exceptionally enthusiastic over the outlook for general business and plans an increase in production of more than 100 per cent over 1933. He expects the Grunow plant to be operating at full capacity of 1,500 refrigerators a day by April 1.

News and Views

CANNED FOOD PRICES SAME

Canned foods prices shows few important changes, but they are being generally well maintained at present levels and a certain amount of routine business is reported. Some distributors, however, apparently have sufficient inventories for the present.

BLANKET LOOMS ACTIVE

Blanket mills have started an intensive campaign to stimulate consumption of part wool blankets in order to keep as many looms engaged as possible. Various mills have booked substantial business in recent weeks.

HUGE DEMAND FOR BEER

Frank P. Van de Westelaken, president of the Master Brewers' Association of America, predicts that 440,000,000 barrels of beer will be sold in America in 1934. He said the brewing industry's outlook for the year was extremely bright.

FLOUR ORDERS LIMITED

Consumer buying of flour in the New York area does not extend beyond limited carlots picked up to meet nearby needs, it is reported in milling quarters.

GARMENT BUYING EXPANDS

The average increase in coat and suit orders last month ranged between 35 and 75 per cent in dollars and volume, according to an analysis issued by the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association.

NEW YORK FUR AUCTION

LOCAL MARKET LIST HOLDS STEADY

Prices were steady to firm in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today as the "big board" got away to a good start and improved substantially over the levels prevailing on the close last night. Volume of trading here showed no noticeable gain over the recent average, but there was a clearly apparent demand for the better grade stocks at figures close to the previous finals. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt scored a further gain as the stock reflected demand both here and in New York. Pittsburgh Forgings was handled in light volume, with the price holding around the recent high.

Fuels were quiet and somewhat hesitant at times during the session. In the investment section, Koppers Gas preferred changed hands again at 71½, duplicating yesterday's price. Pittsburgh Brewing preferred was up a point, but the lower priced beer stocks were narrow.

FRIGIDAIRE MEN MEET HERE

A group of executives of Frigidaire, subsidiary of General Motors Corporation, arrived in Pittsburgh today to meet with dealers and field representatives for the launching of their 1934 selling and advertising campaign.

Mr. Nance

J. J. Nance, manager of the air conditioning division and group leader, declared:

"Expenditures for sales effort and advertising promotion are based on sales expectancies. The best key to Frigidaire's attitude for 1934 is the fact that it is planning an expenditure for advertising much greater than that in 1933. As is the custom of our company, the bigger share of this expenditure will go to daily newspapers, which never have failed us in merchandising activities."

COTTON PRICES STEADY, UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Cotton futures opened steady, 3 to 8 higher in response to steady Liverpool cables and on trade and commission house buying. March, 11.99; May, 12.12; July, 12.27; October, 12.47; December, 12.58; January, 12.64.

May sold up to 12.17 and October to 12.49, with the market showing net gains of about 8 to 10 points at the end of the first half hour.

EMPLOYMENT DROP SHOWN IN JANUARY

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, N. Y. University

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Once a month it is well to pause in the discussion of day-to-day changes, and to examine our statistical position as shown by complete returns.

Daily and weekly figures are mostly incomplete and uncertain. Monthly figures are more complete, and we can allow for the merely seasonal ups and downs in them.

The latest monthly figures are for January, and these show the following results.

EMPLOYMENT LOSS

1—Employment and payrolls. In New York state, factory employment in January fell below December, and the decline was slightly more than usual for the season. It was about 35 per cent lower than the average for the years 1925-1927.

In Pennsylvania, factory employment declind more sharply, falling 4.7 per cent under December. This is considerably more than usual. We also know that in this case the number of hours worked decreased 8.3 per cent.

In New York, factory payrolls held up showing a fractional increase. In Pennsylvania, the factory payrolls fell 7.5 per cent. Evidently the number of hours worked by those employed did not decline in New York.

It is thus probable that there are still something like 10,000,000 persons unemployed, in so far as any gainful occupation is concerned. If the CWA army of 4,000,000 persons is disbanded, we may infer that direct relief or doles must be increased.

SALES LOWER

2—Department store sales. The sales of several hundred department stores scattered throughout the country, when figured on an average daily basis and adjusted to allow for the usual seasonal decline, were more than 2 per cent lower in January than in December.

Just as New York state factory employment was only 65.6 per cent of 1925-1927, so the sales of a representative group of stores were only 68 per cent of the 1923-1925 average.

3—Building and construction. Building permits in 215 cities in January fell 19 per cent below December, which is considerably more than normal. The January permits were about 11 per cent of the average for the years 1921-1927.

Construction contracts awarded in January, when measured in square feet, also declined. After making allowance for the usual seasonal drop, we find them to be only 20 per cent of the 1921-1927 average, against a little over 21 per cent a year ago.

LOADINGS INCREASE

4—Railway Carloadings. This important measure of business increased slightly more than usual in January. I estimate that freight traffic was about 57 per cent of normal, against 56 per cent in December.

(5) — Commodity prices. The government's index of wholesale prices rose 2 per cent in January. This index shows the average of prices to be 18 per cent above a year ago and 28 per cent under the 1926 level.

We may add that steel production declined, while pig iron and coal production increased, and automobile production gained sharply.

PAUSE IN RECOVERY

My impression from the final January data is that they show a mixed condition and a pause in the recovery from the July-November slump. They show business activity to be about where it was in early 1932 or late 1931.

But factory employment and ordinary retail sales are much lower than then; while prices average somewhat higher. There is thus suggested the danger that in our efforts to stimulate by boosting prices we may be leaving employment and purchasing power behind.

The old problem of "consumer resistance" lurks in the background.

Code Authority to Hear Buyers' Complaints

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Business Editor.

A TRIBUNAL TO hear complaints of violations of codes by stores has been established through the Retail Code Authority with offices in the Oliver Building.

The Code Authority, of which Dr. James H. Greene is secretary, has the task of administering the retail code in Allegheny County. Its work includes the interpretation of the codes as well as its enforcement.

Any complaint of a violation made by a customer, an employe or a competitor results in immediate investigation. The merchant is asked to explain his business methods either in writing or through personal call. If the complaint is found to be justified, a demand is made that the offense not be repeated.

Of course, continued violation would result in the referring of the case to code authorities at Washington.

Names to Be Kept Secret

WHILE EVERY complaint must be put in writing so that the Code Authority may have an exact record of each case, the names of those making complaints are kept secret. This is to prevent embarrassment to a customer or competitor or discrimination against an employe. The element of secrecy may be expected to remove any fear of making a complaint.

The complaints received cover practically every phase of retail business. Those received from employes usually apply to wages, hours and working conditions. From the general public and from competitors they are more likely to refer to unfair advertising.

* * *

Rulings Solve Many Problems

MANY PROBLEMS have been encountered in the initial work of administering the code. These are being solved, largely through rulings from the National Retail Code Authority.

An example of a ruling to prevent unfair advertising is to be found in a recent order that advertisers of closing out sales, bankrupt sales and going out of business sales must not add any merchandise to the stock which was not either on hand, in transit or under firm contract at the time the sale began.

Another is the decision that stores may not advertise that they are giving anything away when the "gift" actually is contingent on the purchase of some other article.

In general, merchandise must meet the claims made for it. If it does not, the customer has a good cause for making a complaint to the Code Authority.

Air Lines Costly to Operate

By B. C. FORBES

EDDIE RICKENBACKER'S record-breaking flight (13 hours) from the Pacific to the Atlantic wasn't a stunt, but the result of painstaking development of airplanes, aviation equipment on ships and on land, the investment of millions of dollars in new inventions, airports, amazing scientific instruments to make flying safe during the night and during fog, to make "blind landings" safe, to establish meteorological service far ahead of the government's, etc., etc., etc.

Mr. Forbes

Up-to-date commercial aviation isn't child's play. It isn't a picayune business. It savors nothing of what Wall street calls "fly-by-night" ventures.

Eddie Rickenbacker's company, for examle, has invested more money than it has ever collected from the government for carrying air mail and from all other sources combined. It cost $300,000 to create the ship America's premier ace flew. The company, never dreaming that its air mail contract would be nullified without even opportunity to present the facts, placed orders for $3,500,000 worth of these ultra-modern eagles.

One responsible aircraft executive sites these figures to me:

"It costs $5,000 to install an automatic pilot on each ship. It costs $3,000 to train a pilot for blind flying and $7,500 for the necessary instruments on each ship. Two-way radio costs $3,600 a ship, while ground radios have cost our company $140,000. It costs $5,000 for equipment to insure safe landings in a fog. Our pilots average $7,000 a year for an average 73 hours' work a month.

"Stamps sold for mail carried by our company fell only a few thousand dollars short of the total amount paid the company by the government. Stockholders supplied $7,900,000 capital to give the country all these aviation facilities and one-half of that total has been lost to date."

This company promptly offered to continue fulfilling its postoffice contracts for a month on the sporting offer that if inquiry revealed that there had been anything in the slightest measure questionable in the procuring and awarding of its contract, it wouldn't charge the government one cent for the whole month's service, so sure was it that it had been guiltless of wrongdoing. But the ax fell on it as on every other air mail carrying company, without its getting its day in court to prove its innocence.

The tragic prospect is that heroic young Army fliers may be the chief sufferers from Washington's hasty action. Army planes, aviation experts avow, weren't built to fly at night, to fly in fog, to make "blind landings" or to enjoy other advantages possessed by the most modern commercial ships.

Oftener than once, it is said, Army planes have sent an SOS to mail-carrying companies to send ships to pilot them to safe landings.

From every point of view, including that of national defense, it is earnestly to be hoped that every honest aviation company will promptly be restored to the status quo, so that further progress may be made in the art, or science, of flying without undue interruption.

Admittedly, commercial companies have led in raising the United States to absolute leadership in achievements in the air.

STEEL DEMAND EXPANDING

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Iron Age says:

Gaining momentum on several fronts the marshalled forces of recovery have pushed the steel operating rate up to 44½ per cent this week, a gain of 3½ points over last week and 25½ points over the corresponding week of 1932.

Automotive demand is still the chief single factor in the rise of steel activities. With evidences that this will be augmented with the PWA millions now beginning to penetrate basic industries and with the railroad rehabilitation program in definite action the steel industry is expectant of well-sustained demand and weekly increases in volume.

Books for second quarter deliveries of iron and steel will be opened March 1. The filing of price changes, if such were contemplated, were to be made on February 19. Inasmuch as no changes of consequence were filed by that date, present prices will carry into the second quarter. This would indicate that steel makers hope to counter balance their present higher costs and the accompanying losses through the economies to increased volume.

Commodity Credit Loans 133 Million

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—The Commodity Credit Corporation has loaned $133,147,704 to cotton and corn farmers in the administration's drive to peg farm prices, it was revealed today in a report filed with the Senate. Its purpose was to peg cotton at 10 cents a pound and corn at 45 cents a bushel.

The corporation disclosed it had received commitments from the RFC of $250,000,000 for loans to cotton farmers, $150,000,000 for loans to corn farmers and $48,000,000 for loans to the cotton pool, created by the AAA.

HEARST STOCK TO PAY 15TH DIVIDEND

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—Maintaining its impressive record of uninterrupted quarterly cash dividends throughout the depression years, the board of directors of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., today authorized the fifteenth consecutive payment on the class "A" 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares.

The regular quarterly dividend of 43½ cents, which totals $1.75 per share yearly or at the rate of 7 per cent, is payable March 15 to stockholders of record March 1.

All through the four years of economic chaos, Hearst Consolidated Publications firmly established its ability to safely pay dividends out of substantial current earnings.

During that period net earnings averaged approximately 2.14 times dividend requirements on the entire authorized issue of 2,000,000 class "A" 7 per cent preferred shares. At the same time Hearst Consolidated definitely demonstrated the stability of the publishing industry under most drastic conditions and the integral position that that company occupies in the economic structure of the nation.

Ownership in this security is now vested in 41,275 shareholders, living in every state in the Union and in 36 foreign countries and American possessions.

As an example of the widespread holding of the Hearst shares, 29,941 investors or 72.1 per cent of the total number of stockholders own between one and 20 shares, while 7,193 shareholders, representing 17.4 per cent, have acquired 21 to 50 shares. From 51 to 100 shares are owned by 2,570 investors and 1,571 have subscribed to blocks of more than 100 shares.

The brilliant depression performance of Hearst Consolidated ranks that company as an outstanding conservative investment, backed by tested earning power and uninterrupted dividend payments.

Since the national banking holiday of March, 1932, there has been a steady uptrend in advertising volume that presages an excellent outlook for the current year.

FOURTH DEGREE

By K. S. DAIGER

CHAPTER XLII.

"Now get up, you cur!" exclaimed Anderson. "No use trying to play dead with me! Get up and let me put the bracelets on you!"

Judson clambered to his feet. The blood was gushing from his hand, but he was otherwise unhurt.

"Find something to bind this up with," ordered the inspector, and I promptly took a bath towel which I noticed hanging on a line.

Then Judson spoke for the first time.

"You guys think you got me, eh?" he snarled. "Well, it ain't agin the law for me to be in this cellar. I come here to get some evidence and you three attack me."

"You came here to destroy evidence," said the Inspector hotly, snapping his handcuffs on Judson's wrists and kicking a piece of the broken glass with his foot.

Accuses Judson

"Not at all! Not at all!" clamored Judson. "I came here to get that bulb to show what a liar Tim Stokes is and you three guys attack me without a word of warning. I was trying to shoot you, not the light."

"It won't go, Judson," said Anderson with sort of a deadly quiet. "I know you don't think much of me as a detective but I am not as stupid as I look. That bulb, with your fingerprints on it, was removed late this afternoon. It's safely at Headquarters where it will be used against you."

"You're crazy," cried the wounded man. "Let's get the hell out o' here! I want a doctor quick!"

"And I want a car from Headquarters," replied Anderson. "Let's go upstairs."

In the library of the Paige house, Carroll put in a phone call to the Baltimore police to send a physician and a car in which we could carry our prisoner.

Then I turned to Anderson. I was still dazed.

"Did Judson really kill Mrs. Paige?" I asked.

"I must phone the newspaper. What did he do it for?"

"He certainly did do it," answered the Inspector positively. Why he did it, I do not know—yet. But we have enough evidence to swing him on for the murder of Mrs. Paige and poor old MacNalley, too."

"I must phone at once," I repeated.

Reports Story

Three minutes later, I was pouring a wild confused tale into Reynolds' ear.

"Judson did it, Bob," I yelled into the receiver. "You know, Judson, the detective. Get an extra ready quick! No, I don't know why he did it. Haven't gotten that far yet. But we caught him in the act of getting the bulb out of the cellar and Anderson says he's guilty. Get out an extra quick! Yes. . . . Yes. . . . I'll call back again in just a couple of minutes. No, I say I don't know why he killed her. All I know is that he came down into the cellar after the bulb. And the real bulb is down at Headquarters with his fingerprints on it. . . . Yes, Carroll shot him in the hand. . . . No, he's not much hurt . . . Yes, I'll call again just as soon as I know anything . . . Goodby."

The three men listened to my excited conversation without comment.

We were all sitting down now, Judson in a big armchair, nursing his injured hand. The inspector's face was cold and set and his eyes were mere gimlet holes of cold steel.

"Want to talk, Judson?" he asked. "This is a good time, if you do."

"You got nothing on me," replied Judson wrathfully. "Of course my fingerprints are on that bulb. You know I've been in that cellar before tonight. Went there to get the cigaret ashes and to make my own examination."

"Why did you go there tonight?"

"Read my man's stenographic report of the truth serum this afternoon. Saw Tim told about this here strange man touching the bulb and thought I'd come to see for myself."

"Trying to save me the trouble, eh?" said Anderson with ominous quiet. "But you see I know the whole story, Judson —or enough of it to hang you. I followed your suggestion about taking a hint from the ladies and today I watched my wife to see what she did with the trash from the waste-paper baskets and so on. She went down into the basement and burned it in the furnace.

He paused to let this sink in.

"Well, what's that got to do with me?" asked Judson, but I saw a very definite flash of terror sweep over his evil face. "There wasn't no trash burned in the furnace here. I looked in it myself."

Produces Signature

"But you didn't look carefully enough." And the Inspector took from his pocket a scrap of paper.

"See this?" he said, holding it up. "This is part of a letter, the signature, luckily for us. It says 'Kirk Judson,' and it is a scrap of the letter that Mrs. Paige received from you the day she was murdered. You ought to be glad that we have it, Judson, for it may save your life. It shows at least that you did not intend to kill her when you came here."

The little piece of paper seemed to take all fight out of the detective. He dropped his head and sagged visibly before our eyes.

"You're right, Cap," he said after a moment's thought. "I can see that it's best to tell you the whole story now and fight for a second-degree murder conviction. But you're right about one thing—I never had no notion of harming the little girl. That part was an accident."

And then and there, with the first rays of sunlight peeping in the east windows of the Paige library, Judson, the killer, told us the whole story.

WISE WORDS

There is no vulture like despair.—Lord Landsdowne.

The man that blushes is not quite a brute.—Young.

The difficulty in life is the choice.—George Moore.

Who keeps one end in view makes all things serve.—Browning.

But now my task is smoothly done, I can fly, or I can run.—Milton.

Nothing astonishes men so much as common sense and plain dealing.—Emerson.

He would be merchant but for a year.—Old Saying.

JUNIOR PATROL

Have you ever looked through a microscope, fellows?

You'll see a marvelous world—some of it extra beautiful—some is horrible and evil. It is many years ago since a famous Dutchman made a microscope good enough and strong enough so that he could see the wonders of the invisible world.

Crawling around in a little drop of water he saw hundreds and thousands of tiny creatures —tiny things we know of as germs today.

Later other men, looking through even stronger and better microscopes, saw these creatures multiply by breaking in half—every half becoming a whole, so that one germ in a drop of water soon became millions and later billions.

We know now, after many thousands of experiments by hundreds of smart men that some of these germs are our friends and some our deadly enemies. But the scientists went even further—they found that something even smaller than germs—something they called "toxins" and "virus" killed people too—but whatever it was they never saw it—they only knew that the finest of filters couldn't strain it out of water or liquid, the way they could strain out other germs. And men believe now that diphtheria is caused by this invisible poison, and that yellow fever is, too, and many other diseases.

One great scientist, Pasteur, found what he called an "antitoxin" for rabies, the terrible disease of mad dogs. So now, the great hospitals keep Pasteur's wonderful antitoxin and almost no one dies from the bite of a mad dog any more.

Here's another letter from Tommy Jones, of Gladden, Pa., who writes:

"We have elected a new captain whom we think is very capable of conducting our meetings. Our new captain is Tom Jones. The party which we mentioned about in our last letter turned out to be a great success. We hope to have many good times in our club this coming summer."

Boy, that sounds good, Tom! Write and tell us more about your club, please, and what you do to help others.

DEPARTURE OF THE PILGRIMS FROM LEYDEN, HOLLAND (1620)

Puritans, driven from England in 1608 and finding refuge in Leyden, Holland, furnished Pilgrims, sent by the London(Plymouth)Company on the Mayflower to "Virginia," arriving December 11, 1620, at today's Plymouth, Mass.

A form of government, the Compact, was signed on ship. John Carver was elected governor. He made a treaty with Chief Massasoit and his tribe acquiring land peacefully. After two years' hardships, the colony prospered. The community's land was divided among the settlers in 1624, the rights of the London(Plymouth) Company bought by them in 1627. A few years later an English patent confirmed their rights. Soon the remaining members of the Leyden Church emigrated to the Plymouth settlement.

An expedition sent by the Massachusetts Bay Company landed at today's Salem, Mass. (1628), founding the Massachusetts Bay settlement. In friendly relations with Plymouth, the settlements flourished. (U. S. History)

DARIUS I RECEIVING TRIBUTES FROM HIS SUBJECTS

One important civilization of the Orient was the Persian. The empire was founded by Cyrus the Elder (559-529 B. C.). He united the Persian tribes, conquered Media, Lydia, the Second Babylonian empire (539 B. C.). His son, Cambyses, added Egypt to the Persian dominions (525 B. C.).

Darius I (521-486 B. C.) expanded the vast empire with Thracia, Macedonia; he organized his lands into about 20 provinces, each under a governor, connecting the important cities with roads (about 1,600 miles the longest; Bagdad railroad runs almost along it).

A great conqueror and organizer, Darius failed disastrously against Greece twice. (World History)

WASHINGTON CROSSING THE DELAWARE (Dec. 26, 1776) Painting by E. Leutz

Not the oars but love of country and liberty is the prime mover. Washington's surprise attack at Trenton on the Hessians, hired by the British, was a turning point, decisive in its moral effect in our War of Independence.

SOIL FORMATIONS—GLACIAL AND ALLUVIAL SOILS

The disintegration of rocks into soil is brought about by heat, cold, water, frost, ice, wind, gases, plants and animals. Soils divide into sedentary and transported. The former may be residual (formed in place) or cumulose (plant remains); the transported soil may be colluvial (deposited by gravity), alluvial (by stream), marine (by ocean), lacustrine (by lake), glacial (by ice) and aeolian (by wind).

Above left: Glacial soil (heavy, jagged particles, resembling parent rock); right: Alluvial soil (mostly rich, depending on material up-stream and flow velocity (General Science)

SECTIONAL VIEWS OF FOUR-CYLINDER AUTOMOBILE ENGINE

Above: Main parts of four-stroke four-cylinder gasoline engine. Note how reciprocating motion of pistons (up-down in cylinders) is transformed into revolving motion of the crankshaft by attachment of connecting rods pivoting around the piston pin.

Cylinders and cylinder heads are provided with a water jacket, where cooling water circulates. The lifting (opening) of valves—one for admission, one for exhaust in each cylinder—is effectuated by cams on a revolving camshaft. This is driven by gears (sometimes by chain) from the crankshaft with half speed, as valves have to be opened only once (one turn of camshaft) while motor turns twice (four strokes of pistons). Valves are closed by springs. (Automobile) (13—III—B)

The Lobbyist Goes His Way

Washington will seem strange without the agile lobbyist leaping from house to house and uttering the quaint battle whisper of his tribe.

The definition of the word is shrouded in modesty and coyness. It now means a person who seeks to influence the deliberations of a legislative body.

It has always been suspected, and rarely proved, that the aforesaid influence was more financial than telepathic.

Howsoever, the first lobbyist showed up around the time of the Indian wars with a big bow and arrow contract.

Historians claim to have data on a lad who sold snow shovels to Washington at Valley Forge. But this is doubtless a libel on a fine profession and must be dismissed as biased and tending to lower the dignity of a dictaphoned conversation.

We do know the lads were there in 1861 selling rubber-barreled muskets to the South and paper shoes to the North.

They played both ends against the middle like a hill-billy learning to toot the flute.

OK CHIEF- I GET TH' BOW AND ARROW CONTRACT !
UH !

And they earned a pretty penny. We will not say much about progress, industry and the troublous times of 1898. We know the nervous lobbyist was there dealing out honorariums and emoluments of the corridor with a lavish wrist.

And the World War? That's when history gets too personal to repeat. We all know about that business. How about the lobbyist in times of peace? He still is there. But all amateur photographers know how difficult it is to get pictures of wild life. We once got a flashlight of Americus Lobbicuss drinking out of the tidal basin on the Potomac. There was a snort, a flash of green and he was gone. But we saw the flash of green.

Now, he is taboo in the halls of the mighty. No longer will he dance his corruptive adagio down the long, dark corridors. The well-oiled door opens not and the buttered knob is rusty.

He was a generous soul who peeled them off the top provided you would deal them from the bottom. But, he had his ulcerated motives. He was a Gypsy medicine man.

While we regret his passing, don't forget that he never gave away more than he sold.

The Brookville Tragedy

It Is a Warning to All Institutions to Look to Their Defenses Against Fire

All Pennsylvania is shocked by the tragic fate of the 10 aged women who perished in the burning of the infirmary of the Pennsylvania Memorial Home at Brookville yesterday.

Even the most callous must wince at the picture of those poor old ladies—widows, sisters and daughters of Civil War soldiers—some blind, all infirm, dying so dreadfully.

It is to be presumed that a careful investigation will be made and responsibility fixed.

The home is a state-aided institution, and Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, secretary of the Department of Welfare declares she wrote to the board a year ago and urged the construction of a new infirmary.

The tragedy is a warning to all institutions to look to their defenses against fire.

Budget Revision Urgent

It Is Time That Council Was Coming to Grips With This Important Problem.

Nearly two months of the new city administration have passed, yet a City Council committed to economy has done nothing toward revising the budget left as a heritage by the old regime. That budget meant a deficit of nearly $2,000,000 in 1933. It means the same this year unless economy is practiced.

Mayor McNair, through his budget adviser, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, has recommended cuts in the various departments. Perhaps they are too drastic. It may be that department heads and councilmen have constructive objections. There is a natural indisposition to reduce the pay of city employes already taking a $16\frac{2}{3}$ per cent pay cut, or to lay off low-paid employes who, out of work, will become social problems.

But it is time Council was coming to grips with this budget problem, one way or another.

Incidentally, Council, the Mayor and the department heads cannot escape criticism so long as they draw their regular rates of pay and defenseless city employes, over whom they have complete authority, take cuts of $16\frac{2}{3}$ per cent. The pay of Council, the Mayor and bureau chiefs is set by statute or ordinance. But they can show the proper spirit by voluntary reductions, a plan which was followed by the last administration, and which still is being followed by City Controller James P. Kerr, the only elected city official taking less than his statutory salary.

The Power of Radio

Winchell's Broadcast Would Have Brought Bernice Myers a Dozen Crutches.

A thief or practical joker, one of the meanest, purloined the crutches of Bernice Myers, 12-year-old Jeannette girl, suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis. Her father had to carry her to school.

Walter Winchell, the famous columnist and radio news commentator, heard about it, and told the story in a broadcast the other evening.

What followed is a wonderful tribute to the popularity of Winchell, the power of the radio, and the sympathy of the American people. Offers of crutches and money began to pour in to Winchell from all sides. People at Jeannette and nearby towns promptly got into touch with Bernice to find out what they could do.

In the meantime 12-year-old Jimmy Everhart found the missing crutches hanging in a tree a block from Bernice's home and restored them to her.

But, thanks to Winchell, she could have had a dozen crutches if she had needed them.

He brought a pitiful story to a happy ending.

Pennsylvania Rebuked

The Civil Liberties Union's Condemnation Is Not Unjustified.

Reviewing attacks on civil liberties in the United States last year, the American Civil Liberties Union says "the worst areas of repression in the country are California, Alabama, the Eastern Shore of Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Illinois."

At times, in our opinion, the American Civil Liberties Union is a little fanatical, and defends, in the sacred name of liberty, what seems to us the dubious right of a man to make a public nuisance of himself. But its rebuke to Pennsylvania, based on the ill-treatment of strikers in our industrial and mining regions, is not unjustified.

The trouble has been largely due to the private employment of deputy sheriffs. Paid by the mining and manufacturing companies, it is not to be expected that these officers, in disputes between the companies and striking employes, would deal out even-handed justice.

The House of Representatives passed, by a vote of 178 to 12, on December 18, a bill to put an end to the private employment of deputy sheriffs, but the Senate killed it in committee.

We are glad to note that Gov. Pinchot, who favored the measure, is not ready to acknowledge defeat.

He has appointed a committee to investigate the deputy sheriff situation, with special reference to the riots at Ambridge last October in which one man was killed and scores wounded. The committee's report is to be used as the basis for renewing the demand for the abolition of the company-paid deputy sheriff system.

With this system abolished Pennsylvania, we believe, will make a better showing in comparison with other states in respect to the upholding of civil rights.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The cocktail room in the smart restaurant is the dizziest, most tightly packed spot in town. Niched in easy access to bars, now fringed with plants to keep drinkers away and obey the law, these bright-lit rooms have taken the speakeasy's place in one jump. Ex-speakeasies have died.

The small cocktail room illustrates New York's sardine complex in herding. The more intimate, the more they love it. The continental flavor is provided by tambourine-capped boys circulating constantly with cigarets and lights. Also spindly tables against deep divans. And dogs everywhere.

The de luxe havens provide hors d'ouevres gratis and there is no cocktail the modern bartender does not know. At least he will attempt it. Few return such libations for re-making. The intimacy delays dinner as never before. Some do not get started until 10.

This gives dining rooms at the real dinner hour a look of utter desolation. Theaters again complain of late comers and "the affront to art." But theater goers feel when forced to go to agencies to pay exorbitant tariff for only fair seats they may go when they please. And so they may!

* * *

Ted Cook, who has written humor most of his writing days, has turned to fiction as a relaxation and disposed of several efforts. Aside from his hobby of raising sheep dogs, Cook is also an artist. Those old-timey almanac things in his pieces are his. O, yes, a sturdy redwood grows through the center of his studio.

* * *

Because West Seventy-second street was where I first lived in New York, it's mellow with sentiment. Other streets change but because I know 72d so well the changes are more noticeable. After 20 years, scarcely anything remains of the old days, save Holder Brothers news stand, the Hotel Hargrave and a branch of the Corn Exchange. Gone are the familiar faces—Dr. Pease, of anti-cigaret fame, Daddy Browning, the Knox hat family, the Huylers of the candy stores, the Isador Strauses, Copeland Townsend and his Majestic, the glittering grocers Park and Tilford and Acker, Merrill and Condit. And that derelict of the dawn, the one-legged newsboy at the subway who slept in his stand and darted out otter-like in traffic on crutches so nimbly.

* * *

Among most distinguished feminine handwritings is that of Kathleen Norris, the novelist. The small and well rounded letters are like the chirography of a steel engraving, exquisitely chiseled. It's an achievement flowering during her earlier days when she was permitted to tell all the news of her family to a relative in a nunnery on only one small sheet of paper.

* * *

Among best of the old-time story tellers is the actor, Lew Fields. His gestures are an art all alone. While a Dutch comedian he can spin a yarn in almost any dialect and has mastered the technique of proper pausings as no one else. And speaking of gestures, few of the moderns can touch the mimic Shelia Barrett. Her impression of monocled George Arliss interviewing the movie's hippy hussy with that bagnio banter is, to inflate The New Yorker's whimsy, "the neatest trick of the year."

* * *

Almost everybody recalls David Warfield's epochal performance in "The Music Master," the climax being a scene in which Warfield, as Herr Barwig, defending a mistreated slip of a girl in a wealthy family, shouted between magnificent sobs: "If you don't vant her, I vant her." It became a part of the routine of every impersonator for years. And, believe it or not, that slip of a girl is none other than Laura Hope Crews, the portly portrayer of a tyrannical old dowager in a seasonal offering.

* * *

But of all imitators I recall most vividly that of a repertoire comic in the long ago. "My next," he said, "will be of Buffalo Bill!" His left index finger mustached his upper lip and his right index made a goatee from his chin. And Grandma had to take me out in the alley to shake me out of a hysteria.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Bite Off More Than You Can Chew!

The longer I live, the more I despise that highly respected maxim — "DON'T BITE OFF MORE THAN YOU CAN CHEW!"

Yes, I know that by following the maxim millions of people have been able to keep out of jails, divorce courts, fist fights, bankruptcy proceedings, hospital beds and countless other highly unpleasant predicaments. But I am also convinced that by refusing to bite off more than they could chew, these careful folk have missed the most gallant adventures.

IT'S IMPOSSIBLE TO LIVE GREATLY, AND YET PLAY SAFE.

If you're going to bite off only what you can chew, you might as well be a guinea pig and be done with it. A guinea pig is also a Neat Nibbler. But what does it get him? A full stomach—nothing else. And if that's your idea of a Good Life, Neighbor, toddle to it!

BUT IF YOU WANT TO BE A MAN — YOU CAN'T JUDGE YOUR BITES. YOU'VE GOT TO TAKE A CHANCE, NOT ONLY ON YOUR TEETH BUT ON EVERYTHING ELSE YOU HAVE, INCLUDING YOUR IMMORTAL SOUL.

The proud and passionate, the really powerful spirits, aren't those that have never made mistakes or known humiliation and defeat. They are the people who, with deliberate recklessness, bite off more than they can chew.

As a consequence, they get themselves into frightful messes. They are ridiculed, misunderstood, slandered. They are despised by all who know them — frequently including themselves. (For the bitterest beating a great soul must take is its own doubting and remorse). And they often lose those things which are most treasured by the prudent—money, position, reputation, personal comfort, the esteem of loved ones and friends.

But they find that one treasure which the prudent and passive can never possess. They find Life!

Only the reckless—only those who are willing to bite off more than they may be able to chew—can know Life.

For Life, itself, is an adventure in recklessness. Life is the greatest risker, the greatest experimenter. Life is continually on the move —always changing—always daring — always biting off — never measuring bites — always taking chances—never taking out accident insurance.

Go into the fields and study one square foot of soil. That scrap of soil is a battleground. Something has always been happening to it, on it, and in it since the first green filament broke through its cooling crust. It has never been a peaceful place, or a passive place, or a safe place.

And that is why there is life there today. For life only goes on where there is continuous action. Life is palalyzed when things become passive. Life lives in that restless bit of sod.

But life is over in the vast and quiet craters of the moon.

Go out among men and study any human heart. If that heart is a battleground it, too, is alive. As long as it is taking chances—as long as things are happening to it and in it—that heart is furiously alive. But when that heart loses its curiosity and impatience, its enthusiasm and recklessness, death begins.

As long as I live I want to be eager to bite—and willing to bite off more than I can chew. As long as I live I want to make experiments—tackle adventures—get into messes—champion lost causes —get hot under the collar—raise Ned generally.

Pay for it? Sure I will. I've paid for it already. Plenty! Plenty! And I expect to pay for it plenty more. But—that's jake with me. For I'm convinced that, no matter how heavily I'll have to pay for my recklessness, it will never be as terrible a price as I'd have to pay for prudence.

And so—

ME FOR BIGGER AND BETTER BITES!

Suppose I can't swallow 'em?

Suppose I die trying?

Well, we'll all die, anyway. And then—if there isn't anything more, there isn't anything more. But, while the show's on—I'LL CHEW!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

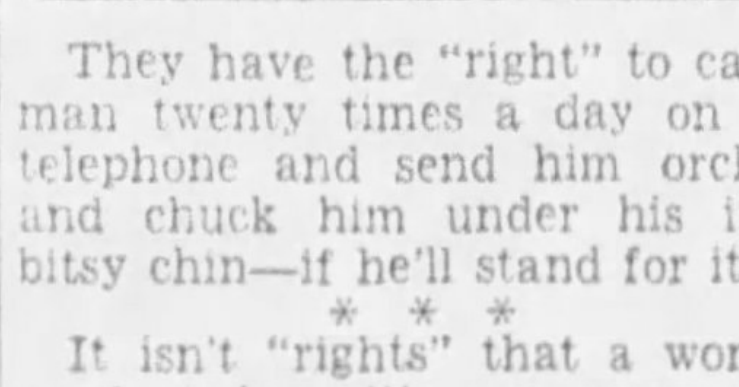
By Helen Rowland

When Woman Pursues

Every now and then, somebody bravely announces that women have the right to do the courting.

* * *

OF COURSE they have! Who's going to stop them? They have the right to wear ear-muffs and shave their heads and paint their noses red and eat onions for dinner, too. But, none of these will get them any popularity.



WELL, WHY CAN'T WE DO TH' COURTING ?
WELL— WHY NOT ?

They have the "right" to call a man twenty times a day on the telephone and send him orchids and chuck him under his itsy-bitsy chin—if he'll stand for it.

* * *

It isn't "rights" that a woman needs today; it's commonsense—and a little knowledge of masculine psychology. From the beginning of time to the end of time, man always has been and always will be the hunter, the pursuer, the go-getter! That is not an artificial thing produced by social customs. That is the Nature of the male of the species!

* * *

If any man ever said "yes" to a woman's frank proposal of marriage, then there was something the matter with him. Nothing so frightens a normal he-man as a woman's unsolicited offer of love. Nothing freezes his budding affections so quickly, as to discover that she has trumped his ace or spoiled his game, by daring to love him before he ASKED her to.

* * *

A small boy doesn't want anybody to "help" him build his blocks or wind his toys; it takes all the fun out of the game for him. And a grown man doesn't want to be "helped out" in the love-game.

* * *

Yet, every day in every way, girls are getting to be more and more "helpful" in the matter of overcoming a sweet, shy young man's diffidence and meeting him three-quarters of the way.

* * *

Every day, some doubting sister asks me if I do not think she would be more popular if she were more responsive; or if she had the courage to call a man up and "make a lot of fuss over him."

* * *

Why be so altruistic? Man is a predatory animal. And when he wants anything, he goes right AFTER it, whether it's money or love or only a girl's society.

* * *

Nothing discourages a man who is even a little bit in love or a little bit interested in a woman. NOTHING—except too much "encouragement!"

YOU'RE ALWAYS TALKIN' ABOUT MARRIAGE — I THOUGHT I WAS TH' ONE TO DO THAT

It is possible, of course, to freeze a man's love out—but it would take an electric refrigerator to do it. Yet, it can be choked out in half a minute by a warm blanket of responsiveness. When you seem over-anxious to give a man anything, whether it's your love or just your hospitality or your kisses, he naturally concludes that it can't be worth much

A woman may be won by wooing. Like a dog, she appreciates affection and attention. But a man is like a cat, the only way to "win" him is to LET HIM ALONE

And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.—I. John, ii:17.

Mr. Roosevelt Annoyed

(Reprinted from the New York Evening Sun.)

When the newspaper code was under consideration by the publishers and the NRA managers, many of the former insisted that the draft should say that the newspapers did not waive their rights under the First Amendment, which prohibits Congress from making any law abridging the freedom of the press. This attitude seems to have annoyed President Roosevelt more than a little. His executive order accompanying the code says, in part:

> "The recitation of the freedom of the press clause in the code has no more place here than would the recitation of the whole Constitution or of the Ten Commandments. The freedom guaranteed by the Constitution is freedom of expression, and that will be scrupulously respected—but it is not freedom to work children, or do business in a fire trap, or violate the laws against obscenity, libel and lewdness."

As the administration has had a great deal of trouble in interpreting and reinterpreting various codes under the blue eagle, surely no harm was done by the insertion of a paragraph incapable of being misunderstood. When Washington swarms with politicians and professors who seem to have little acquaintance with the Constitution, is it not a good thing to have it quoted whenever it is apropos?

The President's promise that the freedom of the press will be "scrupulously respected" is welcome, even if superfluous. But when Mr. Roosevelt adds that freedom of the press "is not freedom to work children, or do business in a fire trap, or violate the laws against obscenity, libel and lewdness" it is natural to wonder what he is aiming at.

What states are permitting children to be worked in violation of law? What cities are permitting fire traps to be used? What district attorneys are not enforcing the laws against obscenity, libel and lewdness?

Certainly the President's language suggests that these offenses exist. No decent newspaper commits or condones them. No decent newspaper asks any protection under the First Amendment except that to which it is clearly entitled: The right to publish what it pleases on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right.

The fact that many newspapers have required in the code a simple statement of their refusal to waive constitutional rights is scarcely a good reason why any man, in or out of office, should answer with innuendo.

Stalin, Bolshevik Chief, Sees Proof of Bourgeois Weakness In Spread of Fascism

By Edwin C. Hill

SIX motor cars draw up before a secluded house in the village of Gorky near Moscow. They are absolutely identical. Passengers enter each and are whirled away in the snow and cold of a Russian winter. In one of the cars is a square-set, dark, morose sinister-looking man. But WHICH one? Ah, that is the secret! That is the reason why there are SIX cars. The particular one carries the general secretary of the Communist Party, and the other five are decoys which make it one chance in six that any enemy or any traitor can approach Joseph Stalin.

The scene shifts to the hall for the meeting of the All Union Communist Party Congress. The man of steel, dressed as always in old clothes—for he is a modest and abstemious person—rises to speak, and for four hours he goes on in his report to the party. It is a bit of mockery to call it a report. Stalin speaks, and there is nothing to say but "aye"—just as Mussolini speaks to the deputies, Hitler to the Nazis and Kemal Pasha to the parliament in Angora.

The cobbler's son of the Caucasus has developed as an orator and he stirs the audience as he relates that there is no unemployment in Russia, while capitalistic production the world over has dropped 30 per cent. Fascism he finds is a proof of bourgeois weakness and indicates a decline of the old democratic theory. World revolution will come, not immediately, but when the working classes get around to the communistic principles. He was for peace, but he was afraid that the capitalistic countries would seek war as a way out of their crisis.

Will Durant's Change of Opinion

PROMINENT in the news is the boast of the Soviet government of Russia that the first Five Year Plan having succeeded beyond expectations, even, the masters of the Kremlin have launched on a second Five Year Plan.

I suppose that the puzzle of Russia remains in the minds of millions of Americans who seek only the truth—who have no bias, one way or the other. Has the great revolutionary experiment succeeded? Is it in the way of success? Has the rule of the mob anything worthwhile to offer the western world? A hundred such question crowd upon the mind.

This speaker read with the keenest interest the deliberate opinion of Will Durant, author of "The Story of Philosophy" as contributed to Panorama of Boston. Let Philosopher Durant tell his own story, and from it draw your own conclusions.

"I went to Russia loving not wisely but too well," says Will Durant. "Like a hundred thousand intellectuals and liberals, I have dreamed of her as engaged in a heroic struggle to liberate at least a portion of mankind from the injustices of modern industrialism.

"I had expected to see a people suffering hardships, but happy—a government human and fallible, but generous, enlightened, fair. And indeed, I saw heroic things. For the first time in modern history a nation was planning its economic life. Almost over night this once undistinguished plain had been dotted with immense factories, power-houses, oil wells and mines.

"Men had been permitted to free themselves from superstition. Thousands of new schools had been opened, and illiteracy —the secret of Czardom—had been almost wiped out.

People Are Ruled By Tyrants

"BUT never had I known such despotism, such herding and hounding of men, such industrial serfdom and conscription of labor. Never had I seen a people so unhappy, so suspicious of one another, so obviously living in endless terror of universal secret police. Never had I observed such ruthless exploitation of the country by the town, or so complete a militarization of the schools, or so thorough a deception of the people by a government-owned radio and press, or such rigid censorship of drama and every book, such brutal application of exile or death as deterrent to criticism and dissent.

"This terrible colossus—the mob on the throne—cared nothing for free speech, or free press, or trial by jury, or those other liberties which have become the unconscious basis and assumption of western society. It pronounced as just and moral any means to any end desired by the state. It seemed appalling that Europe and America, tortured by poverty and deluded by propaganda, should look upon this barbarism as a paradise, and should for a moment think of it as a way of life that could be borne by Englishmen or Americans.

"I take my stand without equivocation or obscurity. Let the oppressed fight as they will for bread and butter—it is their right. But let some of us, at least, fire a shot for our old goddess, liberty, the most precious inheritance of modern man."

So much for Will Durant, who went to Russia a believer, spent months there, and returned sick and disillusioned with the mockery of it all.

And reading the news of the new Five Year Plan, to be driven forward by conscripted labor, one thinks of the outcry of Madame Roland:

"O Liberty! Liberty! How many crimes are committed in thy name."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you feel like patting yourself on the back for the comparatively clean life you have lived, it might be well to consider the reason why you have not more often violated laws, social and otherwise.

Supposing you did not have the incentive provided by the good standing of your ancestors and the injury that would be done your immediate family, if you were to transgress certain laws. Would your life continue to warrant the good reputation you bear?

If your reputation in society were no better than that of many who are violators of the law, would you not often do things which are unlawful?

This being true, why should you think yourself such a superior person because you have been law-abiding?

You know that you have been tempted many times to do things that would have smashed your reputation into smithereens. Many of us are respected citizens because we do not dare to be anything else.

Conditions have been thrust upon us that persuade us we must maintain the position of honor we now occupy.
